Subject: Comment on docket numbers CN-14-916 and PPL-15-137

Dear Jamie MacAlister, Environmental Review Manager, and others whom it may concern -

This is a comment on docket numbers CN-14-916 and PPL-15-137.

This EIS is very incomplete and should only be considered appropriate to make decisions about the pipeline project AFTER the following things are addressed, added, or corrected:

- The individuals who wrote the report are not named, NOR are their backgrounds, affiliations, etc disclosed in order to make necessary determinations about potential conflicts of interest.
- The required statement on the necessity of the project is vague and inadequate. That its need will be determined based on "market forces" does not have a compelling, nor fact/numbers-based analysis of why THIS project is needed HERE and NOW. This must be corrected to sufficiently fulfill requirements. Furthermore while economics should certainly be foundational to decision-making - economics themselves are not economics unless you consider their context...environmental and social realities. Communities may have jobs, but if they don't have safe drinking water and the jobs are short-term in a shrinking industry rather than short/med/long-term jobs on projects that are part of a growing economy...what's the point or justification in that kind of economics?
- Relatedly to the point immediately above - if the purpose of the project is to supply both affordable energy and jobs, then what also must be included is an analysis of significant alternatives, which in this case is distributed renewable energy. This is "significant" because the price per kwh for renewables is not on par or below that of natural gas, coal, oil, and nuclear. The technologies are here, ready, and more than sufficient in terms of scale and ability to provide a reliable energy source. This must be included to ensure the pipeline is not only providing what it says it will (energy and jobs) but that it is indeed the most cost effective and net beneficial option. This is too expensive (in terms of land, health, and money) to be done simply because it has been done and can be done. If the purpose is profits rather than providing a needed service, that should be stated and the project thrown out. That is not what an EIS is for, nor big infrastructure projects.
- This project is in opposition to both state and local policy on climate and energy goals. That is part of an EIS to evaluate if a project is in violation of either.
- No analysis was done on downstream effects of potential (and, statistically speaking, eventual) leaks, only groundwater. 1050-1
- No analysis was done on whether or not this violates previous and standing treaty rights and tribal sovereignty. That is not a bonus issue. That is also a must. 1050-2

Sincerely,
 Alice Madden

Subject: CN-14-916 and PPL-15-137 DEIS comments on Enbridge line 3 replacement and crude oil capacity doubling

This DEIS is by far the biggest crock I have ever seen come out of a governmental agency. To supposedly address the Certificate of Need on almost every page is beyond belief. Had the Certificate of Need been first addressed and then went into the route review, I would estimate the document could have been reduced by 1500 pages. Another thing – the colored tables of red, yellow, and green in the DEIS are geared for nothing more than to manipulate the viewers brain into thinking that the applicants “preferred route” is the best option. The “preferred route” cells are almost all green with very few “beware” red cells. Deceiving as hell.

1.4.1.1 The DEIS states that the project need is not assessed in this document yet MN 216b.243 talks in terms of present needs and long range anticipated needs in determining the certificate of need. Not assessing these these needs seems contradictory to law and rule, please address. In actuality, if there is not a need and all indications are there is not a need, one does not need to determine environmental impacts nor discuss a route. In other words do nothing.

2.2 Enbridge States that Demand for Canadian Crude Oil Exceeds Current Capacity. This is highly debatable as is the statement that 74% of this crude is used here in the area. Enbridge’s own information elsewhere states that within this Enbridge corridor 2.9 million barrels of oil is transported daily. Of this 0.4 million barrels go from Clearbrook to the Twin Cities and 2.5 million barrels go from Clearbrook to Superior. In checking on the ability of these refineries to process this crude, it appears that the two refineries in the St. Paul Metro area process about .4 million barrels daily – the same as being shipped by Enbridge. The Superior refinery has a capacity of 0.04 million barrels, that leaves 2.45 million barrels going elsewhere – Illinois, Oklahoma and the gulf coast. In other words 85% of the daily oil flow through Enbridge’s 6 pipelines is excess to our needs. Where is the need to double line 3 transmission? This needs to be address in the Certification of Need. Also we need to see information on how many barrels of those 2.45 excess barrels to “our needs” are exported, since the oil industry was successful in getting U.S. government removal of export limits. What are our U. S. daily import and export figures?

2.9 Enbridge proposes to leave line 3 in the ground if line 3 alternative is completed. Canadian environmental information seems to indicate that abandoned lines need to be removed and everything restored. Why would Minnesota OK something that appears to be environmentally less than satisfactory?

5.1.3 All the comparisons in Chapter 5 of the Enbridge proposed route (Neché ND to Superior Wisconsin) with SA–04 9 (Neché ND to Joliet, Ill.) are absolutely absurd and have no relevance. It is understandable that all routes from Neche to Superior could be reviewed and evaluated for all the possible impacts, but compare the proposed route ending in Superior to SA-04 which goes to Illinois is an absolute idiotic attempt. Since 85% of Enbridge oil that crosses MN and hits Superior is shipped to other sites most of which reaches Illinois prior to going to the east coast or gulf coast for exportation, a more appropriate comparison would be the Enbridge preferred route of Neche to Superior to Illinois vs the direct route from Neche to Illinois which is SA-04.

10.2.4.1.1 The DEIS states that “Length is a key component in calculating failure probability” and goes on to state that the preferred route is 380 miles long. As we stated in 5.1.3, 85% of the oil crossing MN does not stop in Superior, rather flows through pipelines to Joliet Ill before going to the east or gulf coast for exportation adding in excess of over 400 miles, making the preferred route the longest route being considered. This would more than double the proposed route and would further reduce the attractiveness of other routes over SA-04. Information also indicates that Enbridge is planning another pipeline from Superior to Joliet to handle all this excess oil.

10.2.4.1.3 SA-04 is stated to be 795 miles in length from Neche to Joliet. Obviously SA-04 is slightly less than the 800+ miles for Enbridge to get the oil to Joliet via their preferred route, making the preferred route longer than SA-04. Looks like the data incidents per year need recalculating.

10.4.2.1.2 Why is table 10.4.8 not in color? Is it because SA-04 would be green, the best choice, and others with some green, yellow, and primarily red. There are big fat goose eggs in entire column below SA-04.

10.7.2 Again the data presented in tables 10.7.3 and 10.7.4 are not comparable. SA-04 figures are for Neche to Joliet while the others are for Neche to Superior. The coloring of the table again is obviously to sway readers thinking. Rather than colors why was the data presented such that the lowest column totals were to the left and the highest column total to the right. This way one could look and see which had the least impact? The the first column would be System Alternative SA-04 rather than Applicants preferred route.

Obviously a document in support of Enbridge. But then why would one expect anything different from the Department of Commerce.

Please share your comments on the Line 3 Project Draft EIS. What could be improved in the EIS? What is missing?

My concern is that the fiduciary responsibility of any accidents, leaks, and spills will not be covered by Enbridge. There is no outline of Insurance carriers or funding of the risk that Enbridge takes on with all of their lines. There was a spill in 7/2002 Cohasset, MN there are still issues! There is no Federal Standard to Address pipeline Safety. There may be training but if they are not trained there will be damage to people, environment, and water. I understand that people want jobs but to put our water at risk, which is a more important natural resource for every human, is not worth the risk to the environment. MN takes on a lot of risk and I would ask that why take on this risk? If you do take on this risk, I ask that you require a large substantial amount of money to cover damages to water, ponds, environments, animals, humans, and future damages to animals and humans.

Also- "The cleaning up" makes no sense. You are going to allow high pressure through the pipes that has been admittedly corroded. IS there a camera down every inch of the pipe to see the damage? How do they know when there is a leak?

3 MR. DAN MCGOWAN: Dan McGowan,
4 D-A-N, M-C-G-O-W-A-N. I'm with the labor
5 union, and overall, we'd like to thank the 6 Department of Commerce today for putting 7 together an environmentally safe Environmental
8 Impact Statement that on its face goes above
9 and beyond what the law requires.

10 Five thousand pages of facts and 11 analysis on every aspect of the project makes 12 it the most carefully studied pipeline in 13 state history from an environmental 14 perspective.

15 We also want to thank the 16 Department for its commitment to keeping the 17 process moving so the Public Utilities
18 Commission has the information it needs to 19 make a decision within the 280-day time period
20 set by state law.

21 The Draft EIS badly
22 underestimates the positive socioeconomic
23 impacts of the estimated 4,800 construction
24 jobs created by the project, based on the 25 flawed assumption that the project will employ

2002-1

1 zero local workers. That assumption is dead
2 wrong.

3 The project will be built under
4 labor agreements that require contractors to 5 employ laborers, operators, and teamsters
6 referred by local unions, including both
7 current members and new recruits.

8 Our union and contract partners
9 have historically put thousands of local 10 residents to work on various pipeline
11 projects.

12 Minnesota has a plethora of 13 skilled pipeline labor. We have hundreds of 14 members who pipeline across the country that 15 live in northern Minnesota and welcome a
16 chance to work close to home.

17 For these reasons, locals will 18 likely account between a third and a half of 19 the construction workforce, and a majority
20 will be Minnesota residents.

21 We recommend that the Department
22 reanalyze the population and impacts of the 23 project based on this more realistic estimate
24 of local construction employment.

25 We believe that the use of a

1 more accurate local employment figure will
2 highlight the significant contribution that
3 these high quality jobs make to household
4 incomes, tax received, et cetera.

5 The Draft EIS also
6 underestimates the positive socioeconomic
7 impact of the estimated 4,800 construction
8 jobs created by the proposed Line 3
9 replacement by failing to fully account for 10 the value of the jobs and associated benefits,
11 as well as the long-term career building
12 opportunities created by the project.

13 Pipeline projects, on a scale of 14 the Line 3 replacement, create opportunities
15 for locals without prior union construction to 16 pursue family supporting construction careers.

17 Many current members got their
18 start on similar projects and chose to either
19 continue in pipeline work or branch out into 20 building other civil construction.

21 The project will also help us to 22 fund the unlimited free skills training
23 available to our members to build their 24 careers.

25 Union pipeline workers -- union

2002-2

1 pipeline construction workers receive high
2 quality family health coverage that typically
3 lasts well beyond the length of a project.

4 Thousands of area union and
5 family members would be covered as a result of 6 the project at no cost to taxpayers.

7 Union pipeline construction
8 workers also will see pension contributions
9 that help provide financial and retirement
10 security for local union households, in 11 addition to helping sustain local economy.

12 We would be happy to explain the 13 mechanics of union (indiscernible) to the team
14 working on the Final EIS to ensure that it
15 accurately captures the full impact of the 16 project and the alternatives.

17 The impacts of construction
18 expenditures for a major pipeline project on 19 area small businesses are anything but minor.

20 The Draft EIS fails to address
21 the public safety impacts of rail
22 alternatives, which include injuries and 23 fatalities at rail crossings as well as the 24 risk of a major fire explosion caused by a
25 derailment.

1 Overloading Minnesota rail lines
2 with oil tanks would expose cities and towns
3 across the state to public hazards.

4 The Department should
5 incorporate the finding of MNDOT 2014 Crude
6 Oil Safety Reform and the U.S. Department 2014
7 Keystone XL Analysis. It's estimated that the 8 rail alternative would result in 49 injuries
9 and six deaths versus a single injury for the 10 pipeline.

11 The Draft EIS devotes too much
12 attention to so-called system alternative,
13 which is useless because it wouldn't reach the 14 refineries that rely on Line 3 to refine the 15 fuel that millions of Minnesotans depend on 16 for daily life.

17 In summary, I would say Line 3
18 replacement is the best way to protect the 19 environment. Replacing Line 3, as proposed by 20 Enbridge, is estimated to reduce the risk of a
21 spill by nearly 40 percent.

22 That is a conservative estimate
23 because it's based on the averages for old
24 pipelines, and Line 3 faces above average
25 integrity challenges.

1 Integrity digs keeps lots of
2 labor employed, but in the case of Line 3
3 there's no substitute for a pipeline built
4 using modern technology and construction.

5 Thank you.

Subject: Comment regarding docket numbers CN-14-916 and PPL-15-137

Despite the DOC's vehement objections, Enbridge is so far successfully fighting to withhold spill volume estimates from the public, for "security" reasons.

There is no analysis of the economic need for the pipeline.

There is no plan for addressing the contamination they will inevitably find when they shut down the existing Line 3. Indeed, only 16 of the 5,000+ pages are devoted to the issue of pipeline abandonment — just enough to acknowledge all the liabilities we pass on to our grandchildren if we let Enbridge walk away from its mess.

Frankly, this is a public policy crisis for Minnesota, as Enbridge has three more ancient lines waiting to be abandoned and rebuilt in a new corridor.

The entire process prioritizes the corporation's "right" to make profit, and ignores the real questions of public need and purpose. There is a glut of oil supply everywhere, global demand is declining, and so is Minnesota's.

Anyone can see the right thing to do: deny the permit for a new Line 3 and require Enbridge to clean up the old one. But the false assumptions, glaring omissions, and twisted framing of alternatives in the DEIS show that the state's morality and common sense are still blinded by the temptation of temporary construction jobs and tax revenue. I demand better!

MR. PAUL MENECHINI: Thank you for the opportunity to present my comments.
My name is Paul Meneghini, P-A-U-L,
M-E-N-E-G-H-I-N-I, and I'm an employee of Enbridge.

My following comments are solely my personal views based on my education and professional experience.

I'm a licensed professional

1 engineer in the state of Minnesota and have
2 earned an MBA with a concentration in
3 environmental management.

4 Although I'm not currently
5 working on the Line 3 replacement project, my
6 position at Enbridge over the past ten years
7 has primarily been working on other large
8 pipeline expansion projects.

9 As correctly noted in the DEIS,
10 projects like this, either directly or
11 indirectly, employ thousands of people before,
12 during, and long after construction is 13 completed.

14 This North American produced oil
15 clearly has the least socioeconomic impacts to 16 the U.S. and Canadian policies on 17 humanitarianism. This could be addressed or 18 noted in the final EIS.

19 Today I'd like to focus my
20 comments based on my experience prior to being 21 employed by Enbridge. I used to be an 22 environmental consultant and dealt primarily
23 with various clients during Brownsfield's
24 redevelopment and distressed property cleanup.

25 Most of these sites were

1 unfortunately impacted by petroleum
2 contamination. Based on a quick search of the 3 MPC's online leak site database, over 20,000
4 petroleum leaks have been reported in the state
5 of Minnesota since the early 1980s when
6 reporting requirements were implemented.

7 A large majority of these leaks
8 were at retail gasoline service stations. What 9 many may not know is that gasoline is much more
10 hazardous, more volatile, immobile, in soil and 11 groundwater than crude oil if leaked in the 12 environment.

13 In addition, most gas stations
14 tend to be located in urban areas, naturally
15 where their customers, you and I, live, which 16 can create additional human exposure pathways.

17 My point of referencing this
18 information is to request the Final EIS further 19 attempt to explain to the general public that 20 petroleum releases do not mean widespread
21 devastation and loss of land use forever.

22 Below ground impacts from 23 petroleum releases typically travel only a few 24 hundred feet maximum in soil or water. From 25 there, naturally occurring reactions take place

1822-1

1 and the impacts cease to migrate further and
2 reduction occurs.

3 In addition, with today's
4 reporting, cleanup standards, and risk-based
5 management approaches, petroleum releases
6 typically cause very little long-term damage to 7 the public or the environment. The notion
8 conveyed by many as part of these comment
9 meetings that even a small crude oil leak
10 threatens water quality and drinking water
11 quality to millions of people downstream is 12 simply false, based on science.

13 In conclusion, risks are
14 associated with anything we do in our lives.
15 One purpose of the EIS process is to evaluate 16 the potential human and environmental affects 17 of approving the project. In other words, what 18 are the risks?

19 We all took a risk by coming here
20 tonight, whether driving, biking, or even 21 walking. Something could have happened along 22 the way outside of our control which could have 23 had a bad outcome on our health, the 24 environment or our general wellbeing.

25 If we had stayed home, we could

1 have avoided these risks, but in order to live
2 our lives and express our opinions tonight, we 3 successfully managed those risks by using our 4 seat belts, obeying traffic signs, following
5 the speed limit, and even wearing a helmet if 6 we biked.

7 Pipelines in general, even more
8 specifically, the route proposed by Enbridge as 9 assessed in the DEIS, indicates that it's the 10 best route by balancing and controlling the 11 risks presented.

MN350 Comments on the Draft EIS
Dockets CN-14-916 and PPL-15-137

July 10, 2017

What is MN350?

MN350 is the state chapter of the worldwide organization 350.org, an organization dedicated to building a people's movement to address climate change and climate justice. We are deeply concerned about the startling rise in CO2 levels in the atmosphere, since we work for a just, sustainable future and a livable planet. Our work is grounded in peer-reviewed climate science and in grassroots organizing supported by staff and volunteers.

Individuals within our organization have learned a great deal about crude oil pipelines over the last five years. We have attended and participated in many meetings and public hearings at the Public Utilities Commission, and were an intervening party with legal representation in the Alberta Clipper Phase II expansion docket.

Some of us have testified and advocated before the State Legislature for stronger pipeline and railroad safety laws, fossil fuel divestment, and more renewable energy. We have defended against attacks on existing policy and advanced and passed new measures into law.

Some of us have traveled to the tar sands fields of northern Alberta, many more have visited the mainline pipeline corridor, the Applicant's preferred route and the Headwaters of the Mississippi. Some of us live on or near the pipeline corridors, both existing and proposed. We have traveled and led bus tours to Standing Rock and the Mainline Corridor.

We care about community safety along rail corridors and organized commemorative events after Lac Magantic. We track the movement of oil by rail through the Energy Information Agency and the National Energy Board of Canada. We have spent time speaking with staff and analyzing data from the Pollution Control Agency and the Minnesota Office of Pipeline Safety.

We communicate with landowners along the mainline corridor and the Applicant's proposed Corridor.

We track the movement of oil through throughout the Midwest region via reports filed at the Federal Energy Regulatory Energy agency and have attended Pipeline Safety Trust Meetings. We stay informed through daily news briefings on oil, crude oil pipelines and climate change.

We are part of a much larger movement resisting crude oil pipelines as we advocate for clean energy for a variety of reasons, from climate change to indigenous rights to protection of Minnesota's most pristine waters. We have been featured on television news reports and in many articles.

We are the embodiment of the Minnesota Environmental Policy Act, which says that "each person has the right to contribute to the protection, preservation and enhancement" of the air, water, land, and other natural resources located within the state."¹ We are exercising our right to protect our state from private economic interests that threaten these resources, and – most importantly of all to us – our threatened and already damaged water resources and worldwide climate.

Our comments on the Draft Environmental Impact Statement (DEIS) are below.

The timeline for this first DEIS on a crude oil pipeline was challenging, as this is massive project and there was no precedent in the state. While it is a first draft, it is not adequate in its current form and fails to meet the requirements of Minnesota's Environmental Policy Act. We call upon the Department, the Commission and the Governor to recognize

- the massive nature of this project,
- the fact that this is a first ever EIS for a crude oil pipeline in this state, and this project would establish a new corridor through Minnesota,
- this is the time for the government of Minnesota to have a meaningful role in evaluating and choosing a new pipeline corridor, if one is in fact needed, and
- this is the time for the government of Minnesota to reconcile its stated climate change goals with a Canadian project proposer's economic interests.

Because this DEIS will set a precedent for a crude oil pipeline EIS within Minnesota and potentially set the framework for a new pipeline corridor, we ask for the following serious omissions and flaws to be rectified prior to the issuance of a FEIS in order to protect Minnesota's interest.

Executive Summary comments

The following comments are organized by Executive Summary sections and apply to the text in the PDFs found at <https://mn.gov/commerce/energyfacilities/resource.html?Id=34695>. The Executive Summary PDF is different than the handout passed out at the Public Meetings; our comments pertain to the online PDF.

What is the Line 3 Project? (pg ES-1)

The Executive Summary is incorrect when it states the Mainline System ships an estimated 2.9 million barrels a day. According to the 2016 Form 6 year-end report Enbridge filed with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC),² the Mainline system shipped 2.4 million barrels per day across the international border, and our calculations based on several FERC reports from Enbridge, North Dakota Pipeline Company, and Minnesota Pipeline Company show the mainline shipped approximately 2.3 million barrels a day from Clearbrook to Superior WI. The estimate in the DEIS is high by one-half a million barrels a day. The FERC data is readily available to the Department, at www.ferc.gov.

² FERC Financial Report FERC Form No. 6: Annual Report of Oil Pipeline Companies and Supplemental Form 6Q: Quarterly Financial Report, submitted by Enbridge Energy, Limited Partnership End of 2016/Q4, pg 600. The last column in row 1 shows the annual number of barrels transported across the international border in 2016: 881,369,313. Divided by 365 days, that is an average of 2.4 million barrels a day. Column B, line 3 shows the number of barrels received in Minnesota, from the NDPL Line 81 and from storage tanks at Clearbrook. The FERC reports can be accessed at www.ferc.gov. Select Documents and Filings, e-Library, General Search, Select data range of report filing, uncheck issuance box, check oil box, Class=Report/Form, select Form 6 for the Annual Report, Text = "Enbridge Energy, Limited Partnership", uncheck Full Text Box. Similarly, these forms can be accessed for the North Dakota Pipeline Company and the Minnesota Pipeline Company.

The Executive Summary is misleading and high in its estimate when it states “Enbridge” transfers approximately 400,000 barrels per day (bpd) to the Minnesota Pipeline Company, which serves the two refineries near the Minneapolis/St. Paul metro area. On their 2016 Year End FERC report, Enbridge reported approximately 300,000 bpd were transferred from the Enbridge Mainline system (primarily Canadian crude but also some Bakken oil) and 70,000 from the North Dakota Pipeline Company (Bakken oil) to the Minnesota Pipeline Company (MPL). The Executive Summary concerns a pipeline that is part of the Mainline system, so it is important to be clear that only $\frac{3}{4}$ of what the DOC estimated is actually being transferred from the mainline system to MPL. A reader of the Executive Summary might well infer the 400,000 bpd cited were all transported on the Enbridge Mainline system from Canada.

The Executive Summary is misleading when it states Line 3 is capable of carrying 760,000 bpd, when in fact it will be capable of carrying 915,000 bpd according to Enbridge’s Application for Certificate of Need.³ This is important for worst case spill analysis.

The Executive Summary neglects to mention the 1855 treaty that assures the native sovereign rights to hunt fish and gather when it simply states “as well as ceded territory that tribal members value for wild rice, hunting, and fishing” [emphasis added].

What is the purpose of this Environmental Impact Statement? (pg ES-3)

The Executive Summary is incorrect when it states the “purpose of and need” for this EIS is to help inform only the Commission. There are three end users cited in Administrative_ ³ Enbridge Energy, Limited Partnership Certificate of Need Application April 2015, MPUC Docket No. PL-9/CN-14-916 pg 8-3 .

Rule 4410.0300 and 4410.2000⁴: the project proposer, the Commission, and the public. As members of the public, we emphasize the role the EIS has in providing useable information to the public. We also note Part B of this rule says we have an explicit right to have access to decision makers and an explicit duty to encourage accountability.⁵ It is not that we just “can use the information in the EIS” as stated in the EIS but we have a stated right and duty to uphold for the correct functioning of our democracy.

Who prepared the EIS? (pg ES-3)

We request more information as to what portions of the EIS were essentially authored by Enbridge, Cardno, Stantec or other consultants and their background to the oil industry. This is required by Adm. Rule 4410.2300 Part D and furthermore is important and pertinent information in a democracy. It is disingenuous to the public to have to do a word for word comparison to the project proposer’s Environmental Assessment Worksheet and guess at the authorship of paragraphs in the EIS. We cite the recent news reports that the state of Michigan terminated its contract with the contractor in charge of analyzing the risks of Enbridge’s Line 5, because it became apparent an individual on the team had worked for or still was working for Enbridge.

2462-5

What is a Certificate of Need, and how will “need” be determined? (pg ES-3)

Whether or not the Commission “first considers the underlying economic need” in past CN proceedings, we disagree that this is how the Commission should apply the statutes and Administrative Rules cited. Minnesota Administrative Rule Part 7853.0130 lists four parts, as the Commission is aware, with sub points under each one. No one part is more important under the law; they each have equal weight. In addition, under MEPA, which is

⁴ Adm Rule 4410.0300 Part A

A. provide usable information to the project proposer, governmental decision makers and the public concerning the primary environmental effects of a proposed project;

⁵ Adm Rule 4410.0300 Part B

B. provide the public with systematic access to decision makers, which will help to maintain public awareness of environmental concerns and encourage accountability in public and private decision making;[emphasis added]

in Minnesota Statutes and hence holds more weight than Administrative Rules, economic considerations alone cannot justify decisions that have potential to harm the environment.

Minnesota Statute §116D.03 Subd. 2 states “All departments and agencies of the state government shall: identify and develop methods and procedures that will ensure environmental amenities and values, whether quantified or not, will be given at least equal consideration in decision making along with economic and technical considerations;” [emphasis added]

Minnesota Statute §116D.04 Subd. 6 also states

“Prohibitions. No state action significantly affecting the quality of the environment shall be allowed, nor shall any permit for natural resources management and development be granted, where such action or permit has caused or is likely to cause pollution, impairment, or destruction of the air, water, land or other natural resources located within the state, so long as there is a feasible and prudent alternative consistent with the reasonable requirements of the public health, safety, and welfare and the state's paramount concern for the protection of its air, water, land and other natural resources from pollution, impairment, or destruction. Economic considerations alone shall not justify such conduct.” [emphasis added]

What alternatives were considered in the EIS for the Certificate of Need decision?
(pg ES-4)

We insist on the option of a truly “No Action” option be included as an alternative to granting a Certificate of Need (CN). This would involve denying a CN and the Commission using the strongest language possible recommending Enbridge cease operation of their failing Line 3 pipeline.

2462-6

We disagree that if this CN is denied, the only option to be realistically considered in this Executive Summary is that the Applicant (or entities other than the Applicant) could be expected to meet shipper demand for the oil through other means, such as other pipeline systems, rail or truck. We have seen shipper demand change, as Marathon Petroleum moved to the Dakota Access pipeline in the recent case of the Sandpiper proposal. Clearly, shipper demand can change once a pipeline is denied. Oil is a fungible commodity, and shipper demand can change based on price, buyers for the product, and transportation costs. The world is in transition to electric fueled transportation options, and we note the article in Star Tribune on July 10, “Will Minnesotans Plug in to the electric car surge?” by Eric Roper. The Chevy Bolt is now available for purchase in Minnesota. Major car companies are producing or announcing production of electric engines powered cars, including Tesla, Nissan, BMW, Audi, and Chevrolet. Volvo recently announced it will build all electric and/or hybrid cars by 2019.

Extraction of and shipping oil from Canada is more expensive than extraction and shipping of most other sources of oil. Shipper demand is not a given if the price of oil remains low. Refineries on the coasts certainly have multiple sources of feedstock. Supply of oil worldwide has exceeded demand for several years and jittery markets react to every oil or refined product inventory shift and OPEC nations’ production cuts. Non-OPEC nations, including the United States, undercut the OPEC production cuts by increasing their output. The supply of and demand for oil market has yet to balance even now during the peak driving season in summer (here we direct the reader to the EIS charts of oil inventory supply) and prices have been volatile. Many firms have pulled out of the tar sands fields (see below) and have reduced capital expenditures. After Keystone XL was originally denied, 24 other projects were canceled, including mines, pipelines, plants, related rail projects and export terminals.⁶ No train terminal loading facility was built at the International border. Meanwhile demand has been artificially inflated by the building up of China’s and other nations build-up of strategic and other oil reserves. All of these factors are at play, and to assume that oil will move regardless of new pipeline construction is a risky assumption.

⁶ “It’s Not Just Dakota Access. Many Other Fossil Fuel Projects Delayed or Canceled, Too”, Zahra Hirji, Inside Climate News, Dec 5, 2016 ,last accessed 7/10/17 at <https://insideclimatenews.org/news/06052016/fossil-fuel-projects-cancellations-keystone-xl-pipeline-oil-coal-natural-gas-climate-change-activists>

More likely alternatives in the event that the Line 3 project does not proceed include would include more companies in the Canadian tar sands fields cutting production, delaying opening of new mines or wells, and the gradual reduction of the tar sands operations.

With the completion of the five recent sales, about two-thirds of oil sands production⁷ will be concentrated in the hands of Canadian companies, according to data compiled by JWN Energy. (JWN's analysis cites a higher figure, but includes production by Imperial Oil, a Canadian company in which ExxonMobil holds a controlling interest.) That means investment likely will shrink, said Jennifer Winter, an energy economist at the University of Calgary's School of Public Policy.

"If there are fewer investors in the oil sands, or there's more concentration with the exit of these multinationals, it means that unless the companies operating in the oil sands are able to attract significant amounts of outside capital, it's probably going to be slower growth than if Shell or ConocoPhillips stayed," she said. "The oil sands are going to continue to be one of the marginal production areas for the near future."⁸

Both Exxon Mobil⁹ and BP¹⁰ have admitted they need the price of oil to rise to $60 barrel before they are again profitable and/or at the breakeven point. Exxon disclosed they have 3.4 billion dollars of stranded assets on their books unless oil prices rise above that level.

Reuters is reporting DeJardins is considering stopping funding pipeline projects¹¹ and US Bank has announced no more pipeline project funding.¹²

We also note Alternative Number 2, “Use of other pipelines” on page ES-4 is not discussed in this EIS, other than the System Alternative SA-04, which is the third point. Enbridge could also come up with other pipeline proposals. This could involve the reversal of Line 13, which now carries diluent back to Canada or purchasing other existing pipelines.

We disagree that SA-04 is an alternative pipeline system; it is a route alternative, as the vast majority of the oil, if not all, is designed for refineries beyond Superior, and hence direct transportation to the Illinois Enbridge hubs is a viable option. The large BP Whiting refinery is located in the Chicago area, for example. The PUC has artificially created a new category, named it and treats it as something unusual while their rules have cited such an option (more reasonable, prudent alternative) all along. We object to the use of the dismissive adjective “conceptual” prefacing references to SA-04.

Table ES-1 has errors in the third column and bottom two rows, is confusing and unnecessary. Several people within MN350 have spent hours analyzing this confusing table, and it appears even the drafters of the EIS did not understand the matrix table. The drafters also changed the wording of Part B, which lead to the confusion. But as the wording of Part B is written in the Executive Summary, the chart is incorrect.

If the premise of the chart is that a failure of any of the parts of 7853.0130 to be met would cause a denial of the Certificate of Need for the Applicant, then the “Yes” in the bottom two rows and the third column (which also is the second green column) should be “No”. If this is not the case, the Department is highlighting even if parties, the EIS or the public demonstrate that there is a more reasonable and prudent alternative, a Certificate of Need still could be granted. The table also implies even if parties, the EIS or the public demonstrate there is a more reasonable and prudent alternative, the Commission would still proceed to evaluate the consequences to society, and whether applicable policies and laws were met. Also, why isn't there a separate column for Part D of 7853.0130? It is conceivable that all three parts (A,B and C) of the Rule could be met, but not Part D.

The reader is left totally confused. Administrative Rule 4410.0300 Subp.4 states the information provided in an EIS must be "usable". Who will use this table? The Commission will certainly make their own decision and the table is very confusing for the public.

We request clarity as to what the Commission would do if any of the four parts of Rule 7853.0130, or any of the subparts, for example, were not met. For example, is Table ES-1 stating that if parties can show that the consequences to society of granting the certificate of need are not more favorable than denial, then the CN would be denied even if the other requirements were met? Table ES-1 implies the Department has consulted with the Commission on this issue, and we at MN350 would like verification that the Department can speak for the Commission on this matter.

The table also implies consideration of denial of the CN based on adequacy, reliability or efficiency must come first in the process, whereas it is our understanding that all four parts of the rule are equally weighted.

The use of the green and pale red colors is unclear and unnecessary. Does green subtlety mean the Applicant's project can proceed with a green light and pale red mean the project is on a trajectory to be denied?

Also, the top row, last column is incomplete. "...Evaluated for Environmental" is an incomplete phrase.

What is a route permit and how will the route be determined? (pg ES-7)

The legend and the Figure ES-2 are very difficult to read in the PDF published online. We request use of the landscape format rather than portrait to make it easier to read and create the Figure with high resolution, as you seem to have done in the handout used in the Public Meeting. Also, there is a noticeable discrepancy in the font used for the Minnesota river label versus the Mississippi River. Also, the path of the Mississippi river is not clearly marked, especially as it crosses the route alternatives.

2462-11

The first sentence not phrased correctly in the phrase “in addition to deciding whether to issue a CN”. The CN must be issued before the Route permit, as the DEIS correctly states in the second paragraph.

2462-12

How do tribal and federal approvals affect the route decision? (pg ES-7)

Elsewhere, the EIS states that Leech Lake has said “no” to any further pipelines. Please state that in the Executive Summary, rather than the much vaguer statement “Enbridge maintains that the ability to obtain limited-term permits and easements is too uncertain”. Many members of the public were not aware of the Band’s position when they requested consideration of use of the existing mainline route for Line 3. It is also important for the Commission to understand the Band has said no to any additional pipelines on their lands. We reiterate, the purpose of the EIS is to inform.

2462-14

How is the public involved in preparing the EIS, and how will they be involved in the final decision? (pg 10)

We look forward to the feedback on these comments to the draft EIS and have been assured that a response to each comment received will be prepared. We hope the feedback will be as substantive as the feedback given to the Applicant and that we find out whether our individual suggestions for improvements were implemented.

We object to the one way communication of the Public Comments at the Commission Public Hearing. We have testified many times before many hearings and seldom if ever receive any comments back.

MAJOR ISSUES FOR THE CERTIFICATE OF NEED DECISION (pg ES-10)

What are the advantages and disadvantages of continuing to use existing Line 3?
Most if not all of these paragraphs would apply to Lines 1, 2 and 4 as well. Therefore they should be included in cumulative potential effects.

2462-15

How are the risks of accidental oil release different for pipelines, trains and rail? (ES-12)

Additional risks should be added, such as how much of the oil can be recovered.
As was explained to Ms MacAlister at one of the public hearings, Figure ES-4. Incorrectly graphs the average size of an accidental release for pipelines. Per the text, the number is 462 barrels for pipelines, and the right axis should have been used. Instead the left axis was used. Also, we note this graph is national pipeline data for 2007-2017; Enbridge specific data was not used and is more relevant to this EIS.

2462-16

A better way to present this information would be to plot the spill size on the y axis and the spill frequency on the x axis, shading to show total area, because it reveals an additional information point that was frequently asked about in the public meetings: the total quantity of oil per year that each mode of transportation is estimated to spill. In addition, this proposed graph format would be much easier to understand at a quick glance. Here's an example of what this could look like:

Table ES-2 has a large number of problems and should be deleted.

The table does not list the expected amount of released oil expected to contact all resources of concern in each alternative scenario. The DEIS only provides the area (in acres) that contacts each route (within a specified buffer size) But, the amount of oil expected to be spilled from each route is not the same for all alternatives. Thus, the analysis of 'exposure' as provided in the DEIS is relatively meaningless in terms of analyzing actual risk to conservation areas and other areas of concern, without knowledge of the total amount of oil expected to come in contact with resources of concern from each alternative. The total amount of expected oil spilled per unit area is the operative value of concern to reviewers of this document, and needs to be stated clearly and without obfuscation in the Executive Summary, and in the relevant chapters of the full DEIS.

The chart appears with little explanation – for example, the reader may not know what the categories in the left hand column all entail.

The fact that DOC has chosen a four state area acreage for SA-04 versus a single state (with a same amount of North Dakota and Wisconsin) acreage for the Applicant's preferred route is not apparent, misleading and highly biased to show Enbridge's route in the most favorable light. There should be a Minnesota to Minnesota comparison between routes.

2462-17

The chart purports to be acreage potentially exposed to a crude oil release. All acres are not the same for oil spill impacts – cleaning up oil from wetlands, rivers, permeable or clay soils is very different.

2462-18

The reader is left to wonder about construction impacts. Where are they charted?

2462-19

The alternatives chosen are not realistic; no one can imagine shippers using trucks for transporting 400,000 barrels a day of oil, for example, and economics make rail and truck an expensive alternative in today's volatile oil market.

2462-20

What are the advantages and disadvantages of continuing to use the existing Line 3? (pg ES-11)

The Executive Summary acknowledges the Mainline Corridor “was not subject to state or federal environmental review or state procedures for CN and route permitting, and did not consider environmental justice issues.” As state decision makers now are faced with this reality, you, Department of Commerce and the Commission, have the choice of either correcting the injustice or repeating it.

The drafters of the EIS acknowledge this in chapter 1, page 1-4 “the environmental review and permitting procedure for the Project presents an opportunity for a full evaluation of environmental and socioeconomic factors that did not necessarily enter into the original routing decisions for Enbridge’s Mainline system.”

Furthermore, the draft EIS states on page ES-1, “Tribal members who submitted comments during this EIS process and provided input for this Draft EIS reported that all of the proposed routes, including either keeping the current Line 3 in place or abandoning it, would add to the negative mental, spiritual, and physical health impacts already disproportionately suffered by American Indian populations.¹³” We request that you listen to these voices and allow the individual landowners and tribal nations to decide what to do with the wounds on their land – the old leaking pipe. Let them have the choice and request Enbridge to do removal as landowners and tribal nations wish. And we further request that you do not allow Enbridge a route permit on land covered by sovereign nations’ usufructuary treaty rights.

What are the impacts of the CN Alternatives in high-quality water resources? (pg ES-14)

The MPCA’s IBI index is a way to measure the general region wide or state wide differences in surface water quality across Minnesota. It is mentioned in Chapter 5, but not used.

2462-21

Figure ES-5 is too small to read clearly in the published PDF; it is larger in the handout passed out at the Public Meetings. The legend for this figure is placed immediately to the right of SA-04, however, and diverts the eye from the small amounts of high quality surface waters crossed by SA-04. We request you place the legend below the figure.

2462-22

13 See Brave Heart, M.Y.H. (2011). Welcome to Takini’s historical trauma. Historical Trauma. Retrieved from <http://historicaltrauma.com/>” Historical trauma describes multigenerational trauma experienced by American Indians because of continuous subjection to trauma, poverty, dislocation, war, as cumulative and collective

Will the proposed Project damage forests and wildlife habitat in northern Minnesota far more than any other alternatives? (pg ES-15)

The reader is left to wonder why there isn't a table similar to Table ES-2 for this section. For example, based on the words used in the section:

2462-23

Applicant Preferred Route	SA-04	Rail
Permanently affects more land cover & habitat of all CN alternatives	Would fragment less habitat
Greatest long term major effects, primarily in forests of all CN alternatives
Most sensitive vegetation categories of all alternatives		Also most sensitive vegetation categories
Most MN Biological Survey Sites of Biodiversity Significance of all CN alternatives
Most MN Wildlife Action Network Species in Greatest Conservation Need of all Alternatives
Half as many construction short term impacts on Ag Land;	Twice as many short term construction impacts on Ag land;
75% in existing corridors	100% in existing corridors

But instead of this table there is a figure showing the effect of two routes, and transport by train and truck on prime farmland and forests, showing SA-04 with the highest impact in bright orange! First of all, the question asked in this section is not about prime farmland but forests and wildlife habitat. Secondly, the chart cherry-picks the only data mentioned in this section that legitimately shows SA-04 in a less favorable light and is NOT representative of the words in this section. The comments on acreage are irrelevant since the DOC choose to analyze SA-04 over four states while the Applicant Preferred Route is only analyzed from a tiny slice of North Dakota to a tiny slice of Wisconsin – basically just the Minnesota acreage. Figure ES-6 is misleading as it does not represent the majority of the significant impacts in this section. The legend is difficult to read and the figure does not reflect the majority of the accompanying text in the section.

Will shipping the oil by rail or truck affect the movement of other commodities and pose safety risks? (pg ES-16)

This section fails to cite any analysis of whether the crude oil to be transported on new Line 3 is needed by the Minnesota or Superior refineries. It implies all the oil on Line 3 needs to be transported to, or through Clearbrook and Superior. This section ignores the 70,000 bpd, on average, that are supplied to the Minnesota refineries by a pipeline other than the Mainline Pipelines, according to reports filed by NDPL at FERC.

2462-24

The section fails to cite any analysis of routes that might be taken through the state if needed. The Keystone XL Final EIS cited routes through Rainy River to Superior, for example.

This section assumes all trucks and trains, if any, would go through Minnesota, instead of using more direct routes, especially if the oil was intended for Canadian refineries along the St Lawrence Seaway, or the Gulf Coast.

This section fails to acknowledge the extensive capital improvements made by railroad companies operating in Minnesota since 2014 to relieve congestion.

This section fails to mention the amount of oil spilled by rail and truck is much smaller than by pipeline, as would be shown by a corrected Figure ES-4, and that Canadian heavy oil or a mixture called railbit or neatbit is much less flammable than the Bakken train explosions we have all seen and wish to avoid. The Parkers Prairie bitumen spill in 2013 was an example of a Canadian oil by rail spill where the oil was so thick, the PCA reported it could be rolled up like carpeting. 2462-26 cont.

This section fails to mention the increased cost of shipping by rail or truck, and the economics of the Canadian oil industry in recovering the costs of extraction and transportation in a highly competitive market. Refineries on the Gulf Coast have a choice of where to purchase their feedstock, and shipments of oil can be sourced from Venezuela, Mexico or other countries. Movement by truck would be prohibitively expensive due to the human labor cost and the cost of all the trucks. This is not a reasonable alternative. 2462-27

This section also fails to mention some shippers will use oil by rail for their own reasons, such as for less complex refineries that need raw bitumen to make asphalt and do not have the facilities to process the diluted bitumen transported by pipeline. In a free market, all forms of transportation will be used, and because rail is faster, more flexible, keeps the oil from intermixing with other oils during transit, and avoids using storage in Superior, Illinois and Cushing, OK, oil by rail has a market niche. Small amounts of crude oil have been transported by rail from Canada for a number of years despite availability on the Enbridge Mainline system; apparently oil by rail is meeting a market need for some shippers.

This section also does not mention the decline in coal rail shipments that would have the effect of reducing congestion on the rails. This decline has occurred as coal plants, such as Black Dog and High Prairie have closed, and the trend will continue with the replacement of Sherco 1 and 2.

What are the implications of greenhouse gases and climate change? (pg ES-17)

The statement “All GHG emissions contribute to cumulative climate change, so all of the alternatives would play a role in global climate change” demonstrates a lack of 2462-28 consideration of potential decommissioning of the existing Line 3 pipeline in the event that a replacement is not built. 2462-28 cont.

Direct and Indirect Emissions

Table ES-3 should either be updated to include lifecycle impacts as a separate column, or clearly note immediately next to the graph that all listed carbon tonnages and social costs are in addition to the lifecycle emissions that the DEIS describes in Chapter 5. Without these lifecycle numbers listed in the Executive Summary (including the potential $287 billion social cost of carbon), it is easy for the reader to mistake the indirect carbon costs for the lifecycle costs. Minnesota has multiple policies in effect that encourage policymakers to weigh the overall carbon impact of projects heavily, and since the lifecycle impacts are part of this total, making an overview of this information available in the Executive Summary is a must. 2462-29

A social cost of carbon with a minimum timeframe of 60 years must be added to all climate categories. Enbridge is currently operating pipelines that are over 60 years old, and the DEIS lists 30 years as the project's minimum expected life. An honest report of impacts for policymakers and the public demands that they be presented with more than just the minimum potential climate costs. 2462-30

Page ES-18 notes that "An increase in the availability of options for transport via pipeline, for example, could lower the overall cost of transporting crude oil to market, thereby improving its market prospects." This is a critical point that should not be constrained to the climate change analysis section – it is relevant in alternatives analysis and multiple other sections as well. 2462-32

The U.S. State Department EIS for the Keystone XL pipeline, for example, found that tar sands oil was uneconomical to extract without further pipeline capacity when oil prices were under $70/barrel, which they are as of this writing. Since this is a subject for which actual data does exist (both historical extraction relative to market performance as well as several analyses of the viability of tar sands under different oil market scenarios), the speculation here is inappropriate and should be replaced by an analysis of the likelihood of extraction at all under various market conditions.

This analysis must be incorporated into all climate change sections as well as the alternatives analysis.

The Effects of Climate Change on the Project (pg ES-19)

The statement “Primary impacts of climate change on the Project include severe weather, freeze-thaw cycles, and flooding, all of which could damage project facilities.” is illogical and immoral to assess these climate impacts on the pipeline project but not the residents of Minnesota. The pipeline’s contributions to climate change by facilitating the increased transportation of tar sands oil are of far more importance to society as a whole than the effect of climate change on the pipeline.

ABANDONMENT

“Although removing the pipeline is potentially desirable, abandonment is easier and far less risky” is a severe oversimplification when presented with no time component – with abandonment, the balance of risks becomes more severe over time, and this must be clearly described.

2462-34

The distance between Line 3 and other pipelines in the corridor is greater than 10-15 feet in many cases, per Enbridge’s own data and measurements conducted by landowners. Often, the spacing is over 30 ft. The number as presented in the DEIS is inaccurate. In addition, it should be noted that the current Line 13 was installed in between Lines 1 & 2 in some places at a distance of 10-15 ft on either side, showing that it is possible to undertake heavy construction activities at that kind of proximity if the company chooses.

2462-35

What are the advantages of removing the old pipeline from the corridor, abandoning it in place, or removing the old pipeline and installing a new one in the same trench?

(pg ES-21)

Landowners and tribal nations should have the option of removing or retaining the pipe on their land.

Which route option would result in the least habitat loss, habitat fragmentation, and loss of timber resources? (pg ES-27)

Habitat Loss

The Executive Summary is blatantly misleading in the answer to the question “Which Route option would result in the least habitat loss, habitat fragmentation and loss of timber resources?” (pg 27) when it states: “The greatest effect would be on 631 acres of previously forested areas within the permanent right-of-way for the Applicant’s preferred route.” This is apparently taken from Table 6.2.1-2, but the total number 672 should have been used, rather than 631, according to the table, since 631 refers only to the stretch between Clearbrook and Carlton.

2462-36

In any case, the numbers on this chart refer to operational impacts from the pipeline. Nowhere in the Executive Summary are construction impacts listed, which according to Section 5.2.3.3.1 are 1,544 acres deciduous forest and/or 2,202 acres of forested upland and wetland vegetation. Recovery could take up to 50 years for full recovery, according to chapter 5. The correct answer to loss of timber resources is double what is stated in the Executive Summary.

2462-37

Chapter 1 Comments

Introduction comments

We repeat our earlier footnoted comment of the misleading use of the number 760,000 in the sentence “Enbridge’s proposed new 36-inch-diameter pipeline would be capable of carrying up to 760,000 barrels of Canadian heavy crude oil per day” when the steel that will be used is capable of carrying up to 915,000 barrels of heavy Canadian crude per day, according to Enbridge’s own Application for Certificate of Need. This extra carrying capacity would exceed the original design capacity of the existing Line 3.

2462-38

Also in this section, the draft EIS states the Enbridge Proposal is generally referred to as the “Line 3 Project” rather than the “Line 3 Replacement Project”, but we note that the Executive Summary contains only two references to the former and multiple references to the latter, in every Footer. Footers throughout the entire EIS used the Enbridge preferred phrasing. We take exception to the idea that this project is mere replacement, since the pipe diameter is larger, it is proposed to be routed in a new corridor for about half its length, and it will facilitate the transportation of a new kind of oil than the line has been carrying for years. We ask that you use the consistent wording “Line 3 Project” rather than the “Line 3 Replacement Project”, and not confuse the public with different terminology.

2462-39

Purpose Of and Need for This EIS Is To Inform both Regulators and Citizens

In our comments to the Executive Summary, we noted the purpose of the EIS by Administrative Rules 4410.0300 and 4410.2000 Subp. 1 is threefold: to inform the Commission, the public and the Applicant, rather than as stated “the purpose of and need for this Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) is primarily to help inform the Commission’s decisions..”(pg 1-1)

The purpose of an EIS to inform the Applicant is also omitted from the sentence in this section stating “The EIS is a factual document that is designed to inform public deliberations and government decision-making...” (pg 1-1)

EIS Focuses on Information That is Directly Relevant To the CN and Route Decisions

The draft EIS states “During the scoping process for this EIS, commenters raised a number of critical long-term energy-policy and tribal rights issues that do not easily fit within the framework of a project-specific EIS. Some of these issues are too broad to be resolved in this EIS, which is intended to facilitate decision-making on a single, specific pipeline proposal.” We think the long-term energy policy and tribal rights issues are exactly relevant to the decision making on this pipeline, and to exclude these issues from the scope is critically misguided. They are important enough for the drafters of the EIS to mention. To look at projects in isolation with blinders on as to related cumulative effects is against MEPA law and is immoral in this era of rapidly advancing Climate change and acknowledged historical trauma to our native American populations.

2462-40

These blatant omissions of energy policy, even what is currently happening in the industry (bankruptcies, transfer of ownership of the tar sands fields, declaration of stranded assets) and tribal rights issues are not even mentioned the Executive Summary and we request that the omissions be mentioned there.

Section 1.1 APPLICANT’S PROPOSAL AND REQUIRED APPROVALS

This section lists the private project proposer’s commercial and economic needs. It fails to list the public purpose for which the right of eminent domain should be allowed by the State of Minnesota. The parent of the Applicant, Enbridge, Inc is not a US Corporation, but a foreign one, and the requests to ship oil are increasingly becoming requests from foreign corporations to ship foreign oil across our state for ultimate export.

Section 1.2

We repeat our comments from the Executive Summary that the cited number 2.9 million bpd for transportation of oil is overstated and misleading. According to the 2016 Form 6 year-end report Enbridge filed with the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC), the Mainline system shipped 2.5 million barrels per day across the international border, and shipped 2.3 million barrels a day from Clearbrook to Superior WI. The FERC data is readily available to the Department, at www.ferc.gov.

2462-42

Correction: Line 3 is one of seven pipelines, not six, in the Mainline System through Minnesota.

2462-43

It is incorrect to state the Enbridge Mainline System supplies approximately 400,000 barrels of oil per day to Minnesota's petroleum refineries. It would be more accurate to say 300,000 bpd than 400,000. At MN350, we track the FERC Form 6 and Form 6Q filed by Enbridge, North Dakota Pipeline Companies and Minnesota Pipeline Companies. This information is publicly available and would have been available to the drafters of the EIS.

2462-44

On their 2106 Year End FERC report, Enbridge reported approximately 300,000 barrels per day (bpd) were transferred from the Enbridge Mainline system (primarily Canadian but could also be some Bakken oil) and 70,000 from the North Dakota Pipeline Company (Bakken oil) to the Minnesota Pipeline Company (MPL). The Executive Summary concerns a pipeline that is part of the Mainline system, so it is important to be clear that only $\frac{3}{4}$ of what the DOC estimated is actually being transferred from the mainline system to MPL. A reader of this chapter might well infer the 400,000 bpd cited was all transported on the Enbridge Mainline system from Canada, which is not true.

As noted in this section, there are seven pipelines delivering oil into Clearbrook. There is no supporting evidence that Line 3 specifically delivers any significant quantity of oil to the Minnesota refineries. Instead there is evidence to the contrary. In the Alberta Clipper two capacity increases, the Applicant filed Applications for Certificates of Need and had charts showing the amount of heavy oil delivered to the Minnesota refineries. In the Enbridge Energy, Limited Partnership MN PUC Application dated June 2013, Docket No. PL-9/CN-13-153, Section 7853.0510 Page 3, Table 7853.0510-1-D.1, "Average Daily Volumes delivered in-state" consistently show annual overwhelmingly heavy oil deliveries as opposed to the light crude that Line 3 has been transporting. Enbridge's "Pipeline System Configuration" annual chart, found on their website, lists Line 3 as transporting lightweight petroleum products since 2012.

The Enbridge Mainline System Was Constructed between 1950 and 1969

The EIS does not inform decision makers as to whether Line 3 has been looped as well. The EIS does not discuss how much of Line 3 or any connected loops are constructed of new steel. The reader has no way of knowing whether “old Line 3” could be taken out of service and just newer already constructed loops could be used in its place. Also, we have not been given any information on whether Enbridge has other pipeline loop sections, off of other mainline pipelines that could be used to fashion a new line 3 in many sections. Citizens within MN350 have been told of Line 4 loops, for example.

1.3 Environmental Review comments

The Commission Must Understand and Consider Impacts of Their CN and Routing Decisions

We take exception to the statement that “The Commission has ordered DOC-EERA to prepare an EIS in accordance with Minnesota Administrative Rules Chapter 4410 to provide this information.” (pg 1-4) Actually the Order lists the MEPA Statute as well. “Consequently the Commission will authorize the preparation of an EIS under Minn. Stat. ch. 116D and Minn. R. ch. 4410 that addresses environmental issues pertaining to the need docket as well as the routing docket.”¹⁴

2462-47

This section correctly points out the Commission must make their decision in a framework with adherence to both MEPA and the Administrative Rules (7853.0130). However, this section does not point out that these two are essentially in conflict. MEPA requires utmost protection of the environment while the Administrative Rules are written so that a Certificate of Need shall be granted IF denial will have adverse effects on economic needs, a more reasonable and prudent alternative has not be demonstrated... If consequences to society of granting are not better than denial, and if failure to comply with 14 Commission Order Joining Need and Routing Dockets, February 1, 2016, eDockets Number 20162-117877-01.

rules, policies and regulations cannot be shown (these rules have been paraphrased). MEPA is statute however, and statutes trump Adm Rules. The EIS does not inform the Commission on how to navigate these two seemingly conflicting guidelines.

This EIS Evaluates Impacts and Alternatives for the CN Decision Using Applicable Criteria

We object to the phrase in point 2. “Use of alternative pipeline systems (pg 1-5) , when in the Executive Summary (pg ES-4) “use of other pipelines” and “System Alternative SA – 04 “are distinct, separate alternatives listed, yet they seem to be combined here.

2462-48

The EIS Also Evaluates Proposed and Alternative Routes, Contingent on CN Approval

We agree that a “common set of facts” (pg 1-5) is the goal, and that is why we are submitting our comments.

1.4 OVERARCHING POLICY ISSUES

Larger Energy Policy Issues Are Beyond the Scope of This EIS

This section implies no consultant was hired to help complete this EIS, but we believe Cardno was hired to assist. Also, we would like the sections essentially drafted by Enbridge identified.

2462-49

The EIS Does Not Determine Need for this Project

The system alternative SA-04 relies upon the discussion of the economic need for this project to be routed through Clearbrook and Superior as defined by Enbridge. Also, the consideration of alternative means of transport depends on a need discussion. Is there any purpose in routing trains thru Clearbrook or Superior for example if little to no oil is needed at that location? The whole alternative scenarios of trains or trucks is all dependent on whether the oil is even needed at those locations.

The quantity of trucks or trains is also assumed to be at the level of the new proposed Line 3 maximum pipeline capacity. If there is no need for this level of oil, these alternatives and all the calculations re emissions, etc are incorrect.

2462-50

1.4.1.2 Need for Fossil Fuels

“Comprehensive Policy-Level Assessment of Fossil Fuels in Our Society and Associated Tribal Rights Issues is Beyond the Scope of an EIS for a Single Pipeline”

We strongly disagree with the position taken by the draft version of the EIS “While the need for the proposed pipeline with the proposed throughput capacity is an issue for the Commission, this EIS will not assess the Project need.”¹⁵ Pipelines are normally evaluated by the Commission as single pipelines, yet their effect is cumulative. They enable and facilitate the extraction of new additional carbon resources from the ground while society puts more and more crude and/or refined products into storage. It is the responsibility of our state to “discourage unsound aspects of our population, economic and technological growth, and to develop and implement a policy such that growth occurs only in an environmentally acceptable manner”.¹⁶ It is also written into our laws to “practice thrift in the use of energy and maximize the use of energy efficient systems for the utilization of energy, and minimize the environment impact from energy production and use” and to “minimize wasteful and unnecessary depletion of nonrenewable resources.”¹⁷

The same statute notes it is the policy of the state government “to use all practical means and measures” to do these things, and this EIS does not live up to that law. This heavy oil from Canada is a wasteful depletion of water in the Athabasca river, destroys hundreds of acres of forest and carbon sink peat in northern Canada and requires huge amounts of resources to extract. A lot of the oil is so thick it must be thinned to transport by pipeline – by diluent which is then returned back to Canada. Or alternatively the thick petroleum coke is removed in Canada. Either way this oil is far more carbon intensive than oil from other sources.

While we appreciate and agree with the Human rights listed, we note that MEPA lists rights as well, right in our Minnesota Laws:

Protection from pollution, impairment, or destruction, preservation and enhancement of

- Air
- Water
- Land
- And other natural resources
- And a right to expect our legislature to create and maintain conditions under which human beings and nature can exist in productive harmony in order for present and future generations¹⁸

Chapter 2 Project Description Comments

The draft EIS contains no overall indication of the massive size of this project relative to other construction projects in MN. The applicant is requesting the PUC authorize a 750 foot corridor for 340 miles for their preferred corridor. The Applicant indicates this would impact 5,443 acres in MN, and this estimate is likely underestimated.

2462-51

The 750 foot corridor is confusing to the public. This is equivalent to the width of two football fields. It is not clear if tree clearing would take place on this wide swath, or what would happen if they decided to redo the 120 foot wide corridor if they found a nesting eagle or some other resource they wished to avoid. Please clarify what would happen to the 750 foot corridor after the permanent right of way was initially established. It is not clear whether landowners know of this huge corridor. How long would Enbridge remain in possession of this corridor? Until the last pipe is laid or when a section was completed?

¹⁸ § Chapter 116B.01

And how would possession of this extra wide corridor affect their ability to expand the corridor in the future? Would it give them some rights over the land in the future?

Section 2.1 Comments

Comments on “The Project Would Replace an Aging Pipeline and Increase Throughput”

We object to the word replace in the draft EIS. The project as proposed would not merely replace an aging pipeline, but build a new larger pipeline in a new location for about half its old route and leave the old one in place. The phrase “Line 3 replacement pipeline” is used 110 times in this chapter. Clearly the Applicant wants to frame it that way, while we request the reality that it is a bigger diameter pipeline that will hold more oil, in a new corridor for over half its route, carrying a much heavier kind of oil and leaving the old line in the ground makes it a new pipeline, not a replacement line.

We object to the stated 30 year lifetime of the pipeline on pg 5; it should be at least as long as the age of the existing pipelines – 60 years.

2462-53

Figure 2.1-1 has two errors in the yellow insert showing the pipelines coming into Superior – neither Line 65 nor SPP is a pipeline going into Superior. Also we note the Mississippi river and its crossing of the pipeline routes is not drawn on this map while we note the words Minnesota for the Minnesota river are just visible and in a larger font.

2462-54

The DEIS does not mention whether this is the largest (by acreage) construction project ever proposed for Minnesota. The Executive Summary is missing informing the PUC of the extent of this project. 172 new roads is a large impact (pg 13) and will surely affect ground water movement and spur new home and cabin construction, bringing people into the area. While the area now is relatively unpopulated, that could definitely change in the life of a pipeline, just as the population of the mainline corridor towns changed from 1949 to the present. And yet when the existing corridor is compared to Enbridge's preferred corridor, human population density is compared today – not as it might look 50 years from now – the life of a pipeline. Who will pay for improvements to these new roads 60 years out if they are left in the ground after the pipeline - county taxpayers?

Cathodic protection would be installed up to a year after the construction, which would cause more disturbance for the landowner.

On page 18, the Applicant states in the DEIS that they will have seven simultaneous building sites. Page 20 references unspecified "third party monitors" without authority to stop construction, but they "do submit daily reports ... to Enbridge and agencies! (pg 2-20) The independent monitors need the authority to both stop construction if they see improper activity and the ability to communicate to the agencies without first notifying the applicant. And yet when the existing corridor is compared to Enbridge's preferred corridor, human population density is compared today – not as it might look 50 years from now – the life of a pipeline. The MN Office of Pipeline Safety doesn't have enough inspectors to oversee this project. This point should be noted in the Executive Summary.

On page 20, the statement concerns us that only 21 Enbridge inspectors will have authority to stop work due to violations. This is akin to the fox guarding the hen house. Does this mean that our MOPS State employees will have no capacity to stop construction, only levy fines? And the fact that the draft EIS has absolutely no mention of penalties is also a concern. Page 21 states topsoil and trench soil will be segregated only if the permit requires it. Will landowners be notified ahead of time and have the option to request otherwise?

Page 24 has a reference to the use of herbicides that may be used. In this day of declining pollinators, this is not good for our planet. Also we are aware the chipped woody material that will be put into the top soil without added nitrogen. Decomposition of that material will rob the soil of nitrogen.

We also note Enbridge seeks a waiver of the state law requiring a pipe cover of 54 inches, instead preferring 48 inches. Many landowners are bothered by the heaving of the pipes from the ground in the existing corridor. The DEIS says landowners can request the deeper depth and also have top soil and trench soil segregated. Were they informed of this when they signed the contract? Many details depend on landowner agreements, many of which are already signed; were landowners informed of their choices and our state statutes?

We are concerned about the massive number of trees that will be removed, and the massive amount of soil that will be moved. What is the carbon footprint of the tree loss and the soil removal?

Continuing on Page 24, the EIS states this new pipeline will transport 65% heavy crude oil, including dilbit and heavy tar sands crudes. That would leave 35% or 266,000 bpd for light oil. That is less than is being reported as being transported on the existing Line 3 now. The draft EIS does not address the decline in light oil transport, although the draft EIS implies the Minnesota refineries use Line 3 oil. The EIS should address how such a needed commodity (the light crude being transported now on Line 3) can have such a decreased demand in the future.

The DEIS refers to a “Enterprise Emergency Response Team”. Will this team be from Minnesota or out of state? (pg 42)

The draft EIS also cites a huge water impact – 11 to 17 million gallons times seven (120 gallons) needed for hydrostatic testing before the pipeline is used. No commitments are made by the Applicant as to the source of this water. The water will be obtained from public, private wells and surface and ground water – depends on the permit and discharged somewhere else. Enbridge has had multiple discharge violations in the past – 18 on the Alberta Clipper alone.

Chapter 3 Comments

The statement “As a result, states regulate the routing and construction of oil pipelines through a variety of approvals, permits, and licenses.... the route permit determines where it should be located” implies the state has some say in the route location. But the reality is the state has accepted every route submitted by the various pipeline companies. The applicant suggests one route and the PUC has accepted it. This is hardly the state determining where it should be located. This is the time for the state to really analyze the best corridor through our state should one be needed.

The Administrative rules have equal weight. No one is more important than the other, and in fact, MEPA requires a decision to be based not on economic reasons alone. Yet the reality is Administrative Rule 7853.0130 A) is improperly elevated above all others. Yet we see on page 4, “Under these criteria, the Commission would first consider the underlying economic drivers for the proposed pipeline. If denying the CN would adversely affect the future adequacy, reliability, or efficiency of energy supply, the Commission would consider the EIS’s analysis of the advantages and disadvantages of alternative ways of addressing these issues.” [emphasis added]

On Page 6 of the chapter, potential impacted resources are listed: “Human settlement, existence and density of populated areas, existing and planned future land use, and management plans” As the life of a pipeline is 60 years or more, human settlement today cannot be a driver. The four counties of Hubbard, Cass, Aitken, Crow Wing are projected to be the fastest growing in MN in the future.

The Department of Commerce and the PUC continue to ignore the differing starting positions of MEPA (protect the environment) and the administrative Rules 7853.0130 (a Certificate of Need will be granted unless...).

Chapter 4 Comments

The DEIS acknowledges at the top of this chapter that the Minnesota Environmental Policy Act requires that the EIS, the Certificate of Need, and the route permit compare only reasonable alternatives (4.1). The most egregious failure of the DEIS to produce reasonable alternatives to the proposed project is that this analysis neglects an obvious alternative to the proposed route: an alternative called “No Pipeline at All”. The DEIS is required to have a “No Action Alternative”, and it is not appropriate that the continued operation of a failing, 55 year-old Line 3 would suffice as the “No-Action” option (4.2.2). A pipeline that is predicted to spill an average of once every four years seems somehow better when pitted against a multi-billion dollar trucking fleet, or thousands of new and combustible rail cars. The option of phasing out Line 3 has been advocated by thousands of citizens and must be studied. It is also the most consistent with Minnesota’s climate change mitigation goals.

Additionally, renewable energy such as wind and solar was not considered as an alternative. If the premise is that we have to move this oil and these alternatives are just the various ways to do it, the premise is misleading. The economy is currently experiencing a glut of oil. Renewable energy systems are the real alternative.

By Truck and By Rail Are Not Reasonable Alternatives

Some of the route alternatives to the Applicant’s Preferred Route seem intentionally unreasonable. These are improbable ideas that will make Enbridge’s proposal seem better, and which will give the illusion that alternatives have been explored. But the case of the historic Keystone XL denial should be considered as a precedent for what actually happens when a pipeline does not get approved. When the Keystone XL pipeline was denied, no oil by rail terminal was built at the international border. Today’s oil prices are too low to sustain growth in the tar sands region of Canada. Exxon Mobil has admitted that they have $3.4 billion dollars in Tar Sands oil fields that are not economically viable assets on their books in the current low-price environment. Since 2012, the write-downs from Statoil ASA, Royal Dutch Shell PLC, Total SA companies, and other Canadian producers have exceeded $20 billion. The price of oil has fallen from more than $100 per barrel in 2014 to around $50 per barrel in 2017.

Oil by Rail

Oil by rail is revealed as a completely unviable alternative when the DEIS estimates a cost of one billion dollars for the new tank cars required (4.2.6, page 14). The rail alternative also assumes a Clearbrook to Superior corridor, which assumes all this oil must be transported through those two towns. (4.2.6, page 10). When discussing oil by rail, there is no statement about the percentage of diluents that would be used in that scenario. (Table 4.2-5, Page 13). Rain requires less diluent to transport crude. This could significantly change the volume of product to be moved. The math used to reach that volume in 4.2.6, on page 13, is dubious and strange. Oil would be carried in a train of 110 tank cars, each holding up to 800 barrels. $110 \text{ cars} \times 800 \text{ barrels} = 88,000 \text{ barrels of oil per train}$. The text reads that “oil by rail would require 10 loaded unit trains per day”, and $10 \text{ trains} \times 88,000 \text{ barrels per train} = 880,000 \text{ barrels}$. However, Table 4.2-5 uses the figure of only 760,000 barrels a day. It is not perfectly clear whether the tank cars would intentionally be filled less than their capacity of 800 barrels, and if so, why. To arrive at a figure of 760,000 barrels per day on 10 loaded unit trains, each tank car would have closer to 690 barrels in it, rather than 800.

By Truck

Oil by truck is revealed as a completely unviable alternative when it is revealed that transporting the oil would require 4,000 truck trips a day, at a cost of $2.4 billion dollars for only five years. That cost would be repeated over the lifespan of the project (4.2.7, page 17). The trucking alternative described in section 4.2.7 outlines purchasing a new fleet of trucks (and then replacing that entire fleet every five years) to make 4,000 trips per day in order to transport the oil across the state of Minnesota, while maintaining pipeline transportation outside Minnesota. This is absurd and unrealistic. It cannot be a serious alternative to pipeline transportation of oil

Apples to Oranges

There are areas throughout the DEIS where the comparisons made between alternatives do not make sense. SA-04 is frequently cited as being longer than the APR, and therefore as having greater negative impact. However, the DEIS does not account for the fact that the oil delivered by the APR will then have to continue from Wisconsin to Illinois. In fact, the distance from the international border to Illinois is the same whether SA-04 is used or the APR and then Line 61 through Wisconsin (about 1,551 miles). The DEIS does not compare apples to apples, which is inappropriate for a fair and accurate analysis. The DEIS should either have a Minnesota-to-Minnesota comparison, or an International border-to-Illinois comparison.

2462-57

We note MEPA's requirements for connected actions, like pipelines downstream of Superior, were consistently ignored in the scoping of this document and now in the DEIS. Administrative rules 4410.0200 Subp. 9c. state:

“Connected actions. Two projects are "connected actions" if a responsible governmental unit determines they are related in any of the following ways:

- A. one project would directly induce the other;
- B. one project is a prerequisite for the other and the prerequisite project is not justified by itself; or
- C. neither project is justified by itself.”

The oil transported by Line 3 does not remain in Superior. It is transported south and or east on other pipelines. Increasing the flow of oil in Line 3 will require additional pipeline capacity out of Superior. So following MEPA requirements should have included downstream impacts.

Missing or Inaccurate Information in Chapter 4

1. Line 67 is listed as operating at 570,000 bpd, which has not been accurate for a long time (4.2.4)
2. How is it possible that “The probability of an incident leading to a crude oil release would also be similar for a smaller diameter pipeline”? (4.2.10, page 20) A smaller diameter pipeline would presumably mean less oil per day, or at least a different amount of pressure. This assumption comes at the end of the section and reads like an afterthought. 2462-59 cont.

3. The section on pipeline removal and replacement makes the bold claim that Line three is in the middle of a multi-pipeline corridor, “where the pipelines are spaced from 10 to 15 feet apart” (4.3.4.3). There are no qualifiers to suggest that in only some particular areas, the pipelines are that close. The wording strongly implies that the pipelines are 10 to 15 feet apart for the whole corridor, which is simply untrue (See comment on Chapter 8: Abandonment, 8.3.1, 8.4.1).

Conclusion

In summary of these concerns, each alternative seems intentionally framed to make the APR look best: Transportation by Rail and Transportation by Truck are the red herrings, Continued Use of Existing Line 3 is not an honest No-Build scenario, Existing Line 3 Supplemented by Rail and by Truck are processes not well-described and not reasonable, and route SA-04 is measured as a much longer distance than the Applicant’s Preferred Route, which conveniently does not measure an entire length of the APR from Wisconsin to Illinois. The bulk of this information on route alternatives suggests that they are wild and improbable. All these gross cost and impact assessments become both a filler and a misleading suggestion that the pipeline will be the only viable option. Not all alternatives are investigated equally here. The risk is calculated in miniscule year-to-year numbers, and the assessment describes Enbridge as an upstanding company with state-of-the-art equipment, while not disclosing their history of malfeasance; all to suggest that there is only one real option here.

Chapter 5 Comments:

If ever there were chapters that violated MEPA laws to be analytical and not encyclopedic, Chapters 5 and 6 would take top honors. Chapter §116D.04 states “The environmental impact statement shall be an analytical rather than an encyclopedic document which describes the proposed action in detail, analyzes its significant environmental impacts, discusses appropriate alternatives to the proposed action and their impacts, and explores methods by which adverse environmental impacts of an action could be mitigated.” The inclusion of especially unbelievable alternatives like thousands of trucks crossing through Minnesota didn’t help.

The EIS must eliminate non-viable alternatives and clearly explain in a spreadsheet or a chart the impacts of the Applicant’s Preferred route and SA-04 versus the no build options.

Lack of Consideration of Scoping Comments:

120 million gallons for hydrostatic testing, with water moved from its source to its disposal is a huge amount, with no discussion of wells drying up in parts of Minnesota, the potential spread of aquatic invasive species, and Enbridge’s 18 violations when the Alberta Clipper was constructed. MN350 submitted comments in the scoping document re these violations, but fails to see even a mention of them here. We repeat our comments here:

Previous Enbridge violations of rules for the discharge of contaminated water used in hydrostatic pressure testing of pipelines, such as occurred during the original Alberta Clipper installation and the Line 6B (Michigan) replacement, must be cited in the EIS and independent monitoring must be proposed to try to ensure such violations do not re-occur. In 2013, Enbridge paid a $425,000 fine to avoid litigation over 15 discharges in 2010 which violated its discharge permit, including one that flowed into the Mississippi. “The reason that it’s concerning, I’d say, is the sheer number of violations,”¹⁹ said Kevin Reuther, legal director of St. Paul-based Minnesota Center for Environmental Advocacy... “It’s as if Enbridge wasn’t even trying to comply with its water discharge permit ... that it’s cheaper to cause whatever environmental damage they want and pay a fine later.”²⁰ Also in 2013, a similar incident was discovered during Line 6B replacement in Michigan, when self-reporting by Enbridge of violations did not occur.ⁱ

We also noted the following information regarding the Clearbrook terminal:

The external floating roof storage tanks at the existing Clearbrook terminal are subject to New Source Performance Standards (NSPS) in 40 CFR 60 Subpart Kb, “Standards of Performance for Volatile Organic Liquid Storage Vessels.” Subpart Kb regulates VOC emissions and establishes controls based on the vapor pressure of the stored liquid. The Clearbrook terminal currently operates under a minor source Option A Registration Permit, which is a state of Minnesota permit, solely because an NSPS applies and no federal or state permitting thresholds are exceeded (i.e., applicability to NSPS Subpart Kb requires a State air permit under Minn. R. 7007.0250). The increased throughput associated with the Applicant’s preferred route would cause potential emissions of VOCs at the Clearbrook terminal that exceed the 100-tons-per-year major source threshold, triggering a Title V operating permit. The Applicant would obtain a synthetic-minor individual state permit in order to limit VOC emissions and retain status as a minor source (Enbridge 2016a). {emphasis added} We would like to be informed on how a “minor individual state permit” would limit VOC emissions. It seems like operations would have to be changed to limit emissions and not the mere process of taking out a permit.

Chapter 5.2.7 (Air Quality)

At MN350, we are particularly concerned with the rise in greenhouse gases. “Based on overwhelming scientific evidence, EPA found that GHGs were responsible for contributing to climate change which results in a threat to public health and welfare. Specifically, the impacts of climate change that will cause harm to human health and welfare of current and future generations include but are not limited to increased drought; more heavy downpours and flooding; more frequent and intense heat waves and wildfires; greater sea level rise; more intense storms; and harm to water resources, agriculture, wildlife, and ecosystems (Center for Climate and Energy Solutions 2016).” (pg 432)

We note these sentences in the DEIS: “In 2014, approximately 76 percent of the United States’ GHG emissions were from fossil fuel combustion (EPA 2016e). Furthermore, fossil-fuel-fired power plants are the largest source of emissions, making up 31 percent of U.S. total GHG emissions (EPA 2016f).” (pg 432)

The DEIS found that the “social cost of carbon”-- an estimate of the financial burden on society due to increased climate change impacts -- of building the pipeline could be as high as $287 billion over a 30-year timespan (pg 443). Since 30 years is listed elsewhere in the DEIS as the expected minimum lifespan of the pipe, and Enbridge pipelines are in operation which are over 60 years old, assessing only 30 years of climate impacts is a gross underestimation of the real consequences of this project. The burden here falls especially on young people, who will only be middle-aged 30 years from now.

The EIS must include climate and cost modeling that assumes a 60-year lifespan or greater for the pipeline.

We ask that a “partial displacement” climate modeling scenario be included in the EIS in which the new Line 3 takes on the old Line 3’s oil while expanding by the proposed 370,000 additional barrels per day (bpd). The DEIS contains only “no displacement” and “full displacement” scenarios where the oil in the new line is either entirely in addition to existing flows or entirely offset by corresponding reductions on other pipelines (pg 442).

Given that the State of Minnesota has several existing laws and policies relating to greenhouse gas emissions (including, recently, Minnesota’s commitment to uphold the Paris Climate Agreement at the state level), this chapter should include an analysis of the project’s lifecycle carbon impacts in light of the targets set in these policies.

As noted earlier in these comments, any discussion of climate impacts or potential alternatives must consider the effect that pipeline construction has on development of new tar sands extraction capacity in Canada. For example, the State Department’s EIS for Keystone XL noted that expansion of extraction would not be economically viable without new pipeline capacity if the price of oil was below $70/barrel, which it is currently. Incorporating this analysis throughout the EIS would change this section dramatically, since the same amount of lifecycle impacts would not remain consistent across the project alternatives since some of them would make further extraction uneconomical.

Chapter 7 Comments:

It is somewhat concerning that there were only 2 citations for a 72 page section.

On page 4 of Chapter 7, the DEIS lists the current Line 67 (Alberta Clipper) flow rate to be 570,000 bpd, which is incorrect. Line 67 has been operating at close to 800,000 bpd since 2015, which draws into question many of the subsequent calculations in the DEIS.

Chapter 8 Comments:

Introduction

Chapter 8 of the DEIS is a terribly short 13 pages (out of a 5,547-page document) on the serious problem of whether to abandon, or to remove, the current Line 3. Minnesota does not have established procedures to ensure that Enbridge, rather than private and public landowners, will deal with the issues that result from this decision. The brevity of this chapter is likely in part due to the way it frequently cites other documents (from PHSMA, Chapters 5 and 6, CNEB), as if the decision-makers attempting to read this enormous DEIS will actually read through those documents, too. There are also numerous places where the analysis falls short, indicates a “need for further study”, or “impacts unknown”, and differs to Enbridge for a to-be-decided plan. The chapter provides a surprisingly cursory overview, given that pipeline abandonment is a major concern for many private landowners, as well as for the Leech Lake and Fond du Lac nations. Implicit in this discussion about the current Line 3 will be what to do with the next Line 3. Every single pipeline that is built in the United States will have to someday be retired. Knowing this fact, state governments and fossil fuel companies share a responsibility to adequately prepare for a nation veined with dead pipelines. The gravity of this problem should be reflected by a rigorous investigation; not by one chapter the length of a college term paper.

The following comment will address the failure of the DEIS to project into the future at an appropriate timescale, questions left unanswered in regards to abandonment, direct contradictions within the short chapter, and an astonishing amount of copy-and-paste language that indicates sloppy writing.

Option 1: Abandonment

Inappropriate Timescale

The oil is for now, but pipelines are forever. The first inadequacy of Chapter 8 is a neglect to plan for literal eons of pipeline abandonment. Table 8.3-1 is used to summarize, in explicitly hopeful words, the conclusion that there will be minimal impact on environmental resources in the “near term”. Near Term is defined as 40 years or fewer, which is a totally useless figure for this analysis. That table is misleading; we should be looking generations into the future! The impacts of abandonment are evaluated in this analysis based on the activities of disconnection, purging, sealing and monitoring; and also the available literature on how an abandoned pipe may interact with the surrounding environment. The DEIS repeatedly uses the phrase “long-term” in contrast to the “near term” (8.2) but does not ever actually define that length. Is it fifty years? One hundred years? One thousand years? If “indefinitely” really means forever, that raises more questions about how Enbridge will continue to monitor the pipeline “long term”. Section 8.3.1.1 acknowledges that given enough time, all the cathodic protection in the world will not stop this pipeline from decaying. So the solution to abandon “safely” is not ultimately feasible. Finally, it is a real challenge to name a single company that existed 1,000 years ago, and it is unlikely that Enbridge will continue business for 1,000 years more. So who will be responsible once they are dissolved or bankrupt? The DEIS seems to just accept Enbridge’s word that the pipe will be monitored “indefinitely” by the company, without seeking further clarity on what the consequences would be for the state, private landowners, or tribal nations when Enbridge eventually stops maintaining the pipe. The DEIS does not address these important questions, and instead frames the analysis in a timescale too short to be appropriate for decision-making of this magnitude

Unanswered Questions:

1. Can the pipe be cleaned out safely and effectively?

Next, there are some questions unanswered in the DEIS concerning the procedure for abandonment. Starting from the beginning, let’s look at cleaning out the pipe. The DEIS does not list the exact cleaning solutions that will be used to wipeout the abandoned pipeline, nor does it evaluate what will happen if those chemicals leech out into the environment through existing cracks and pinholes (8.3). The DEIS does state concern that Enbridge’s cleaning method has only been proven successful on a 12-mile stretch of pipe, while the existing Line 3 in Minnesota is 282 miles long. In direct quote from that section of the DEIS: “It is currently unknown whether Enbridge’s protocol works on a longer length of pipeline” (8.3.1.1), and we need to know about a length 23.5 times their tested pipe. This should sound an alarm. It is a critical piece of data to be included in the EIS, and the document will be incomplete without a better analysis. How can any person of the public or of the Minnesota government make a decision about pipeline abandonment, a decision that will literally be forever, without knowing if effective abandonment protocol is even possible?

Unanswered:

2. How much legacy contamination can we expect around the pipe?

A 2nd question mark is of how much undiscovered contamination exists around the pipeline, and what Enbridge's "Contaminated Sites Management Plan" will be (8.3.1.1.1). Given the fact that the existing Line 3 is acknowledged to be "weeping" oil, it is reasonable to assume that some oil has seeped into the surrounding environment over the decades of this pipeline's operation. The MPCA sites their concerns that the pipe may not be entirely cleaned out, that the coating of the pipeline will degrade into byproducts in the environment, that there may be past oil spills ("Brown Field") in the area that were never properly cleaned, and that there may be polychlorinated biphenyl (PCB) contamination to worry about (MPCA Scoping Comments, MPUC Docket No. PL-9/CN-14-916, PL-9/PPL-15-137, eDockets Docket No. 20159-114431-02, (Sept. 30, 2015)). All the DEIS divulges on this topic is that "Enbridge has indicated that it would develop" such a plan to manage the pollution. In another section on water contamination, the DEIS acknowledges that "additional segmentation locations require further study" (8.3.1.2). This issue needs to be taken more seriously, and needs to be addressed far ahead of time. The Environmental Impact Statement is the appropriate place for Enbridge to describe their plan, and the studies should be done before moving forward at all with a final EIS.

Unanswered:

3. What, exactly, will Enbridge do when pipe becomes exposed?

Third, Which of "a variety of mitigation measures" will Enbridge actually use to address the problem of abandoned pipe buoyancy? The vague promise that, "The primary mitigation measures are monitoring and adaptive management" is used as a blanket statement throughout this chapter. In a conflicting statement, the DEIS later acknowledges that "Enbridge's proposed abandonment plan for Line 3 in Minnesota does not explicitly discuss buoyancy." The section 8.3.1.4 (Page 10) suggests a number of tactics that Enbridge may use to address exposed pipeline, “including weights or engineered fill, placing additional cover over the pipeline and, in some circumstances, removing segments of the pipeline”. Each of these should have an environmental impact analysis. To start, if they choose to remove a section of the pipe, say, where a pipe has floated up in a body of water, won’t that destroy the ability to conduct cathodic protection on the pipeline? Won’t the rest of the pipe corrode after that? Does engineered fill disrupt the electric current, and what is the “fill” made of, anyway? If that “fill” leaks, what damage will it do on the surrounding environment? This section is astounding in its complete reliance on Enbridge to just come up with a plan later.

Unanswered:

4. What, exactly, will Enbridge do with contaminated sites?

It is laughable how often the impact statement puts trust in the industry: “Enbridge has indicated that it would develop a contaminated sites management plan to identify, manage, and mitigate historically contaminated soils and waters. Any existing contamination discovered (...) could be remediated in accordance with this plan” (8.4.1). What plan, where?? Seriously: What is this plan? It is unacceptable that Enbridge would not have already submitted an action plan for the eventuality of oil, lubricants, and process chemicals left in the ground soil around the pipeline, and that the DEIS lets that slide.

Unanswered:

5. Which mitigation costs will Enbridge be responsible for?

8.3.1.5 admits that, “Costs for future site-specific mitigation measures (e.g. to mitigate subsidence or loss of buoyancy control) are uncertain and would depend on the nature of the mitigation measures.” While the immediate abandonment costs and annual monitoring costs are quantified, there is no estimate or commitment here for what Enbridge could be held responsible for in future mitigation and clean up. A return to the problem of timescale: If Enbridge is dissolved one thousand years from now, and the pipe collapses under a Minnesota highway, who will pay? It is also unclear whether Enbridge will reimburse landowners for plummeting property value, especially where there is exposed “buoyant” pipe. In fact, there is virtually no discussion of landowner rights in Chapter 8! This should be factored into the Human Impact estimates, because even in the “near term” of 40 years or fewer, land resale value can be expected to drop where there is pipeline. That is a mitigation cost, no?

Contradictions

There are multiple direct contradictions, even within such a short chapter, about the anticipated impacts of abandonment on the natural environment. Many of these contradictions seem due to the sharp contrast in accounts of what will happen to the pipeline near-term and long-term. This comment contests that there is no good reason to evaluate the near-term effects; that this analysis should focus on the longer view. The near-term analysis produces hopeful estimates that oppose the more grave possibilities of the future, causing a general confusion of statements. These confusions will be outlined here:

1. Legacy Contamination. On the one hand, there is the section titled “Leaving Existing Line 3 in Place Could Have Potentially Significant Effects”, which arouses the concern that as-yet undetected “legacy contamination” immediately around the pipe will continue to harm the soil, as might the aging of the abandoned pipe. However, the Table 8.3.1 immediately following that section claims that the impacts to the natural environment will be “minimal” in the near-term. The near-term is defined as 40 years or fewer (8.3.1.3), which is a length of analysis that is vastly small. The result is that it becomes unclear to the reader whether there will be “potentially significant effects” or “minimal” effects on the environment.

2. Water Conduits. The DEIS self-contradicts again on the topic of pipeline-as-water-conduit. While the table claims that segmenting the pipeline will “prevent it from acting as a water conduit” (Table 8.3.1), section 8.3.1.2 acknowledges that over time, the pipeline will corrode “such that water could enter the pipeline”. The DEIS should define “Cathodic Protection” for the public and for the state. It should also describe how or if such a mechanism will be maintained literally indefinitely. Again, the DEIS runs into the problem of timescale: it frequently mentions measures like cathodic protection and segmenting as procedures to minimize corrosion, but if abandonment is forever, then we have to think about what will happen to that pipeline beyond our lifetimes.

3. Impact on Humans. There are further contradictions within this table on the topic of stress to human life. “No impacts on cultural resources are anticipated” from the abandonment of the existing Line 3, despite Enbridge’s admission that it is likely the line will become exposed and continue to contaminate the surrounding soil. This claim disregards the fact much of the existing Line 3 runs through Leech Lake reservation, and any impacts from abandonment that occur within that land would have disproportionate impacts on the ecological and cultural resources of the tribe. In fact, the report goes on to contradict itself on the same page by saying “The abandonment of existing Line 3 could negatively impact [environmental justice] communities due to ongoing stress or anxiety related to the presence of the pipeline and ongoing risks related to water flow, soil and water contamination, and subsidence.” The topic of subsidence is divulged further in section 8.3.1.3, which describes a real possibility that the pipeline could collapse suddenly. This could occur at highways or railroads, directly threatening public safety, or it could damage agricultural production. The existing Line 3 crosses under 297 roads and 17 railways, which poses a massive problem if that pipeline were to decay and collapse! (8.3.1.3). It is confusing that the table meant to summarize this chapter indicates “minimal impact” to human settlements, natural resources, cultural resources, and socioeconomics—given that there is a chance that water could be contaminated, the pipe could collapse, or chemicals could leech into the soil because we don’t even know if Enbridge’s cleaning protocol can work for more than 12 miles. Many of these statements are in direct conflict with one another and merit a more comprehensive review.

Option 2: Removal

The DEIS suggests that it would be dangerous to do work around the old Line 3 when there are now pipelines on either side of it; or that the weight of heavy equipment would be enough to stress these lines. Enbridge’s claim that “abandonment would minimize risk to other pipelines in the Mainline corridor by limiting the extend of disturbance” (8.3.1) doesn’t take into account that Lines 1 and 4 will also need to be retired in the immediate future, and so sets a self-perpetuating precedent of pipeline abandonment in Minnesota. Meaning, if we are going to abandon this pipeline, it is likely that all of our pipelines will remain in the ground forever. A key phrase is, “The longer the pipe is in the ground, the greater the advancement of corrosions such that the pipe may fail” (10.3.1.3, Page 8).

Section 8.3.1 and 8.4.1 make the stunning claim that the pipelines in the corridor are “generally 10 to 15 feet apart”. Where, exactly, is this true? The distance between Enbridge pipelines 1, 3, and 4 was measured on May 17, 2017 on public and named thoroughfares between Wawina and Grand Rapids, Minnesota. John Munter recorded these distances. Fifteen samplings found the average distance between Lines 1 and 3 to be 18.5 feet apart. Fourteen samplings were averaged for the distance between lines 3 and 4 at an average of 30.5 ft. In total, only 5 out of thirty samplings were found to fall within that 10-15ft apart claim. In Wawina, Lines 3 and 4 are 46ft apart, 31ft apart in Swan River, 45 and 48ft apart in Warba, 36ft apart in Blackberry, and 28ft apart in Grand Rapids. These variations suggest that it could be reasonable to remove a majority of the pipe where it is safe to do so, or where landowners request it, and to abandon the few segments that are determined to be too close to other lines.

Surely there was ample room to get construction equipment through when those new lines were built, and when there has been maintenance on Line 3. There is no substantive evidence cited here that explains why “it might not be possible to remove Line 3 without damaging existing pipelines” (Table 8.4-1). Enbridge makes the claim that it may not be possible to use excavation equipment at all to excavate Line 3, but again, Line 3 was installed while other pipelines existed in the corridor. They also come up with the estimate that 1.7 million gallons of slurry waste would need to be disposed of in the event removal by hydraulic vacuum, yet the DEIS gives no citation for how they achieved this number. (8.4.1, Page 13). Methodology has to be consistently explained; the reader cannot be expected to just take Enbridge on their word.

Repetitive Language Indicates Sloppy Investigation

In the span of thirteen pages, the DEIS Chapter 8 repeat itself a lot. The first pattern to notice goes like this: “Enbridge has indicated... (insert here a vague promise to just do the Right Thing)”.

1. “Enbridge has indicated that all solid waste materials generated as a result of cleaning activities will be handled and disposed of in accordance with all applicable and federal state requirements.” (8.3, Page 3)
2. Enbridge has indicated that abandonment would minimize risk to other pipelines in the Mainline corridor” (8.3.1, Page 4).
3. “Enbridge has indicated that it would develop a contaminated sites management plan to identify, manage, and mitigate historically contaminated soils and waters” (8.3.1.1.1, Page 7)
4. “Enbridge has indicated that it would develop a contaminated sites management plan to identify, manage, and mitigate historically contaminated soils and waters” (8.4.1, Page 12)

Yes, the above two quotations are exactly the same. Copied and pasted. “The DEIS has indicated” that it relies heavily on input from Enbridge, and that it will give undue weight to promises made by the company, rather than demand a plan be determined now. Below are more examples that make this DEIS seems as though written the night before the paper was due.

“These potential impacts could be mitigated by monitoring, adaptive management, and site-specific mitigation measures” (Table 8.3-1 Natural Resources)

“These potential impacts could be mitigated by monitoring, adaptive management, and site-specific mitigation measures.” (Table 8.3-1 Socioeconomics)

“These impacts could be avoided and mitigated through long-term monitoring, adaptive management, and site-specific mitigation measures” (Table 8.3-1: Human Settlements)

“Coordinate with resource agencies and authorities to determine appropriate mitigation measures” (8.3.1.1, Page 7)

“The primary mitigation strategy would be effective monitoring and adaptive management” (Page 9, 8.3.1.4)

“Accordingly, the primary mitigation measures are monitoring and adaptive management” (Page 9, 8.3.1.4).

“Would work with relevant agencies and authorities to develop site-specific mitigation measures” (8.3.1.4, Page 10)

“Mitigation measures for buoyancy and exposed segments of the abandoned Line 3 would be site specific and would need to be designed in collaboration with the responsible agencies” (8.3.1.4, Page 10).

Mitigation measures would be site specific and would need to be designed in collaboration with responsible agencies and authorities” (Page 12, 8.4.1)

“The distance between pipelines within this corridor varies, but they are generally 10 to 15 feet apart. Enbridge has indicated that abandonment would minimize risk to other pipelines in the Mainline corridor” (8.3.1, Page 4).

“The distance between pipelines within this corridor varies, but they are generally 10 to 15 feet apart. Enbridge has indicated that there is a significant risk that pipeline removal activities could damage an active pipeline and cause an accidental release” (8.4.1, Page 12).

Conclusion

Chapter 8 of the DEIS is simply short, rather than concise. It partially evaluates based on a too-short timescale of 40 years, and partially on a vague “long term” timescale, which produces conflicts of information. The reader is left with many questions unanswered, including, Can Enbridge effectively clean a 282-mile pipe? What are Enbridge’s plans for contaminated soil management and buoyancy? And, What mitigation will Enbridge actually pay for? Finally, there are an astonishing number of times when the DEIS seems to rely upon a plan to-be-decided. The issue of pipeline abandonment matters so greatly to current and future landowners and native peoples of Minnesota, who will deal with the consequences of corroding or collapsing pipeline generations ahead of us. It is clear that there was no end-of-life-cycle plan made during the permitting process of the original Line 3. Seeing what pains this causes now that we are determining how to manage our first retired pipeline in Minnesota, it's logical to learn a lesson and implement a strong end-of-life-cycle plan for any future infrastructure project today. It is the job of the Environmental Impact Statement to prepare an adequate estimation of Enbridge's preparedness for these eventualities fifty, one hundred, and two thousand years from now. Abandonment is forever. This is why Chapter 8 of the DEIS is so disappointing; it is a failed opportunity to learn from the past and plan ahead.

Chapter 9: Tribal Resources

Introduction

The Tribal Resources chapter is poorly cross-referenced and shows a clear lack of cohesive analysis. With the recent precedent of Standing Rock and the Dakota Access Pipeline in mind, reviewers should anticipate that the public will demand extreme rigor on the topic of tribal rights. However, Chapter 9 constitutes just 32 pages out of a 5,547-page set of documents. The related Environmental Justice chapter is just 16 pages. At a whopping 64 pages, the Table of Contents for the DEIS is larger than Chapters 9 and 11 combined!

Overall, Chapter 9 takes a narrative style and includes first-hand accounts that contrast with the analytical tone of the rest of the DEIS. Inclusion of these accounts is positive, but too often the DEIS stops there without also providing rigorous analysis based in existing law, policy, and historical and potential impacts. Not addressing indigenous concerns with sufficient rigor can be interpreted as a cue to decision-makers that these concerns are less valid or more easily dismissed than issues addressed in other parts of the document. The EIS should add more detailed examination and specificity regarding many of the issues raised in this section. We trust it is not the intent of the DOC that concerns specific to native communities are worth less inquiry than others.

The DEIS has not given adequate weight to the health impacts faced by native communities, nor to their food sources, and the DEIS discounts the impact of this project on tribes for the multi-state multi-country length of the pipeline. We list address eight substantial missing points of information in Chapter 9. The conclusion will list the broken links that were used in citations during this chapter.

Native Resources and Health

Wild Rice Lakes, Fish, Game

The DEIS states that “As sovereign nations, tribes manage natural resources accordingly.” (9.2), In numerous places throughout the chapter, the author underscores of what vital importance natural resources are to native communities: a source of food, identity, history, and independence. The DEIS designates “moral and legally enforceable” responsibilities to the United States in consulting with tribes and protecting their resources (9.2.3).

Perhaps in reference to the controversy over DAPL, the chapter even declares that, “Any threat to water is a threat to life” (9.4.4, Page 16). The DEIS talks a good talk. This whole chapter is noticeably different than the others because it includes frequent idealist and opinionated statements like those. But historically, native communities have not been treated as independent peoples when there is money on the line. The proposed Line 3 Project is, in part, a proposal that an oil company should get to manage those tribal resources instead and this potential loss of sovereign control over resources should be noted more clearly in the document. This is a decision about which matters more: the mental and physical health of a community, or the financial prosperity of an industry.

Health and Illness

Under section 9.6.2, “Health Impacts” merely outlines what the evaluation of health impacts in the EIS must include, while not actually divulging them. This is the DEIS, so what is the purpose of outlining what should be in the EIS? The lack of specificity gives the strong impression of an unfinished section, and of an area that demands further study.

Impacts of the Whole Line

The DEIS does not make mention of the fact that this pipeline really begins at the Alberta Tar Sands, where impacts specific to First Nations peoples are substantial and documented. Since the construction of this pipeline will directly impact further tar sands extraction under certain oil price scenarios, this connected impact must be considered in the DEIS.

Missing Information from Chapter 9

Below are eight areas that require immediate attention

- 1) If MIAC recommends a survey of the proposed route for the interruption of Cultural Corridors, then that survey of tribal communities should not just be conducted sometime after approval and prior to construction: it should be included in the EIS. (9.4.2).
- 2) “Spiritual practices” is the only category of tribal resource whose impact is not described in the list of potential impacts (9.4.2, Page 14)
- 3) In addition to the formal resolutions against Line 3, Section 9.2.3.3.3 “Formal Tribal Government Actions on Line 3 Replacement Project” should note that in June 2015, the White Earth and Mille Lacs Bands each held their own public hearings to document public sentiment on the proposed Line 3, and requested from the PUC a stay on the permitting process until tribes could be properly consulted. The EIS should describe more specifically what consultation up to this point has involved. The EIS should also be explicit about whether those who were “consulted with” recognize the legitimacy of those consultations, as it is not yet clear whether they do.
- 4) Section 9.3.4, “Interview with Tribal Elders and Historians”, should include full transcripts from those conversations, in addition to that list of questions asked. How many people were interviewed?
- 5) Though it may be infeasible to investigate and to project the environmental impact on every species of flora and fauna along the proposed routes, traditional plants (wetland reeds, birch trees, tamarack, white cedar, red maple, and balsam fir), medicinal plants (lily pad roots, sage, sweet grass, iron wood) and specific traditional plant communities (Northern Rich Tamarack Swamp, Northern Spruce Bog, Northern Open Bog) should be given priority as subjects of study. For each plant and plant community, the EIS should provide specific information how the resource in question will be affected by pipeline construction and in the event of oil spills of varying sizes, as defined in the Accidental Releases section.

6) What, exactly, is the Noxious Weeds and Invasive Species Control Plan, and where could a reviewer find it? When following the directive to “See section 6.3.3” to find the Plan (specifically the Impact Assessment in 6.3.3.3), we could only find further repeats that Enbridge will, eventually, prepare such a plan. The search for this plan in detail became dizzying:

- “The Applicant will prepare a Noxious Weeds and Invasive Species Control Plan to prevent the spread of invasive species and noxious weeds” (9.5.1, Page 25)

- “To minimize the spread of noxious weeds and invasive plants, the Applicant would implement measures in a Noxious Weeds and Invasive Species Control Plan” (6.3.3.3, Page 369)

- “As noted above, to minimize the spread of noxious weeds and invasive plants, the Applicant would implement a Noxious Weeds and Invasive Species Control plan that would detail control measures to be implemented during operation” (6.3.3.3, Page 370)

- “The Applicant would implement measures in a Noxious Weeds and Invasive Species Control Plan” (6.3.3.3, Page 371)

- “The Applicant would implement measures in a Noxious Weeds and Invasive Species Control Plan” (6.3.3.3, Page 387)

- “Noxious weed and invasive plant management and control would be implemented during construction to minimize the effect of noxious weeds” (6.3.3.4, Page 390)

- As a result of implementation of a Noxious Weed and Invasive Plant Management and Control Plan for the route options...” (6.3.3.4, Page 391).

After 7 or more mentions and between about 30 pages of related text, the only concrete measure found was to clean all equipment prior to bringing it to the site to prevent the introduction of invasive species. It is not clear whether this is a part of Enbridge's Control Plan. It is also not clear whether deep-cleaning is possible for all equipment, or whether this has been implemented in the past. The risk of an invasive species crowding out medicinal or edible plants will be of great concern and is relevant to this chapter.

- 7) The DEIS does not include a strong analysis of the socioeconomics present in tribal communities and on reservations. Since there is a correlation between tribal communities and highly concentrated areas of poverty, the inclusion of this type of analysis in the final EIS is important. Socioeconomic factors can serve as multipliers of other threats addressed elsewhere in the DEIS, including the effects of climate change (9.6.1), and these threats should be specifically noted.
- 8) Sexual Trafficking: Chapter 11 of the DEIS acknowledges the strong correlation between a sudden pipeline workforce and an increase in sexual trafficking in native communities. This should not only be included in Chapter 11, but also in Chapter 9 under 9.6 "Unique Tribal Impacts". The DEIS suggests that Enbridge could "prepare and implement an education plan or awareness campaign around this issue" (11.4.1), which is a vague and unhelpful placeholder. Does Enbridge have any experience in implementing a plan of this nature, and has this been proven successful anywhere? In addition, some of the trafficking impacts historically associated with pipeline projects have taken place at the point of extraction in Alberta. Will Enbridge be able to address these impacts via an education campaign?

Conclusion

The following sentence appears multiple times in Chapter 9: "The Applicant's preferred route as well as any proposed alternative would result in a diminishment of Indian interests" (9.4.1, Page 13) (9.4.2, Page 14), which is close to, "Any pipeline route would affect cultural and natural resources" (9.5, Page 22). If it is fully acknowledged that a historically brutalized, colonized, and impoverished people will have their remaining rights encroached upon if this project proceeds, then the decision to build this pipeline or not is a moral one, and the EIS should be specific in drawing links between this and the need to consider overall the overall benefit to society when issuing a Certificate of Need.

Chapter 10: Accidental Crude Oil Releases

The risk of an oil spill in Minnesota, large or small, will be of serious concern for Minnesotans. Correspondingly, they will demand a thorough and unbiased analysis of this risk and of the preparedness to mitigate that risk by responsible agencies. Chapter 10 of the DEIS, titled "Accidental Crude Oil Releases" does not provide adequate assurance. This comment will address the clearly biased language and methodology used for this spill risk analysis, as well as information missing in the document. The conclusion will include broken or inaccessible links used as citations for Chapter 10.

The scope of Office of Pipeline Safety audits and inspections listed in the DEIS do not mention actual oversight of integrity digs, or actual construction monitoring, only accuracy of the records, methodology, procedures, facilities, and so on. (pg 3) The Executive Summary should highlight the lack of state oversight over the day to day operations. On Leech Lake reservation, tribal personnel monitor each integrity and repair operation by requiring Enbridge to allow them to assess the site prior to closing up the trench. The DOC must have learned this in their consultations with the tribes, but it is not reflected in the DEIS. The state has no such comprehensive oversight, and the Commission, and public need to be informed of this. In Chapter 2 (2.7.1.1), there is a reference to independent third-party system of monitors to be implemented by state agencies but they will not have authority to stop construction. “Enbridge would coordinate with the participating agencies to identify the appropriate qualifications of the third-party monitors and determine their specific role during construction.” (pg 2-20) Who would pay for these inspectors, and how will the state ensure this happens? How is it in Minnesota’s best interest for the Applicant be in charge of the independent inspectors? This applicant- favored system of construction monitoring needs to be in the Executive Summary for the Commission and the public to be informed.

There are several problems with the oil by rail spill analysis.

- 1) The Threats to Crude Oil Transport by Rail section does not discuss the management decisions regarding cost savings measures that can affect safety, like reducing the number of conductors on the train, insufficient maintenance staffing, etc. (pg 7) Legislation at the state legislature mandating at least a two person crew per train has failed to pass. There is no discussion of the single conductor on the Lac Megantic train for example, or the brake failure of that train. Cutbacks to track and switch maintenance personnel in winter are another way rail safety is threatened
- 2) “Each tank car has a capacity of up to 800 barrels (33,600 gallons) of oil.” (pg 8) The amount of oil a given railroad car can carry depends on weight, as well, which is not mentioned.
- 3) The analysis of the crude by rail scenario assumes rail is carrying the same dilbit ratio as a pipeline; this is an unrealistic assumption, as crude by rail can be loaded with much less valuable diluent, and more bitumen. (pg 15)
- 4) The whole analysis of barrels transported by alternatives to the pipeline assumes the maximum capacity will be transported by the alternatives, completely discounting the declining demand for oil, the incremental volumes likely to be transported over time.

The DEIS states “Enbridge pipelines constructed before 1980, such as the existing Line 3 employed different coating technologies which do not meet current standards for corrosion” (pg 14) Enbridge Lines 1, 2 and 4 also were constructed before 1980, then they must also be needing replacement. Why are they not mentioned in Chapter 12?

The primary studies used for the Spill Risk Analysis were conducted by Enbridge-funded Stantec + Barr Engineering (2017) and Stantec et al (2017) (10.2.1.1.1). We have many concerns with the use of these Enbridge funded studies.

1) In the worst-case scenario spill modeling conducted by Stanec et al for seven cites along the proposed route, Enbridge has classified the Predicted Volume Out as “Non-Public Data”. If those estimates exist, they must be disclosed so the public may respond to the projected leakage volume at each site. (Table 10.3-

2) Their spill analysis is stated in terms of annual spill risk, rather than risk multiplied across the lifetime of a pipeline, which could be 60 years (10.2.1.2) (Table 10.2-2 (10.2.4.2.2). The purpose of the DEIS is to provide information to decision makers, the applicant and to the public of Minnesota, and so framing the risk in valid terms matters a great deal.

3) The DEIS really should have included an algorithmic estimate, compounding the leakage risk each year over the anticipated life of the pipeline, since these old pipes are leaking more.

4)The Spill Risk analysis methodology was not thoroughly described, nor were sources consistently cited. The reader is not informed if the analysis method was the best among available methods, is not told (if anyone) peer-reviewed the study by Stantec et. al, does not know what initial criticisms were made during the review process and how those were resolved, and needs to see a demonstration of independent analysis. Because the Stantec study was commissioned by Enbridge, the reviewer should expect even more transparency.

5) The Spill Risk Analysis in Chapter 10 charts the impact on various resources and areas of interest based only on each route’s physical proximity to it. So the charts list how close, say, a pipeline would be to some number of drinking wells (Table 10.4-6). But the importance of a resource varies in a way not captured in these numbers. Water bodies are an example; they may be different based on their current water quality, the ecosystem that depends on them, the families that enjoy visiting, or even their historical significance. There are data sources available that could be used to determine the value of various Minnesota resources, including the Minnesota Pollution Control Agency's "Stream Use Classification System" and "Index of Biotic Integrity", but they were not used. To just outline impacts based principally on physical distance in terms of acres misses the analysis of how valuable the individual resource is.

6) The authors of the spill risk assessment throughout will repeatedly use the word "only" to describe risk statistics associated with the applicant's preferred route (APR), but do not use the qualifier "only" to describe the projections (i.e. number of spills, number of nearby water-bodies) for alternative routes like SA-04.

Figure 10.4-11 We are grateful to see a map with the Mississippi clearly marked, but request the river be also clearly labelled north of RA-03AM. Also, it is widely believed in our state that the river begins in Itasca State Park, and hence there should be a second Mississippi river crossing illustrated on the map by the APR and RA-03AM north of the park.

The language used in the DEIS favorably frames Enbridge as a company while doing little to acknowledge Enbridge's historical failures to work up to its own standards. For example, the document claims that, "Modern crude oil pipeline systems are designed, constructed, and operated with technology to minimize the potential for integrity failures and to rapidly detect and manage unanticipated releases" (10.1.2.1). But on the other hand, we know Enbridge's control room detection mechanisms have failed in the past. Sometimes control room operators have even ignored the detection mechanism warnings, and local residents are the ones to first report a smell or the presence of oil, as happened in Kalamazoo, Michigan.

The PHMSA Leak Detection Study²¹ was not cited in the DEIS, and we request that it be cited. The report concluded small leaks are virtually undetectable. "This is one of the main weaknesses of an Internal LDS. It is rare to find flow metering systems that have cumulative uncertainties better than about ~1%”.²² In the permeable soils along the APR, the oil from these leaks could go straight down and not surface.

Enbridge acknowledges Line 3 is “weeping” so the assumption in 10.3.1.4 that once the leaked substance reaches the surface, “visual detection and response would occur” is confusing. This is cited as from Stanec et al 2017; but is there any evidence of a response to a pinhole leak? And if there are no adequately sensitive technological mechanisms to detect a tiny leak, who are we relying on for that visual detection? But the DEIS does not disclose how often visual inspections occur, or how inspection for pinhole leaks are conducted underneath bodies of water. And under ice? Are there any state inspectors, and is there an adequate number of them to cover the hundreds of miles they will need to physically walk? The study warns that “Pinhole releases can remain undetected for long periods of time, ultimately releasing volumes that would be classified as medium or large spills” (10.3.1.4).

The DEIS discloses that between 2002 and 2017, there were seven known pipeline failures in the existing Line 3 (10.2.4.1.2). But the conclusion drawn from that fact is that these spills “underscore the increased risk associated with the older Line 3 technology and pipeline aging compared to the newer technology for the other pipeline alternatives”. The emphasis is on the newer and better technology; rather than that Enbridge continues to operate pipelines which are deeply flawed and at risk. It continues: “Enbridge pipelines constructed before 1980, such as the existing Line 3 employed different coating technologies which do not meet current standards for corrosion”. (10.2.1.3.1). This would include lines 1, 2, and 4, which, if not up to standard, must also require replacement. Line 3 is not their oldest pipeline. Enbridge says that the aging infrastructure still in operation is the reason for building a new pipeline. Enbridge knew years ago that this pipeline was failing, but it waited until economics of repairs drove a request for replacement, while the line continued to leak. The DEIS does not analyze whether the company has a replacement policy that benefits Minnesota’s environment versus their economic interests. Their waiting until the last minute to replace a pipeline does not automatically justify a new pipeline.

The seven sites used to model the spill risk analysis are not, in fact, the worst-case zones when ranked by relative sensitivity or the importance of their resources. Route alternative SA-04, for example, passes mostly through already-disturbed agricultural lands that are not feasible to restore currently. The Applicant's Preferred Route, however, crosses more virgin territory where ecosystems are as-yet intact. The difference in conditions here is not recognized in the DEIS, suggesting to us that SA-04 was not considered seriously.

Finally, the DEIS claims that increased pressure as a result of higher flow rates in a pipeline will have no effect on the spill rate (10.2.4.1.2). This claim has no citation, and is disputable. The DEIS even states on the same page that corrosion and manufacturing defects are primary causes of accidental release incidents, without acknowledging that increased pressure and flow through a pipeline could accelerate corrosion and exploit defects.

10.3.1.3.1 Acknowledges that "small releases can persist in the environment for long periods of time and can cause localized contamination requiring cleanup and remediation", and that these are the most common spill category. Shouldn't there be more effort to monitor and report pinhole leaks if, when undetected, they can spill an amount equivalent to a medium spill? It is unclear why a pinhole or small leak would not be measured and documented in the spill analysis.

There should be more discussion of how the harsh climate in Minnesota will affect Enbridge's capacity for prompt and full cleanup in the likely event of a spill. There is no description of temperature as it relates to oil viscosity, and no information on whether the underwater cleanup equipment can actually be used in a river where the depth may only be one or two feet. (10.3).

The terrestrial wildlife risk analysis does not include the bee population, which is under threat. The DEIS mentions herbicides may be used around the pipeline. If so, there must be consideration of which herbicides will be used, and what the scientific literature says about how these herbicides will affect the food source for one of our state's most important pollinators. (10.4.2.1.1)

The Effects on Aquatic Life section does not discuss the effect of small, medium, and large spills on algae and other microorganisms in the water, nor the long-term effects for aquatic plants and the food chain of removing oxygen from the water. Doesn't Enbridge have such data from previous spills and if so, why aren't they included in the DEIS? An Aquatic Life impact assessment should extend beyond the likelihood that fish may get sick from eating contaminated algae. (10.4.2.1.1) This section does not currently describe environmental consequences of using bioremediation techniques and chemicals to reduce the spread of oil in water. Even if Enbridge is not expressly permitted to use dispersant chemicals in Minnesota, they have done so against state law in the past, and so these effects still need to be described here. See article: "Did Enbridge Use Toxic Chemicals to Clean Up Their Oil Spill in Kalamazoo?", Michael Toledano, Vice News, December 24, 2013.

In Section 10.4.1 The analysis should consider non-potable water to also be an AOI (Area of Interest). Some water sources not considered a resource for humans will be a resource for wildlife. This relates to the aforementioned need to rank the value of various AOIs.

The DEIS does not consider the amount of pressure required to force that heavy oil through pipe, and the potential to exacerbate weaknesses in the pipe with high pressure and pressure cycling. The list of factors cited in the DEIS that may result in a pipeline "incident" does not include the very threat thought to have been the culprit in some documented Enbridge spills: fatigue damage due to inadequate cradling during the shipping of pipe segments. The amplitude of pressure swings capable of producing fatigue cracks is a consequence of the pump discharge required to force heavy, viscous crude oil through the pipe. (10.2.1.2) To not consider the relationship between high pressure, high volume, and fatigue cracking is an enormous oversight.

Chapter 10 contains no significant analysis of the increase to spill potential as pipelines become exposed over time. Many of Enbridge's lines are currently aboveground in different areas, and are visible to the naked eye. If corrosion is a significant cause of pipe failure, then there should be analysis of how exposure to air, animals, and weather will exacerbate corrosion.

The DEIS acknowledges the risk of this pipeline is largely placed on rural communities, and that those communities won't have easy access to the promised rapid-response tech and crew. However, a decision to plan for spills preparedness is put off until the “In Minnesota, the Applicant’s preferred route and route alternatives generally pass through rural, sparsely populated areas. Rural communities can face challenges regarding emergency preparedness and response, such as proximity to adequate response personnel and equipment, and may lack needed space, supplies, and staff to respond quickly and effectively to emergencies” (See section 10.5.3.2.1 below)

The above passage is a small part of "Potential Spill Response Challenges". When it indicates at the end to see section 10.5.3.2.1 below, titled, "Remote Area Analysis"...the following 4 sentences are the only thing in that section.

“The magnitude of potential impacts on a resource may be directly related to the response time and response time may be related to the accessibility of the spill. Rapid detection and response can reduce crude oil exposures and impacts on resources. Remote areas may be less accessible to spill response teams and therefore potentially more vulnerable to effects from crude oil spills. When a final route is selected, spill response strategies will be developed for areas with difficult access” (emphasis added) 10.5.3.2.1

At least an outline of such response strategies should be detailed in the Environmental Impact Statement.

Section 10.3.1.3.3 (pg 30) on large spills initially mentions large releases in connection with rail cars. That is odd, considering Figure ES-4 in the Executive Summary (with the error in the chart corrected) clearly shows that pipelines spill much more when they spill on average than do railcars. The second sentence lists excavators or earth movement as possible cause of pipeline failures, but that does not match real world experience, such as the Kalamazoo or the Mayflower ruptures. We request these biased examples of possible releases be corrected and pipelines be mentioned first in the large spills paragraph.

Section 10.3.1.3.4 again is unrealistic and not historically accurate in its listing of likely causes of major pipeline spills. The catastrophic Kalamazoo and Mayflower ruptures were caused by none of the listed factors. Again, catastrophic spills from railcars can result from poor track maintenance, especially in winter and inadequate staffing on trains. These are controllable factors if railroad management staffing decisions are made with safety in mind.

The DEIS notes regarding the Kalamazoo disaster: “Enbridge has paid over $1.2 billion in response, clean-up, and restoration costs as well as fines from state and federal agencies (U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission 2014).” (pg 108) This does not acknowledge the insurance money Enbridge received from their insurer – so in effect they paid far less. They are also allowed to recover all the costs they incurred in the tariff structure at FERC – essentially a spill is an “expense” which they can recoup from the shippers.

Other pipelines proposed to carry oil to market should also be proposed for alternatives; this was not considered.

Section 10.5.1.1.2. fails to mention the increased scrutiny given to spill response laws at the legislature that required railroad companies to pay for additional state railroad track inspectors. The DOC is well aware pipeline companies declined to pay for spill response oversight in that legislation and all funding stopped as of July this year.

This section of the DEIS, like others, is inadequate and incomplete.

Re: Public Comment on Line 3 Project (CN-14-916 and PPL-15-137)

Dear Ms. MacAlister,

Thank you for the opportunity to submit comments on behalf of the Minnesota Center for Environmental Advocacy (MCEA) regarding the Draft Environmental Impact Statement (DEIS) for the Line 3 Replacement Project (CN-14-916 and PPL-15-137) ("the Project") proposed by Enbridge, Inc.

MCEA is a Minnesota non-profit environmental organization whose mission is to use law, science, and research to preserve and protect Minnesota's wildlife, natural resources, and the health of its people. MCEA has statewide membership. MCEA has long been concerned about the negative impacts to Minnesota's environment caused or threatened by crude oil pipelines and the need for proper environmental review of those threats. MCEA has participated in several legal and policy matters related to the Project. Indeed, the DEIS now open for public comment is, in part, the result of years of work by MCEA. MCEA was involved in the litigation that helped shaped the environmental review process of the Enbridge's related Sandpiper pipeline project and which directly impacted the review and permitting processes for this Project.

Minnesota's rivers, lakes, streams, wild rice waters and wetlands are uniquely threatened by both the immediate impacts of pipeline construction and the catastrophic impacts of a potential oil spill, which persist throughout and extend beyond the 50 year or more lifespan of the proposed pipeline. MCEA has sought from the beginning of this process to show less harmful options to the Project through proposing various project alternatives to demonstrate its point.

MCEA's concerns with the Project as proposed are not exhaustively provided in these comments. Sufficiently comprehensive comments on the DEIS, which is over 5,000 pages in length, would require more attention than is allowed by this short timeline for comment. As such, MCEA's comments focus here on two primary issues: First, the purpose and need articulated in the DEIS is overly narrow and relies too heavily on assumptions and information produced solely by Enbridge. Second, the alternatives assessments provided in the DEIS are insufficient and incomplete. These two shortcomings result in one particular, glaring omission, which is the absence of an alternatives assessment for a “shut down, no build” alternative, for which a suitable EIS would consider the impacts of shutting down the Existing Line 3 without the completion of the Project.

Were the DEIS to be finalized without significant amendments and supplementation, MCEA is concerned that the EIS would not meet the standards of the Minnesota Environmental Policy Act (MEPA).¹ In light of these and other DEIS shortcomings, MCEA requests that the subsequent drafts of the EIS include a sufficiently broad statement of purpose of need, based on independent analyses conducted by a responsible government unit (RGU)—not merely by Enbridge—and that all reasonable alternatives that might satisfy such an amended statement of purpose and are fully considered, specifically, a “shut down, no build” alternative. Addressing these and other valid concerns articulated here and in other public comments is required to meet the environmental and public health standards established by MEPA.

I. THE STATEMENT OF PURPOSE AND NEED IS TOO NARROW AND IS NOT BASED ON INDEPENDENT ANALYSIS.

A. An EIS Requires a Sufficiently Clear and Broad Statement of Purpose and Need.

The DEIS’ statement of purpose and need fails to properly define the purpose of this project. The purpose and need section the DEIS should address two broad themes: “Do we need this pipeline to transport oil? And if so, where should it go?” Addressing these questions accurately requires a sufficiently broad statement of purpose and need. Because any alternative that does not meet the stated purpose and need of a project may be eliminated from consideration under the EIS, it is crucial that the purpose and need be stated broadly enough.² The DEIS does not clearly define the need for the project.

Minnesota law states that “the proposed project shall be described with no more detail than is absolutely necessary to allow the public to identify the purpose of the project, its size, scope, environmental setting, geographic location, and the anticipated phases of development.”³ This requirement mirrors the federal regulation under the National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) stating, “The statement shall briefly specify the underlying purpose and need to which the agency is responding in proposing the alternatives including the proposed action.”⁴ The purpose here should be defined as transporting oil from Alberta to Midwest refineries. Articulating this purpose allows the state regulators to answer the question of whether this proposed Project is the best alternative to meet that purpose. But the DEIS never clearly identifies the purpose of the Project.

Here, because the DEIS does not clearly identify the Project purpose, the analyses of reasonable alternatives is severely and improperly restricted. The EIS should be amended to provide a clear, broad statement of purpose and need for the Line 3 Replacement, thereby allowing for a more appropriate and thorough alternatives assessment.

Cont'd

B. The DEIS' Statement of Purpose and Need Relies Too Heavily on Information Provided by Enbridge.

In addition to a lack of a clearly defined purpose of the project, the DEIS continues to rely too heavily on Enbridge's own suggestions to frame the need for the Project. MEPA allows the RGU to utilize an applicant's work where appropriate, but once such work becomes a part of the EIS, it is the RGU's responsibility.⁵ The stated need for the Project boils down to two assertions: first, that safety and integrity concerns over the Existing Line 3 pipeline present the need for a replacement, which would be less expensive than addressing the concerns; and second, demand for Canadian heavy crude oil exceeds existing capacity and that it would be best for Enbridge to satisfy this demand with the Project.⁶

These statements are predominantly based on Enbridge's beliefs, statements, or indications, and are not the result of independent analysis by the RGU. A statement of need defined solely by Enbridge does not allow for an EIS that adequately addresses alternatives. In essence, these two assertions stand for the prospect that oil is currently transported in an unsafe manner between Clearbrook, Minnesota and Superior, Wisconsin, and that it will continue to be transported in an unsafe manner absent the approval of its alternative.

The DEIS thus inappropriately frames the choice as between continued operation of an aged pipeline facing significant integrity issues and a new pipeline that is likely to cause adverse environmental effects. The history of the Existing Line 3 pipeline demonstrates that continued operation should no longer remain an option. Even so, the need to shut down the existing Line 3 does not dictate that a replacement must, ought to, or may be built. The DEIS consists primarily of data provided by Enbridge concerning its estimation of the cost and benefits of the Project, and does not contain an RGU's own independent findings as required under MEPA.⁷ The EIS, unless supplemented to include a proper discussion of the purpose and need for the Line 3 Replacement project and a satisfactory of all reasonable alternatives—including the alternative of shutting down the Existing Line 3 without construction of the Project—will fail to meet the minimal requirements of MEPA.

In drafting an EIS, an RGU cannot simply rely on statements of what is "desirable from the standpoint of the Applicant."⁸ A proper interpretation of MEPA indicates that an administrative agency abdicates its responsibility when solely relying on information provided by an applicant to determine the statement of purpose and need for an EIS.⁹

Here, the DEIS manages to fail both of these requirements. In detailing the purpose of the Line 3 Replacement project, the Commission directly cites the Applicant in determining that a higher capacity line reduces pressure and allows for cheaper maintenance costs for a new pipeline.¹⁰ The DEIS claims that the new pipeline would result in better crude oil distribution management to refineries around the country, and would increase the efficiency of Applicant's system; however, only applicant provided this data.¹¹ If the Final EIS frames the statement of purpose and need solely on Applicant's data and not on an RGU's independent findings, the EIS is likely not to pass MEPA scrutiny.

C. The Overly Narrow Statement of Purpose and Need Restricts the Scope of the Alternatives Assessments.

An agency should not "slip past the strictures of environmental review by "contriv[ing] a purpose so slender as to define competing 'reasonable alternatives' out of consideration."¹² If an RGU so constricts the definition of the project's purpose, it runs afoul of the requirements of MEPA.¹³ This DEIS' statement of purpose—which first posits that the Existing Line 3 is unsafe, then assumes that crude oil must continue to pass between Clearbrook and Superior—is so narrow that it restricts the alternatives assessment only to options suggested by Enbridge, and encourages the omission of a "shut down, no build" alternative.

In addition, it is problematic that the EIS states as a maxim that "[w]hile pipeline projects are increasingly contributing to public debate over important broader energy policy issues, many of these overarching policy issues are beyond the scope of this EIS because they stretch well beyond the specific decision before the [Minnesota Public Utilities Commission]."¹⁴ This tendency encourages an overly narrow purpose and need for a project, as the "the need for the proposed pipeline with the proposed throughput capacity is an issue for the [PUC, but] this EIS will not assess the Project need."¹⁵ Problematically, DEIS tries to have it both ways: it first states the ultimate decision on need for the project rests in the hands of the PUC when deciding whether to grant a certificate of need (CN), but then sets a purpose and need that presupposes need, while eschewing a discussion of "broader energy policy issues," which is critical to assessment of Enbridge's belief that crude oil must continue to flow between Clearbrook and Superior. The EIS, while willing to address reliance on fossil fuels on a project-by-project basis, "does not provide a policy-level assessment of the societal implications of continued reliance on fossil fuel."¹⁶

Without an analysis of the impacts long-term reliance on oil, the dual assumptions that current capacity must be met or expanded to meet demand and that Existing Line 3 safety and integrity issues mandate other conveyance options, the DEIS excludes other viable, safer, and potentially more economically sound alternatives, such as lower capacity pipelines, or a “shut down, no build” alternative. If the Final EIS does not broaden its intended analysis within the statement of purpose and need, then the preparers run the risk of failing to consider a proper scope of possible alternatives, rendering the EIS inadequate.

II. THE DEIS INCLUDES AN INSUFFICIENT AND INCOMPLETE ALTERNATIVES ASSESSMENT.

A. MEPA Requires a Higher Standard for the Alternatives Assessments than CN Proceedings and Requires that the RGU, Not the Public, Prove that All Reasonable Alternatives are Assessed.

This Project’s EIS is the best available option for considering alternatives to an applicant’s proposal. While CN proceedings before the PUC will also consider project alternatives, the CN process does not provide the platform that it should in order to thoroughly investigate best alternatives, because the CN process and EIS process under MEPA require different standards. The limitation under the CN proceedings is that, under the rules, the party presenting the alternative plan has the burden of proof to show that there is a “more reasonable and prudent alternative” to a project proposal.¹⁷ This burden of proof, if interpreted literally under the rule,¹⁸ raises real questions about whether any party could ever propose a “more reasonable and prudent alternative” unless they happen to be a pipeline company willing to build that alternative.

But the EIS process can succeed where the CN process fails, because “alternatives” under MEPA are different than “alternatives” under the CN rule. Under MEPA, the statutory mandate is to consider “appropriate alternatives to the proposed action.”¹⁹ MEPA rules clarify that the EIS must “compare the potentially significant impacts of the proposal with those of other reasonable alternatives to the project.”²⁰ The EIS “must address one or more alternatives” from a range of types, including: alternative sites, alternative technologies, modified designs or layouts, modified scale or magnitude, and alternatives incorporating reasonable mitigation measures.²¹ If the EIS does not analyze alternatives of any of these types, it must explain why it failed to do so.²²

¹⁸ The authorizing law for this rule, Minn. Stat. § 216B.243, does not assign a burden of proof for alternatives, and thus MCEA maintains that the PUC can turn to the statute, and not the rule, when evaluating alternatives in CN proceedings.

Therefore, under MEPA, the burden of proof for reasonability lies not with the party presenting an alternative to the option preferred by Enbridge, but with the PUC and its delegate, the Department of Commerce, which must make their own determinations about alternatives to be considered in the EIS, and must themselves engage in the work, without relying solely on the public (or Enbridge) to provide all of the information about potential alternatives.

Once completed, the EIS itself will dictate which alternatives may enter the CN process, at which time, as discussed above, the alternatives burden of proof is likely fall to party's supporting an alternative. At that point the PUC must ultimately select its own preferred alternative as part of its final determination on adequacy.

MEPA also specifically prohibits the PUC from selecting a proposal that:

is likely to cause pollution, impairment or destruction of the air, water, land or other natural resources located within the state so long as there is a feasible and prudent alternative consistent with the reasonable requirements of the public health, safety, and welfare and the state's paramount concern for the protection of its air, water, land and other natural resources from pollution, impairment, or destruction.²³

In addition, and critically, MEPA requires that the Commission look beyond the Applicant's private financial and business preferences when considering "feasible and prudent alternatives" and that "[e]conomic considerations alone shall not justify such conduct."²⁴

The environmental review process only provides sufficient protection to Minnesota's environment and public if an EIS meets the standards of MEPA and reflects the public interest, not the company's private interest. If the Final EIS does not raise and address all reasonable alternatives then the State of Minnesota and its legacy of clean water will be at the mercy not only of Enbridge, but every other pipeline company in the foreseeable future who wishes to utilize eminent domain to cut a swath across the state for a new pipeline. These are the first state-only EIS's on crude oil pipelines in Minnesota history, and so the state stands at a historic crossroads. If the RGUs do not sufficiently raise and analyze all alternatives as required by MEPA, a precedent will be set that a project proposer can end-run environmental review by offering only a narrowed list of alternatives, which may overstate the need or benefits for the project while placing the burden for alternatives assessment on the public instead of on the RGU, as intended and required by the Legislature.

B. A "Shut Down, No Build" Alternative is Reasonable and Must Be Included in the Final EIS.

The no-action alternative for the Line 3 Replacement remains a critical area of analysis because the alternatives analysis is the heart of the environmental impact statement. Also, identifying a no-action alternative informs interested parties on how to proceed in the event the RGU denies the project. A proper no-action alternative considers proposed alternatives within the scope of the purpose and need of a project.²⁵ The DEIS here fails to properly frame and assess the no-action alternative, considering only that Existing Line 3 would operate if the Project is not completed.²⁶ The final EIS must broaden the alternatives discussion to consider a “shut down, no build” option, to make clear that Minnesota does not face a forced choice between the Project or the aging, unsafe Existing Line 3.

²³ Minn. Stat. § 116D.04, subd. 6.

Jamie MacAlister

2371-5

i. The No-Action Alternative Requires Clarification in the Final EIS

Discussion of the Existing Line 3 is central to the reasonable alternatives assessment, but DEIS shortcomings effectively suggest that Minnesotans are stuck with the unsafe Existing Line 3 if the Project does not go ahead. Previously, scoping documents included a presumption that the Existing Line 3 would continue to operate if the Project was not permitted.²⁷ The DEIS also incorporates this faulty assumption, thereby improperly limiting the range of alternatives assessed. The DEIS explicitly states that a no-action alternative results from the denial of a CN for the proposed project, but fails to adequately determine range of potential responses that could follow a CN denial.²⁸

The DEIS states that the Existing Line 3, constructed between 1962 and 1963, is “old and has integrity problems.”²⁹ The existing pipeline contains flash welded metal, making the pipeline increasingly susceptible to defects.³⁰ The DEIS details the cracking and corrosion present on Existing Line 3, and notes that more than 950 excavations of the pipeline have been required over the past sixteen years.³¹ This significant amount of excavations means that Existing Line 3 has experienced at least ten times more integrity issues per mile than any other pipeline operated in Enbridge’s Mainline Corridor.³² Existing Line 3 experienced fifteen failures since 1990, resulting in more than fifty barrels of oil being released; nearly half of these failures occurred in Minnesota.³³ Still, these incidents failed to prevent the signing of a consent decree allowing Existing Line 3 to continue its operations.³⁴

Due to the limited no action alternative assessment, the DEIS assumes that “[i]f the [PUC]. . .denies the CN, the Applicant (or entities other than the Applicant) could reasonably be expected to meet shipper demand through other means, such as a different pipeline system, or by train or truck.”³⁵ But the DEIS gives no indication of which specific plan of action the Applicant plans to take if the PUC denies the CN, and decommissioning Existing Line 3 is discussed only in the context of the PUC granting the CN.³⁶ This improperly narrow discussion of the no-action alternative correlates to the narrow statement of purpose and need discussed in the section above. The Final EIS must acknowledge the numerous integrity issues facing Existing Line 3 and must clarify and assess the full range of no-action alternatives, specifically the “shut down, no build” alternative.

ii. The DEIS’ Failure to Sufficiently Define and Consider the No-Action Alternatives Results in Understating Environmental and Financial Risks of Existing Line 3 Operations and Leads to an Insufficient Alternatives Assessment with respect to the Options of Abandoning or Replacing the Existing Line 3.

The DEIS contains contradictory statements regarding the viability of continuing to operate the Existing Line 3. It first states that continued operation of the Existing Line 3 would avoid negative consequences attendant with the construction of a pipeline corridor.³⁷ It then provides that the Existing Line 3 currently operates at a lowered capacity due to integrity issues, and that maintenance at current capacity could require 4,000 excavations over 15 years.³⁸ The DEIS estimates the cost for maintaining the Existing Line 3 pipeline at $30–40 million per year, as opposed to the estimated $2 million for a new pipeline.³⁹ These statistics provided in the DEIS derive overwhelmingly from citation sources and figures provided by Enbridge.⁴⁰ The Final EIS should forecast the frequency of integrity digs and the financial cost from an independent analysis conducted by objective preparers. Without such independent analysis, the “shut down, no build” alternative will not be sufficiently considered, and the requisites of MEPA will not be met.

The DEIS also makes clear that only “[o]nce the Line 3 Replacement pipeline is placed in service, Enbridge would abandon the existing Line 3 pipeline in accordance with federal, state, and tribal statutes, rules, and regulations.”⁴¹ As such, the DEIS only considers abandonment or decommissioning if the PUC grants the CN and the replacement is constructed.⁴² Assessing potential costs and benefits of abandonment or removal of Existing Line 3, the DEIS states only one potential benefit—avoiding disturbance of other pipelines that share the same corridor with the Existing Line 3—and only focuses on potential environmental risks associated with the removal of Existing Line 3.⁴³ The DEIS also states that abandonment of the Existing Line 3 may cause long-term significant effects on the environment, and would require site-specific mitigation measures to reduce impact, yet fails to indicate what such mitigation measures might entail.⁴⁴ The Final EIS must also include abandonment of the Existing Line 3 as an option if the Commission denies the CN.

Furthermore, the DEIS only considers removal, as opposed to abandonment, of the Existing Line 3 if the Project is placed in the same trench as the current pipeline.⁴⁵ The DEIS, as based primarily on Enbridge data, focuses heavily on potential negative implications threatened by the Existing Line 3's removal, providing summaries and details of potential environmental impacts.⁴⁶ The Final EIS should incorporate this analysis, but also assess potential positive impacts of removing Existing Line 3.

2371-9

The DEIS projects that abandonment of the Existing Line 3 will cost $85 million, plus $100,000 in annual monitoring costs and an undetermined amount for site specific mitigation efforts.⁴⁷ The analysis of the Existing Line 3 removal estimates the cost at $1.28 billion.⁴⁸ These estimates are sourced from correspondence and data provided by Enbridge.⁴⁹ Reliance on data provided by the Applicant without independent fact-finding by the preparers is grounds for EIS insufficiency.⁵⁰

C. The DEIS Provides Inadequate Explanation on the Exclusion of SA-03 and SA-05 as Alternatives.

A proper alternatives assessment would include SA-03, SA-04, and SA-05 as reasonable system alternatives for the Project terminating outside Superior, Wisconsin. Instead, the DEIS analyzes only SA-04 as an alternative, failing to mention SA-03 or SA-05.⁵¹ The PUC determined which alternatives to consider in the DEIS based on an Alternatives Screening Report and Final Scoping Decision Document, but the DEIS only includes these documents in citations with minimal explanation. While a DEIS need not include every possible alternative, an EIS that excludes viable alternatives is inadequate.⁵²

Because SA-03 and SA-05 do not appear in the list of alternatives in the DEIS, the Draft Scoping Decision Documents provide the best source of adequate information on these alternatives.⁵³ Those documents describe SA-03 as following a similar route to the Enbridge's route in the north, but turning south to North Branch, Minnesota, before turning north to Superior, Wisconsin.⁵⁴ While not provided on a map, SA-03's description appears to follow a slightly more eastward route compared to SA-04, in addition to staying within Minnesota and terminating in Wisconsin.⁵⁵ SA-05's description closely mirrors the proposed route for SA-04, except that it utilizes a separate Enbridge pipeline at a transition point in Poweshiek County, Iowa, as opposed to SA-04's reliance on the Alliance pipeline route throughout.⁵⁶ These other routes appear to avoid many of the environmental impacts that are listed for the alternatives assessments provided in the DEIS.⁵⁷ Without any formal indication or explanation for why these routes were excluded, it is impossible to assess environmental benefits or risks these two alternatives create and whether either is the best alternative.

The Final EIS should include the evaluation and determination process of the Alternatives Screening Report and Final Scoping Decision Documents that led to the exclusion of SA-03 and SA-05 as viable alternatives for the Project.⁵⁸ In the alternative, SA-03 and SA-05 should be added and assessed as a reasonable alternative, as allowed after a restatement of a sufficiently broad purpose and need.

D. The DEIS Insufficiently Assesses the Rail and Truck Alternatives By Failing to Consider Actual Demand and by Assuming Continued Operation of the Existing Line 3.

An adequate discussion of alternatives should include all reasonable various methods of transporting crude oil to refineries, including those that do not utilize existing pipelines. The DEIS thus ought to include alternative options that do not assume operation of the Existing Line 3, including transport by rail and tanker truck, but the scoping documents failed to explore these options and the alternatives are not assessed in the DEIS.⁵⁹

It is critical also that the rail and trucking alternatives analyses include a request to analyze these alternatives based on the actual demand to receive crude oil via these methods, and do not assume that these alternatives would need to transport the same amount of crude oil as the Project seeks to convey. The DEIS assesses potential rail and truck and the various environmental impacts of those actions, but its assessment is incomplete because both alternatives assume a need to convey the full 760,000 barrels per day sought by Enbridge's Project.⁶⁰ The consideration of actual demand for crude oil transported by any mechanism receives no mention in the DEIS because the preparers explicitly state energy policy implications, long-term reliance on fossil fuels, and other demand issues are beyond the scope for the Line 3 Replacement EIS.⁶¹

The DEIS assessments of rail and truck alternatives are also inadequate because they are considered only in conjunction with continued operation of Existing Line 3.⁶² The Final EIS should include an analysis of demand for oil transported by rail and truck in the absence of the

E. The DEIS Fails to Properly Consider Lower Volume Alternatives as Required by Minn. R. 4410.2300 and Fails to Justify the Omission.

Project alternatives assessments have continuously lacked a thorough discussion on transporting lower volumes of crude oil to the destination refineries. Scoping documents indicated that the upcoming DEIS would not evaluate any alternatives regarding the dimensions of the proposed 36-inch diameter pipe but gave no indication of evaluating alternatives transporting lower volumes of crude oil.⁶³ The EIS should either assess the alternative of a smaller pipeline or provide justification for why the alternative is not considered reasonable.

The DEIS indicates that the alternative of a 24- to 34-inch diameter pipeline for the Project was considered, but provides no justification for why the alternative was determined unreasonable.⁶⁴ This despite regulations that require consideration of alternatives of modified scale or magnitude.⁶⁵ The DEIS raises only the alternative of utilizing other pipelines to transport the full Project capacity of 760,000 bpd of crude oil in the event the PUC denies the CN.⁶⁶ The five alternative pipelines considered present varying routes and volume capacity; however, even in its analysis of these alternatives, the DEIS makes clear that it is “not evaluating these alternatives based on whether they meet the need for this proposed Project.”⁶⁷ A proper EIS must sufficiently assess conveyance of lower volumes than requested by the project, as required by Minn. R. 4410.2300(G). The Final EIS must include an actual analysis of a smaller volume pipeline with varying metal thickness, in addition to in-depth analysis of utilizing other pipelines at various capacities. The EIS remains inadequate without this analysis.

F. The EIS Fails to Sufficiently Consider Oil Spill Impacts and Contrasting Landscapes Analyses for All Reasonable Alternatives.

It is critical that the DEIS analysis considers how varying landscapes react to a release of oil into the environment. Because the Applicant’s preferred route for the Line 3 Replacement passes through critical landscape areas such as lakes, rivers, and national forests, while some critical alternatives—such as SA-04—cross flatter terrain, it is imperative the DEIS consider whether oil spills occurring on flatter terrain would be easier to contain. Instead, the DEIS analyzes only potential impacts from oil spills that may occur once the Project begins operations along the preferred route.⁶⁸ The DEIS also used two different models to examine oil spill impacts, and the overwhelming majority of the sites were along the preferred route. None of the test sites considered any area along the SA-04 alternative with flatter terrain.⁶⁹ The DEIS fails to properly discuss contrasting landscapes with respect to potential oil spill impacts and containment potential. A sufficient EIS would include comprehensive assessment of the contrasting landscapes corresponding to all reasonable alternatives.

MS. IRENE FOLSTROM: I'm Irene Folstrom. I-R-E-N-E. F, as in Frank, O-L-S-T-R-O-M. Is that slow enough? Where is the recorder?

I am actually with the Minnesota Environmental Partnership. I'm the Great Lakes Public coordinator. I'm also a Leech Lake tribal member and was born and raised in Cass Lake. So I guess by some measures I'm a local. I currently live in Duluth.

And I want to touch a little bit on both aspects of the DEIS, as it affects the tribal resources and as it affects the community and our environment.

I guess first I'll start out by saying that -- I actually -- the draft is proposed to go through the 1855 Treaty territory, and it costs us some of our sensitive wild rice and wetlands -- wetland habitat in Minnesota.

I think that whether you are from Grand Rapids or you're a Leech Lake tribal member,

PART 2 OF TRANSCRIPT

1 we should all be really concerned about the risks
2 that the project proposes to the water, land, and 3 the climate.

4 Clean water is a way of life in
5 northern Minnesota. The proposed route would
6 threaten some of Minnesota's most important water
7 resources, including the tributaries of rivers that
8 lead into Lake Superior. There is no spill analysis
9 for tributaries of the St. Louis River or the 10 Nemadji River. And considering that most of my work
11 is related to protecting the Great Lakes, and in 12 particular Lake Superior, this is really concerning.

13 I think somebody mentioned it a little
14 bit earlier -- perhaps it was Thane -- there's no
15 sort of -- there's not even a mention as to what a
16 spill into that harbor would do to that economy
17 either and to -- the devastating effect it would do
18 socially.

19 The project also presents the risks to 20 the people of north Minnesota along two different -- 21 two separate corridors. First, there are risks to 22 water quality from the new pipeline. And, second,
23 the abandoned pipe poses risks to our water and land
24 that haven't been adequately examined, as we've all
25 pointed out, in the DEIS.

0827-1

17

1 There's not enough analysis presented
2 in the DEIS of the environmental impact of the 3 abandonment. The DEIS states that Enbridge has 4 indicated that it would develop a contaminated site
5 management plan to identify, manage, and mitigate 6 historically-contaminated soils and waters found
7 during abandonment or removal of existing Line 3,
8 but does not include the plan for long-term
9 contaminated site management.

10 And most importantly to me, Line 3 is 11 routed through the heart of the 1855 Treaty
12 territory. The pipe that would be abandoned crosses
13 two reservations. The DEIS recognizes the 14 disproportionate impact the pipeline would have on 15 tribal communities, but then goes on to conclude
16 that this is not a reason to deny the project.
17 Ludicrous. This is an egregious example of 18 environment racism. There's just no way around
19 that. It's racism.

20 To note the disproportionate impact
21 tribal people face but to still recommend routing a
22 pipeline through the Treaty territory is completely
23 unacceptable.

24 Thank you.

25

2 MS. IRENE FOLSTROM: I'm Irene
3 Folstrom, I-R-E-N-E, F-O-L-S-T-R-O-M, and I am
4 actually with the Minnesota Environmental 5 Partnership. We are an organization out of 6 St. Paul, a coalition umbrella group with 7 about 70 member organizations that primarily 8 do environmental work in Minnesota.

9 I'm also a Leech Lake tribal
10 member, and I was born and raised here in Cass
11 Lake.

12 I had to write down my remarks,
13 because I've had difficulty talking about
14 this, I guess, in front of other people,
15 because it's -- unlike other policy issues
16 that I sometimes have remarks on -- I've done
17 environmental policy -- this issue is very 18 close to home. So I'm easily distracted.

19 I haven't cried yet, though, but
20 those that know me, I'm a big cryer.

21 So I guess I want to comment,
22 want to comment on the DEIS, I guess, twofold.

23 The first, I guess, wearing the 24 hat of my title at the Minnesota Environmental 25 Partnership, and our position on the DEIS is

1 that the environmental justice section, which 2 wasn't even listed as a chapter, it's put at 3 the back of the DEIS as an appendix.

4 So Commerce didn't even have the 5 balls to put this section as a chapter to have 6 it included in the entire DEIS, which is just 7 degrading, and it's insulting, and it's 8 racist.

9 And not only is that racist,
10 along with if you read through the 11 environmental justice section, that's not a 12 chapter that is at the back of the DEIS, the 13 citations are incorrect, there's different
14 fonts used. It is so insulting, and it's 15 humiliating, to be quite honest.

16 So whoever prepared this DEIS,
17 whoever wrote this, and whoever did the 18 environmental justice section, shame on you.
19 Shame on you.

20 And shame on you, for Commerce,
21 for putting this together and having the balls
22 to bring this to my community and ask us to 23 read it. And when we go through it, we see 24 the section where we're talked about, where 25 our resources are discussed, my culture, my

1 people, my community, and it looks like crap.
2 It's unprofessional.

3 It's clear that someone did
4 not -- who didn't know my community and know
5 my people or our ways, wrote it, or tried to 6 write it.

7 With citations such as
8 historicaltrauma.com listed as a citation, a
9 fact, an apparent fact with an in depth
10 document; Historicaltrauma.com, if you go to 11 that, it says, "This URL website does not 12 exist." It's not even an active website. I
13 mean, you could have got that right.

14 Maybe I'm being a little hard on 15 you, but -- so that's my position
16 professionally. So personally, it's about the 17 same, and I -- yeah.

18 I haven't been shy about keeping
19 my professional and personal opinion on this 20 issue melded together, because I don't know
21 how you can separate it.

22 But I guess I should also say
23 with my professional hat on, work -- I do a
24 lot of the Great Lakes regional policy work
25 based out of Duluth. And I was also really

1 disturbed, you know, besides the environmental
2 justice section being ridiculous, there was no
3 spill analysis for the Twin Ports area in 4 Duluth. There's no discussion whatsoever,
5 what if something should go haywire, or even a
6 little leak, what happens to Lake Superior?

7 I mean, what happened to
8 Kalamazoo, right, same thing.

9 That's a huge error, as far as 10 I'm concerned. I'm sure that there are others
11 out there who love Duluth and appreciate our 12 Great Lakes, especially Lake Superior, which 13 is also very spiritual and important to us as 14 a people, but wasn't mentioned in the 15 environmental justice section either.

16 I think that's -- that's why I
17 usually have to stick to my remarks now. I've 18 kind of been going off. But that is pretty
19 much all I want to say, and I really sincerely
20 hope that the pipeline is not attempted to be 21 put through my community, because it won't
22 happen. We will not allow it to go into the 23 ground, and take the one we have in the ground
24 out. Thanks.

Comments on Docket CN-14-916 and PPL-15-137
Draft Environmental Impact Statement for a new Line 3 Pipeline

The Minnesota Public Interest Research Group is a student-run non profit advocating on behalf of grassroots efforts in Minnesota. MPIRG seeks to inform the public of issues happening in Minnesota, specific to those threatening the environmental and social well-being of our state. MPIRG was created by students to protect habitat in Northern Minnesota, creating what is known today as the Boundary Waters Canoe Area. Since 1971, we have been responding to corporate threats on our valuable ecosystems. We represent 117,000 students across 7 campuses in Minnesota. Our submission of comments as an organization and list of supporters are in response to both the things we value locally, as well as the greater implications which can no longer be confined to Minnesota.

We have been speaking with Minnesotans about the Sandpiper, Line 3 pipeline, and Line 3 abandonment since mid 2015. Our method of engagement has been through phone and field canvassing. At this time we have spoken to approximately 9,300 Minnesota residents who have monetarily supported our objective to either stop or reroute Enbridge's Line 3 pipeline. An additional 5,000 and counting individuals have signed on in support of our goals pertaining to Enbridge's expansion and abandonment of Line 3.

Our general message has been that we must look at the history of the applicant and the lasting impacts that their spills and practices have had on people and environments in the Midwest. Drinking water has been at the center of our advocacy, as well as the fact that the Mississippi is not just our river in Minnesota. The choice we make about this pipeline will affect the whole of the United States, particularly those states who rely on the Mississippi for drinking water and industry.

Our supporters have been informed of many of the tribal impacts that the applicant's preferred route and Line 3 abandonment would have. In the wake of undeniable human rights abuses in North Dakota, our members have been in agreement that we must not go down this same path in Minnesota. Honoring the treaties is not optional and it is not negotiable.

The experts and public servants who have put so much time in the DEIS know better than anyone that we are at a pivotal moment in our country's energy future. It must be noted that Governor Dayton recently vowed to uphold Minnesota's part of the Paris Climate Agreement, and whether or not Minnesota chooses to uphold that agreement will be closely linked to the granting or denial of a permit for a new Line 3 pipeline in Minnesota.

In our opposition to the a new Line 3 pipeline, we have not failed to consider the energy demands our world faces, as well as a strong desire for energy independence as a nation. MPIRG is committed to helping Minnesota reach energy demands through more sustainable means, and will continue to do so as long as the students of our state find it an urgent matter for our future. MPIRG is committed to standing with the tribes throughout this process, and will work fervently to prevent any further injustices imposed by the applicant's presence in our state.

Please find attached our list of members who support the denial of a permit for Enbridge's proposed Line 3 pipeline. Our official comments on Docket CN-14-916 and PPL-15-137 are as follows:

1. First and foremost, we must support the argument put forth by many other organizations and individuals: that a 30 year assessment of impact of a new Line 3 pipeline is insufficient. The EIS for a new Line 3 must be comprised of all impacts that are foreseeable for the pipelines lifetime.
2. MPIRG supports the public need for a separate and complete Environmental Impact Statement solely for abandonment of the existing Line 3 pipeline.
3. P. ES-12: The spill size comparison is measuring the risk for train spills based on data from 2007-2017. The EIS should more accurately measure the comparative risk of the these three methods of oil transportation by considering improvements in rail technology, safety and regulation that will inevitably precede the lifetime of a new pipeline. Assumed risk of train transportation is likely to change. In addition, spill data for pipelines should include data specific to the applicant's history.
4. Ch. 4.2.2: The DEIS can only minimally predict the actual need for a new pipeline based on demand for oil in the future. Oil transportation through non-pipeline methods can adjust to demand without a massive infrastructural project and all of the risks addressed and not addressed in the DEIS for Line 3. Shipper demands are not the same as economic or global energy demands as they are treated in this section.
5. Minnesota's Renewable Energy Standard is not considered in the DEIS. Minnesota has made a bipartisan agreement to reach a renewable energy standard of 25 percent by 2025. The RES is likely to increase in coming years with the advancement of renewable technologies and public demand for cleaner energy, as well as for demand and training for jobs in the renewable field. The applicant is not a Minnesota company, but has tremendous power among Minnesota utilities. The state must consider the impact that a new pipeline could have on Minnesota's ability to meet our RES goals, as well as to have equal and amicable access to utilities legislation should we choose to provide permits that have large impacts on the energy industry.

6. Table ES-2 and ES-4, P ES-13 and ES-26: The Summary of Potentially Exposed Resources of Concern - the applicant's preferred route does not include the resources exposed to the existing Line 3 and abandonment. P ES-20 notes that the route permit decision addresses the abandonment of the existing Line 3 versus the removal. Neither is included in this table, although resources along the existing Line 3 are undoubtedly exposed elements in the scenario of the Applicant's preferred route. Since the DEIS is treating the abandonment as an effect of building a new Line 3, the cumulative figures of the potential exposed resources should be included in this section. A new column including the Line 3 abandonment would more accurately assess total impact on resources compared to Certificate of Need alternatives.
7. Chapter 2 section 8.3.3 in regards to spill response training. The DEIS states that "Enbridge has indicated that their training programs exceed this standard." We recommend that this statement be stricken from the EIS, as it is partial to the Applicant, or, that if statement remains, more details and reference to examples be given. In addition, this section of the EIS should look at previous spills in the applicant's pipelines, and the correlating response statistics.
 - a. All scenarios for spills or other environmental or community impacts include multiple clauses for Enbridge in addressing damages (questionably also offering the choice not to act on damages?) rather than offering the same considerations from an environmental stance, where the possibilities of an oil spill, implications of large wetland loss, habitation and wildlife are just as possible.
8. Chapter 2 Section 7.2.3 Discusses the degree of soil restoration that Enbridge will undertake in the pipeline construction which includes topsoil and sublayer removal from large to small wetland areas in need of soil filling. The EIS should include more specific data in this section.
9. All scenarios for spills or other environmental or community impacts that include an "Enbridge could choose to" clause in order to measure potential damages should equally access the impact if Enbridge should choose not to make said hypothetical choice; or remove it entirely if both impacts cannot be accessed equally.
10. 5.2.4.2.1 Applicant's Preferred Route Fisheries and Aquatic Habitat
 - a. There is insufficient research conducted on the effects of tar sands on zooplankton communities in MN. The DEIS should reference the Sustaining Lakes in a Changing Environment (SLICE) Sentinel Lakes Program to expand the considered impacts that an oil spill, new pipeline construction, and increased temperatures due to aiding and abetting global climate change on the Sentinel Lakes in Minnesota, as well as to factor in the value and importance of these lakes in MN.

- i. Rising temperatures due to climate change will have a dramatic impact on aquatic systems in MN in coming years. The construction of this pipeline will contribute to carbon emissions globally. The DEIS needs to consider the impact that this pipeline will have on global temperature rise, and the consequent impact on our own lakes and other natural habitats.
- ii. http://files.dnr.state.mn.us/publications/fisheries/special_reports/178.pdf

11. DEIS cannot accurately measure the impacts of an oil spill on any environment in MN without a complete list of chemicals and elements present in the tar sands being transported through any pipeline.

- a. The bioaccumulative effect on a species and environment that can occur upon contact with a chemical of a bioaccumulative nature cannot be measured without these facts disclosed. Many apex species live in northern Minnesota, and the impact of a spill may not be immediate and direct. This potential detrimental impact on endangered species in MN has not been considered in Enbridge's submission of research on their preferred route, nor the alternate routes included in this DEIS. The considerable threat that habitat loss poses to species close to endangerment in MN must also be included, as the lifetime of this pipeline is likely to be 60 or more years, based on the applicant's history of pipeline usage.
- b. Contamination of communities can also happen through local food years after a spill has occurred. This is only minimally mentioned in this section. The EIS must measure the potential spread of pollutants to the greatest degree possible. This is especially critical to measure in areas where usufructuary rights are being threatened. The article below demonstrates more of the extent of an oil transfer in a marine environment. While some these specific species are not present in the routes in question, similar research can be applied to aquatic species in Minnesota.
 - i. Lemiere, Sebastien, et al. "Genotoxicity related to transfer of oil spill pollutants from mussels to mammals via food." Environmental toxicology 19.4 (2004): 387-395.

12. Ch 10. Section 4.2.1 and 4.2.2 in assessing risks to public health.

- a. This section is highly lacking in data and cumulative research. The second paragraph under the Public Health header is referencing research from 2010 on Crude Oil spills. Tar sands and crude oil do not contain the same carcinogens, and therefore cannot be used in the EIS as an accurate comparison. The risk of a spill on HCA's can only be predicted through reviewed research on the effects of bitumen and all other elements that would be present in the new Line 3 pipeline.

b. Public health impacts from an oil spill are much more far reaching than from direct contact. Kalamazoo residents have reported decade-long impacts that are ongoing from the spill that contaminated their community. There are reported cases of cancer from exposure to bitumen in numerous oil spills. It is pertinent that this section speaks to research on bitumen and its impact on human health upon contact. While the link to cancer is briefly mentioned, the DEIS is lacking in data. Elements in tar sands have also been known to cause fatalities in livestock and an increase in still-born deaths long after a spill has occurred.	2373-14
c. The public health impact portion of the FEIS must include the public health consequences greater reaching than just in Minnesota and around the applicant's preferred route and alternate routes. Building a new Line 3 pipeline will ultimately have an impact on the Athabasca people of Alberta, where the oil is sourced. The health impacts being faced there at the present moment are already staggering. Research on this human-rights issue is ongoing, but one such study can be referenced for the purpose of this EIS: i. Kelly, Erin N., et al. "Oil sands development contributes polycyclic aromatic compounds to the Athabasca River and its tributaries." Proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences 106.52 (2009): 22346-22351.	2373-15
13. Ch 6 of the DEIS measures the socioeconomic impacts of the applicant's preferred route and route alternatives. While this section provides detailed measurement of the growth that can come with construction projects, it does little to address what happens to communities once temporary growth recedes.	2373-16
14. The DEIS contains no detailed spill analysis data for Lake Superior should there be a spill in the region. Any tributaries that lead to Lake Superior along the routes in question must be studied. It contains no spill data for the other Great Lakes and the impact of potential contamination of 18 percent of the world's fresh water. Behavior models should be used to create an accurate prediction of what could happen if Lake Superior were exposed to Enbridge's infrastructure. There are several simulation methods that could be used, with much of the data available through the USGS. A proper simulation could allow for an actual assessment of the geographic area that could be impacted by the applicants preferred routes and alternate routes. a. The value of fresh water is of increasing value. This must be considered throughout the EIS, as well as in a section that speaks to spill risk. i. Reed, Mark, et al. "Oil spill modeling towards the close of the 20th century: overview of the state of the art." Spill Science & Technology Bulletin 5.1 (1999): 3-16.	2373-17

15. Ch 2.9: While this section does deserve its own EIS, as aforementioned, it should also include the consideration of the consequence of setting a precedent for a pipeline abandonment of this nature. Regulations for abandonment are subject to change. Will the applicant be responsible for regulatory adjustments for a given period of time, or only for the time of the abandonment process?

16. The DEIS does not consider the the risks for spills and incidents based on the quality of parts used for pipeline construction. How will the quality of parts be monitored by the state?

17. Ch 3.6.1.3: It is stated that consultation with the U.S. Forest Service could be required for the Line 3 abandonment. Consultation must happen before a FEIS is issued to provide for accurate measurement of impact the abandonment could have on the Chippewa National Forest.

- a. This should include the USFS tourism data for the National Forest, as well as its species importance value.
- b. Diversity of tree species is especially important in monitoring and combating climate change. How could a spill and/or construction impact species redistribution in Minnesota?

Sincerely,

Meghan Hill

Subject: Line 3 Draft EIS

Public Comment: Line 3 Project (CN-14-916 and PPL-15-137)

To: Environmental Review Manager:

I have been a Minnesota resident since the early 1970's. I live in Hubbard County, and I care about the quality of Minnesota's water. Listing all of my concerns about the draft EIS would require a massive tome, but here are a few of the items that might not have been addressed by others:

1. Why did the Department of Commerce rely on data and analysis from Barr Engineering and Cardno? These are firms that have an employment history with Enbridge. In fact, they will both get more work from Enbridge after the inevitable spill. Why didn't the Department of Commerce make any effort to avoid this apparent conflict of interest? Why couldn't they find and hire firms without the Enbridge connection? And how can the DOC imagine that the public would trust the assessment and insights of firms with this history?

2. Why doesn't this EIS provide an honest analysis of an alternate route away from Minnesota lake country and the Mississippi Headwaters? Why aren't there any oil release sites on the the alternate route SA-04? SA-04, a route researched and submitted by Friends of the Headwaters, doesn't create hazards for pristine water, and it is located in less sandy and porous soils. Unlike the applicant's preferred route, it is already a pipeline corridor, not just the so-called "energy corridor" for HTVL that Enbridge likes to pretend is an established "energy corridor."

Also important: why doesn't the DEIS include any data about recent studies that suggest the HTVL accelerates corrosion on oil pipelines?

3. In Chapter 13, why aren't the preparers listed by name, along with a CV detailing their experience and credentials? What are the names of the people/contractors/firms responsible for the groundwater hydrogeology assessments? Without this information about the EIS preparers, how can the public trust that this EIS is an independent and competent document prepared by people with the expertise to make these judgments?

4. NEPA and the MN Environmental Policy Act require a Certificate of Need analysis in the EIS. Where is it? And why isn't there a serious and thoughtful analysis of the "no-build" option? Anyone reading a newspaper has noticed that investors are retreating from investments in the Alberta tar sands. The headlines are about the glut of oil and more affordable electric cars and renewable energy. In an era when TransCanada can't find customers for Keystone XL, and oil companies are over producing to service their debt loads, why would Minnesota decide to grant permits for a pipeline transporting tar sands from Alberta to export markets? And why would MN allow Enbridge to jeopardize the Mississippi Headwaters and MN lake country en route?

5. Even though Enbridge has been the long-time poster child for the pipeline industry's integrity and infrastructure issues, this EIS is relying on Enbridge data. Why? Why should the Department of Commerce acquiesce to language that reads "Enbridge would..." when the record demonstrates that, very often, "Enbridge won't" and "Enbridge doesn't"? How can the EERA imagine that the public will join them in deciding to entrust Minnesota's clean water to the corporation responsible for the 2010 debacle in Kalamazoo? And if Enbridge has recently developed an environmental conscience, where was it in 2015 when this happened? http://www.huffingtonpost.ca/2013/05/06/enbridge-breaking-safety-rules-backup-power_n_3225116.html?utm_hp_ref=ca-neb-enbridge

6. The certificate of need is not about whether Enbridge needs to build a pipeline or how that might enhance its bottom line. Why isn't the NEED for the pipeline a consideration in this EIS? This is not a "replacement" pipeline. Enbridge spin persists in calling this expanded and relocated Line 3 an urgent "replacement." But any MN resident governed by the DNR's shoreline ordinance knows that she/he would not be allowed to "replace" their old house, however decrepit and damaged, with a new and bigger house much closer to the water — just by calling it a "replacement." (Since the Department of Commerce adopted Enbridge's misleading nomenclature, the media has followed suit and this EIS is now being discussed as a document examining a "replacement" pipeline. Artful deception.)

Speaking of Need, why isn't the maintenance of the current Line 3 one of the NO BUILD options under consideration? Enbridge states in the DEIS that maintaining the current Line 3 will cost $30-$40 million per year. Their stated cost for building the expanded and relocated Line 3 is $2.1 billion. At maintenance costs of $40 Million, Enbridge could maintain the current Line 3 for the next 52.5 years. At $30M annually it would be 70 years. Again, why isn't the "no-build" option examined in the EIS? If Enbridge profit margins are not part of the PUC's criteria, these figures from Enbridge make the the NO BUILD option seem viable.

7. Where is the National Academy of Sciences study on dilbit in this EIS? It seems to me that an EIS examining the impact of an oil pipeline carrying tar sands products would want to reference that document and its findings about why tar sands pipelines should not be routed near water. It would detail dilbit's toxicity and its interaction with air and water. And why does the EIS pretend to discuss the physicochemical chemicals of crude oil while omitting the names of the carcinogenic diluents in Enbridge's so-called "Cold Lake Blend"? <https://insideclimatenews.org/news/09122015/unique-hazards-tar-sands-oil-spills-dilbit-diluted-bitumen-confirmed-national-academies-of-science-kalamazoo-river-enbridge> 2438-2

8. As a citizen lake monitor for the MPCA, I'm familiar with the trophic index and its measures for eutrophication. How can it be that the Executive Summary on page 14 the draft EIS says, "There is no one way to measure the general region-wide or state-wide differences in surface water resource quality across Minnesota." If specialists and scientists have developed the TSI and it's employed by the MPCA, what did the preparers of the EIS use instead and why would they choose other methodologies? What other standard protocols did they ignore? Just how much input did the MPCA and MN DNR have in preparing data and analysis for this EIS? Why isn't their collaboration more evident?

9. In Chapter 5 the methodology used for analyzing construction impacts to groundwater is inconsistent and biased to the Applicant's preferred route. The ROI, Region Of Interest, for the Applicant's route was a 1000 foot buffer on either side of the centerline of the route. For system alternative, SA-04, a 2500 foot buffer was considered on either side of centerline. Why have EIS preparers biased potential impacts to groundwater in favor of Enbridge's proposed route? 2438-3

10. Enbridge plans to drill horizontally under certain stream and river beds. The drilling fluids used for that process contain additives. These additives are toxic to aquatic wildlife and vegetation if a frac-out occurs. Where is the drilling materials list in this EIS? How can the public adequately comment without knowledge of these material and additives? 2438-4

Why aren't they analyzing "cold lake blend"? This part is SOOOOOO great, Janet.

- The same section goes on to state, "In general, the toxic properties of both bitumen and diluents are similar to those of other crude oil products, including conventional heavy crude; however, little research has been conducted on the toxicity of dilbit to organisms. The components of the diluents are commonly found in other crude oils; however, bitumen additionally contains several potentially toxic metals, stable and persistent resins, and asphaltenes."

It's alarming that a study on the toxicity of dilbit to organisms hasn't been conducted, and that it is stated as a fact in the EIS without any further analysis, or even a suggestion that more study should be done. The final EIS must address toxicity of dilbit to organisms before an adequately informed decision can be made to permit a pipeline carrying dilbit in Minnesota waters.

Please share your comments on the Line 3 Project Draft EIS. What could be improved in the EIS? What is missing?

- ① 3 weeks is not enough time to review 5000+ pages
- ② Where are the considerations of ALTERNATIVES to Pipelines: renewable energy, conservation etc. No assessment of declining oil use.
- ③ What about transport POST-SUPERIOR??
- ④ Where are spill analyses for tributaries of St Louis River + Nemadji River
- ⑤ Spill modeling is not thorough. What about Lake Superior
- ⑥ No analyses of leak detection
- ⑦ Risk of pipeline abandonment not adequately assessed. Property risk
- ⑧ What are mitigation + management plans for abandoned Line 3?!
- ⑨ No analysis of exposed pipe + # of exposure once emptied
- ⑩ No analysis or discussion of abandonment of line 1, 2, + 4 or future abandonment of a new line 3.
- ⑪ No acknowledgement of end of Entbridge tax paying when they abandon.
- ⑫ no acknowledgement of TREATY RESPONSIBILITIES
- ⑬ conclusion that disproportionate + adverse impacts on Native populations would not be a reason to deny the project. MAKES NO SENSE!!
- ⑭ Where are Entbridge's archaeological surveys? They have not revealed them.
- ⑮ Spill response strategy missing in places w/ difficult access

Please share your comments on the Line 3 Project Draft EIS. What could be improved in the EIS? What is missing?

My PRIMARY CONCERNS:

* only analyzes impact for next 30 years, which seems inadequate and leaves our future generation unprotected
 (St. Louis + ~~Memphis~~ Mississippi Rivers)

* no spill analysis for significant rivers which could also impact Mississippi River and Lake Superior

* lack of attention to important and vulnerable people, including our Native people who are already victims of structural racism and who would be adversely & unfairly affected by this additional health stressor

* does not include the BEE population & risk ~~to~~ important pollinators with application of pesticides

* effects on aquatic life section does not cover algae and other important microorganisms

* does not talk explicitly enough about global environmental impacts and greenhouse gas emissions, wherever it is this oil is utilized and this oil burns "dirtier" than many other oil sources.

* section 9.6 acknowledges that ANY possible routes could have "longterm detrimental detrimental effects on tribal members and resources" that cannot be measured or quantified

* EIS has clearly shown that the proposed route has more risk to wild rice lakes and biodiversity

If including additional pages please number them and tell us how many you are providing: _____ pages

* Does the certificate of need address "need" in the context of renewable energy and the values of the people of Minnesota?

16 MR. JORDAN MORGAN: Thank

17 you.

18 My name is Jordan Morgan, J-O-R-D-A-N,

19 M-O-R-G-A-N.

20 I want to start by saying thank

21 you for hosting this event. It's an honor to 22 be here this afternoon with my neighbors. I

23 think that it's incredibly important that when

24 we're considering projects that are going to

25 impact our backyards and communities, that we

1 have an opportunity to voice our concerns. So
2 thank you for facilitating that today.

3 I also want to start off by 4 saying that we should not grant the 5 Certificate of Need for this particular
6 project, and the reason for that is if you
7 look at the social demand within the state of 8 Minnesota, our demand is not going up for oil.

9 What the demand that this
10 project is citing is Enbridge wants to sell
11 this Canadian oil on the global market, and to 12 do that, they think the best way to do that is 13 to put pipe through our backyards.

14 What that means is that we would
15 have to incur that social risk of a potential
16 spill and not get a lot of the social benefits
17 since we don't really need more oil to begin
18 with, if you look at our economy.

19 So as a community, as a state,
20 we should not have to incur the economic 21 externalities that are associated with this 22 project.

23 Instead of investing in more
24 pipeline, what we should be doing is investing
25 in green renewable technologies. There are

1 already more green energy jobs than there are 2 fossil fuel jobs in this country, and it's for 3 a fraction of the price.

4 I would like to move on and
5 start talking about some more of the actual
6 content of the DEIS. I'd like to take a
7 moment and talk about the social cost of 8 carbon.

9 According to the DEIS, this 10 preferred route would emit 452,496.6 tons of 11 greenhouse gases per year. And that 12 accumulates to $673,365,050 of social costs
13 over the next 30 years.

14 I think that alone should be
15 grounds to not give a Certificate of Need. I
16 will also say that I don't think that's 17 adequate. I think that when we're looking at 18 the social cost of carbon, 30 years is not
19 long enough of a time table. I'm 23 years
20 old. I plan to be very much alive in 30
21 years.

22 And I'm going to have to be
23 dealing with the impact of this project, if it
24 passes, in 30 years and likely longer.

25 So we should be doing social

1 carbon cost projections up to 50 years, 100
2 years, and perhaps even farther to really
3 capture the true social cost of this project,
4 which 30 years cannot.

5 I would add that the DEIS also
6 says the preferred route is the most impactful
7 and disturbing to wildlife beds and other
8 areas of rich biodiversity found in northern 9 Minnesota. And that that would add to the 10 negative mental, spiritual, and physical
11 health impacts already suffered
12 disproportionately by American Indian
13 populations.

14 Again, this, which is already
15 stated in the DEIS, is grounds to not give 16 Certificate of Need, but again, I would add is 17 not thorough enough. I guess I would like to 18 see the environmental justice section
19 expanded. In this 1,800-page document, 20 there's only 16 pages devoted to environmental 21 justice.

22 I think that is not thorough
23 enough, and there's a lot more information
24 there that is not represented in the DEIS that 25 could be. So I would very much support

1 expanding the environmental justice section of 2 the DEIS.

3 Next, I'd like to say that we
4 should not allow Enbridge to abandon this 5 pipeline. That's bad for Minnesotans. It's 6 bad for our environment.

7 And I would like to use an
8 analogy of saying that you just gotta clean up
9 after yourself. My mom raised me that if I
10 make a mess, I have to clean up after myself.
11 If I get up in the morning and I want to make 12 some eggs in my frying pan, I better clean the 13 pan from the day before. You know, that's 14 just common sense. That makes sense to me.

15 If they want to build this new 16 pipeline, if Enbridge wants to build this new 17 pipeline, they need to clean up the old one.

18 And like folks who said
19 previously, we should absolutely support
20 landowner choice. If a landowner wants that 21 pipe removed from their land, Enbridge should 22 be required to do that on their own dime. Our 23 neighbors and our community should not have to 24 deal with the lingering effects of having pipe
25 in their ground, abandoned, if they don't want

1 to. That's just fair for everyone.

2 And since I'm supporting that we
3 do remove it, basically what I'm saying is
4 let's put hard-working Minnesotans to work.
5 Let's give them those jobs. They're good for 6 our economy to clean up the pipeline. It's 7 good for the environment. It's really a
8 win/win for our entire state.

9 The only person that wouldn't 10 benefit would be Enbridge, because they would 11 lose some money, but they've already profited
12 billions of dollars off this pipeline's
13 lifespan. So I think that it's economically
14 fair to ask them to spend that money cleaning
15 it up and creating jobs for our hard-working 16 Minnesotans.

17 I also want to remind everyone
18 that this pipe carries tar sands oil from 19 Canada, and tar sand oil is the most carbon
20 intensive oil on the market.

21 If we really are concerned about
22 climate change, if we're really concerned
23 about limiting our emissions, tar sands oil is 24 the last oil we should be burning. We should 25 be burning less carbon intensive oils while we

1 transition to a green economy.

2 And really, tar sands oil should
3 be a last case scenario that really needs to 4 stay in the ground and not be burned. That's 5 the right thing to do. That's what we should 6 do with this project.

7 I want to end by saying it is
8 our responsibility as Minnesotans to protect 9 our most valuable resource, and our most 10 valuable resource is our clean water. Our

Please share your comments on the Line 3 Project Draft EIS. What could be improved in the EIS? What is missing?

0720-1

Abandonment of existing Line 3 ^{with no new line} has received little attention in the document. Because there are no current federal or state regulations regarding pipeline abandonment in the books, the DEIS appears to simply take Enbridge's word that they will ~~monitor~~ ^{clean} the pipeline clean & then "indefinitely" monitor the abandoned line. Given a cursory ~~search~~ ^{look} at Enbridge's past actions, their word does not suffice.

The proposed cleaning of the line is not a proven method for such a long stretch of pipeline. This needs more attention in the DEIS.

Also, should future issues with the abandoned line be discovered, ~~or not~~ what assurance do we have that Enbridge will clean them up? What assurance do we have that it CAN be cleaned up?

To Whom It May Concern:

As lifelong citizens of Minnesota, we are very concerned that a thorough and adequate EIS is completed for this project that may so endanger water resources for the State of MN as well as jeopardize the beautiful headwaters area. Some questions that need to be explored and answered are:

1. Who hired the company that did the EIS ~ Enbridge or Minnesota?
2. What methodologies were used to measure water quality? | 1407-1
3. Why wasn't the alternate route that did not go through the headwaters area as well as some of MN's most pristine lakes, considered?
4. Since Minnesota's EPA states that "Where there is potential for significant environmental effects resulting from a major government action, the action shall be preceded by a detailed environmental impact statement" why has this not been done taking NEED into consideration.
5. The original Line 3 pipeline is smaller in diameter than the proposed line? Why? | 1407-2
6. It is commonly held knowledge that the refinery in Superior cannot possibly handle all this oil, and that the real destination is further south, and that much of this oil will be shipped overseas. Why then, is rail and truck equivalence to Superior the only one discussed? | 1407-3
7. What are the drilling fluids for horizontal drilling? Most known fluids of 'this type are known to be toxic to aquatic wildlife and vegetation, as happened at the Straight River during construction of MinnCan Line 4. What will be done to ameliorate that happening again? | 1407-4
8. Enbridge's preferred route (instead of the SA~04 alternative) impacts over 5 acres of wild rice bodies, yet the report states 3 acres. How was this determined and which is accurate? | 1407-5
9. Job creation numbers are misleading in nearly every pipeline project, and advertising by Enbridge has inflated job numbers~. What are the net jobs long term? Is the project really impactful to job creation? | 1407-6
10. Lastly, and perhaps most importantly, Itasca State Park is WAY too close to this project! Why is it not considered a Minnesota historic resource? This proposed route goes way too close to Itasca as well as LaSalle Creek, LaSalle Lake Recreation Area and Upper Rice Lake. Why would the state consider jeopardizing these wonderful and important resources?

Sincerely,
 Chuck and Ellen Morrow

DEIS Commentary – Cumulative Impacts to Climate Change “Death by a Thousand Cuts”

This buzz phrase “death by a thousand cuts” comes from the knowledge that a small cut will not kill you but, if you acquire enough of them, you would bleed to death. The term is derived from an ancient form of torture, in which the condemned person was subjected to a number of less devastating wounds over time until the accumulation of damage eventually became fatal. This is what we are unwittingly doing to our planet. Simply put, building this pipeline, for the transportation of Alberta tar sand oil will enable and encourage more burning of this incredibly dirty, carbon-intensive fossil fuel.

Recent news reports indicate that 2016 added the 2nd highest ever amount of carbon into our atmosphere. Indeed, the following graphic rather starkly shows the sudden and unprecedented (going back 400,000 years) rise in Earth's carbon dioxide levels.

While the full Draft Environmental Impact Study (DEIS) attempts to compare the additional carbon costs of the greenhouse gas emissions created during the construction and operation of the various pipeline and transport options, these costs, although steep, are dwarfed by the "social cost of carbon" (SCC) that is released when one considers the entire life-cycle of tar sands oil from extraction to refining and finally, combustion. Section 5.2.7 Air Quality of the DEIS describe the exacerbating impact on climate change that will occur if the Certificate of Need is approved and ANY of the pipeline routes are approved.

From section 5.2.7 Air Quality of the DEIS...

Life-Cycle Greenhouse Gas Emissions

The Project is part of a larger crude oil extraction, production, refining, and consumption system that is affected by changes in the availability and price of transportation to get crude oil from the point of extraction to the refineries that process the oil into refined products. An increase in the availability of options for transport via pipeline, for example, could lower the overall cost of transporting crude oil to market, improving its market prospects. Similarly, increased upstream activity induced by the project could ultimately result in increased end-use of refined products, because, for example, gasoline becomes more abundant and cheaper as a result additional extraction and cheaper pipeline transport. Addressing the GHG impact of these types of upstream and downstream changes requires a look at GHG emissions at each stage of the life-cycle of the crude oil—extraction to combustion and everything in between.

Emissions at each stage of the life-cycle differ for different types of crude. For example, oil extracted from the Western Canadian Sedimentary Basin (WCSB) like the heavy crudes that would be carried by the Line 3 Replacement, require greater energy input for extraction and upgrading than U.S. light crudes, and therefore create more GHG emissions at each stage during production. Using the SCC estimates described above, the 30-year cost associated with the Project lifecycle emissions could range up to $120 billion!!! (Emphasis added)

This $120 billion SCC project life-cycle cost, a comprehensive estimate of climate change damages, is a cost inherent in any of the pipeline routes under consideration.

The harmful effects of our addiction to fossil fuels to our way of life are real and have begun. The real, known effects of this climate change damage for Minnesota and the Midwest is summarized in the following from the White House National Climate Assessment – 2014 and FACT SHEET: What Climate Change Means for Minnesota and the Midwest

The Midwest's agricultural lands, forests, Great Lakes, industrial activities, and cities are all vulnerable to climate variability and climate change. Climate change will tend to amplify existing risks climate poses to people, ecosystems, and infrastructure. Direct effects will include increased heat stress, flooding, drought, and late spring freezes. Climate change also alters pests and disease prevalence, competition from non-native or opportunistic native species, ecosystem disturbances, land-use change, landscape fragmentation, atmospheric and watershed pollutants, and economic shocks such as crop failures, reduced yields, or toxic blooms of algae due to extreme weather events. These added stresses, together with the direct effects of climate change, are projected to alter ecosystem and socioeconomic patterns and processes in ways that most people in the region would consider detrimental.

Regional Findings of the Third U.S. National Climate Assessment: MIDWEST:

- “In the next few decades, longer growing seasons and rising carbon dioxide levels will increase yields of some crops, though those benefits will be progressively offset by extreme weather events. Though adaptation options can reduce some of the detrimental effects, in the long term, the combined stresses associated with climate change are expected to decrease agricultural productivity.
 - The composition of the region's forests is expected to change as rising temperatures drive habitats for many tree species northward. The role of the region's forests as a net absorber of carbon is at risk from disruptions to forest ecosystems, in part due to climate change.
 - Increased heat wave intensity and frequency, increased humidity, degraded air quality, and reduced water quality will increase public health risks.
 - The Midwest has a highly energy-intensive economy with per capita emissions of greenhouse gases more than 20% higher than the national average. The region also has a large and increasingly utilized potential to reduce emissions that cause climate change.
 - Extreme rainfall events and flooding have increased during the last century, and these trends are expected to continue, causing erosion, declining water quality, and negative impacts on transportation, agriculture, human health, and infrastructure.
 - Climate change will exacerbate a range of risks to the Great Lakes, including changes in the range and distribution of certain fish species, increased invasive species and harmful blooms of algae, and declining beach health. Ice cover declines will lengthen the commercial navigation season.” (NCA, Ch. 18: Midwest)

The findings in this National Climate Assessment underscore the need for urgent action to combat the threats from climate change, protect American citizens and communities today, and build a sustainable future for our kids and grandkids.

The DEIS mentions the “greater energy input for extraction and upgrading than U.S. light crudes” inherent in the use of tar sand oil. While the following excerpts, taken from the Scientific American, Jan 23, 2013... How Much Will Tar Sands Oil Add to Global Warming? is talking about the harmful effects of building the Keystone XL, it is the same Alberta tar sand oil to be used in Line 3.

To avoid passing tipping points, such as initiation of the collapse of the West Antarctic Ice Sheet, we need to limit the climate forcing severely. It's still possible to do that, if we phase down carbon emissions rapidly, but that means moving expeditiously to clean energies of the future," explains NASA climatologist James Hansen.

"Moving to tar sands, one of the dirtiest, most carbon-intensive fuels on the planet, is a step in exactly the opposite direction, indicating either that governments don't understand the situation or that they just don't give a damn."

"Alberta's oil sands represent a significant tonnage of carbon. With today's technology there are roughly 170 billion barrels of oil to be recovered in the tar sands, and an additional 1.63 trillion barrels worth underground if every last bit of bitumen could be separated from sand. "The amount of CO2 locked up in Alberta tar sands is enormous," notes mechanical engineer John Abraham of the University of Saint Thomas in Minnesota.

The greenhouse gas emissions of mining and upgrading tar sands is roughly 79 kilograms per barrel of oil presently, whereas melting out the bitumen in place requires burning a lot of natural gas—boosting emissions to more than 116 kilograms per barrel, according to oil industry consultants IHS Cambridge Energy Research Associates. All told, producing and processing tar sands oil results in roughly 14 percent more greenhouse gas emissions than the average oil used in the U.S. And greenhouse gas emissions per barrel have stopped improving and started increasing slightly, thanks to increasing development of greenhouse gas-intensive melting-in-place projects. "Emissions have doubled since 1990 and will double again by 2020," says Jennifer Grant, director of oil sands research at environmental group Pembina Institute in Canada. “

For the tar sands "the climate forcing per unit energy is higher than most fossil fuels," argues Hansen, who believes he is fighting for the global climate his five grandchildren will endure—or enjoy. After all, none of his grandchildren have lived through a month with colder than average daily temperatures. There has not been one in the U.S. since February 1985, before even Hansen started testifying on global warming. As he says: "Going after tar sands—incredibly dirty, destroying the local environment for a very carbon-intensive fuel—is the sign of a terribly crazed addict."

From the National Resources Defense Council (NRDC) Aug 13, 2015 10 Threats from the Canadian Tar Sands Industry

Despite economic losses, Big Oil remains determined to triple production of the dirty crude over the next two decades, and it has plans to flood the United States with up to six million barrels a day.

The tar sands invasion will pollute our land, air, and water if we don't stand up and say no to the real and widespread threats it represents.

1. Digging up tar sands wreaks havoc on Alberta's boreal forest.
2. The production process wastes enormous quantities of freshwater.
3. Tar sands development produces huge amounts of toxic wastewater.
4. Burning tar sands oil creates more pollution than regular crude.
5. A web of new pipelines will fan out from Alberta's tar sands pits.

6. We aren't prepared to deal with tar sands spills.
7. Exporting tar sands will put rivers and coastlines at risk of spills.
8. Rail cars carrying tar sands crude will pass through densely populated areas.
9. Tar sands oil refineries produce dangerous petcoke waste.
10. Low-income communities will be disproportionately impacted.

And apparently it is not only carbon dioxide that is harming our air. From the Globe and Mail, May 25, 2016 Oil sands found to be a leading source of air pollution in North America

A cloud of noxious particles brewing in the air above the Alberta oil sands is one of the most prolific sources of air pollution in North America, often exceeding the total emissions from Canada's largest city, federal scientists have discovered.

The finding marks the first time researchers have quantified the role of oil sands operations in generating secondary organic aerosols, a poorly understood class of pollutants that have been linked to a range of adverse health effects. The pollutants the scientist measured are minute particles that are created when chemical-laden vapours from the mining and processing of bitumen react with oxygen in the atmosphere and are transformed into solids that can drift on the wind for days.

Jobs vs Environment – a false choice

Much of the debate surrounding the building of these pipelines recently has been centered on jobs and Enbridge's promises of increased economic activity. The following article (again relating to Keystone XL, but really about the harmful long term economic effects of pursuing tar sand oil) is from Labor Network for Sustainability - 5 Reasons Why the Keystone Pipeline is Bad for the Economy

While labor leaders weigh the pros and cons of building KXL, they should keep in mind that the pipeline is as much a threat to our economy as it is to our planet. After a year of extreme weather — at an extreme cost to the economy — this age old jobs vs. environment debate is emerging as a false choice. Hurricanes, floods, and droughts are already having a devastating effect on American jobs, and that is nothing compared to what will happen if we throw open the spigot to the tar sands from Canada, considered the dirtiest oil in the world.

Here are 5 reasons why building the Keystone pipeline is bad for the economy — and workers.

1. Building the Keystone pipeline and opening up the Tar Sands will negatively impact national and local economies: Burning the recoverable tar sands oil will increase the earth's temperature by a minimum of 2 degree Celsius, which NYU Law School's Environmental Law Center estimates could permanently cut the US GDP by 2.5%. At the same time state and local economies are already buckling under the real-time economic effects of our nation's dependence on fossil fuels. In the past two years, the vast majority of U.S. counties (67 percent) were affected by at least one of the eleven $1 billion dollar extreme weather events. Superstorm Sandy alone caused an estimated $80 billion in damage. The drought that affected 80% of US farmland last summer destroyed a quarter of the US corn crop and did at least $20 billion damage to the economy.
2. The same fossil fuel interests pushing the Keystone pipeline have been cutting, not creating, jobs: Despite generating $546 billion in profits between 2005 and 2010, ExxonMobil, Chevron, Shell, and BP reduced their U.S. workforce by 11,200 employees over that period. In 2010 alone, the top five oil companies slashed their global workforce by 4,400 employees (the same year executives paid themselves nearly $220 million.) But at least those working in the industry as a whole get paid high wages, right? Turns out that 40 percent of U.S oil-industry jobs consist of minimum-wage work at gas stations. Instead of bankrolling an industry that is laying off workers and threatening our economic future, isn't it time to take the billions in subsidies going to oil companies and invest instead in a sector that both creates jobs and protects the planet?

3. Unemployment will rise: According to Mark Zandi, the Chief Economist of Moody's Analytics: "Superstorm Sandy wreaked havoc on the job market in November, slicing an estimated 86,000 jobs from payrolls." In the wake of Hurricane Irene, the number of workers filing unemployment claims in Vermont went from 731 before Irene to 1,331 two weeks afterwards. Hurricane Katrina wiped out 129,000 jobs in the New Orleans region (nearly 20 percent.) For the U.S. economy as a whole, 2011 cost US taxpayers $52 billion.
4. Poor and working people will be disproportionately affected: KXL and projects like it result in disproportionately negative impact on already struggling working families. According to a recent report by the Center for American Progress called "Heavy Weather: How Climate Destruction Harms Middle- and Lower-Income Americans, lower- and middle income households are disproportionately affected by the most expensive extreme weather events. Sixteen states were afflicted by five or more extreme weather events in 2011-12. Households in disaster-declared counties in these states earn $48,137, or seven percent below the U.S. median income.
5. *Building the sustainable economy, not the Keystone pipeline, will create far more jobs: Our nation is in desperate need of jobs. Approving the Keystone pipeline locks our nation into a trajectory of guaranteed job loss and threatens the stability of the US economy. Why keep the "job-killing" course, when the alternative-energy path is already out-performing other sectors of the economy. For example, the solar industry continues to be an engine of job growth — creating jobs six times faster than the overall job market. Research by the Solar Foundation shows a 13 percent growth in high-skilled solar jobs spanning installations, sales, marketing, manufacturing and software development — bringing total direct jobs to 119,000 in the sector. And according to the Political Economy Research Institute at the University of Massachusetts Amherst, investment in a green infrastructure program would create nearly four times as many jobs as an equal investment in oil and gas.

A study by Synapse Energy Economics developed a Transition Scenario for the electric power industry based on reducing energy consumption, phasing out high-emission power plants, and building new, lower-emission energy facilities. The study estimated the number of "job years" (one new worker employed for one year) that would be created by the Transition Scenario over a decade:

- 444,000 job-years for construction workers, equivalent to 44,400 construction workers working full time for the entire decade.
- 90,000 job-years for operations and maintenance workers, equivalent to about 9,000 full time workers employed over the decade.
- 3.1 million indirect jobs for people designing, manufacturing, and delivering materials and jobs in local economies around the country induced by spending by workers hired in the Transition Scenario.

*Organized labor is right to demand that public policy pay attention to our desperate need for jobs. But the Keystone XL pipeline will only make our jobs crisis worse by making our climate crisis worse. Plus, there are lots of pipelines that need fixing. Construction workers can be put to work rebuilding our crumbling natural gas transmission pipeline system — this will create good union jobs and cut carbon emissions. And these same workers can rebuild our crumbling water infrastructure. If labor is going to fight for jobs, let's fight for jobs that build the future we want for ourselves and our children, not ones that will destroy that future.

Climate Change and Political Leadership

Minnesota's 8th district Congressman Rick Nolan, corroborating much of what has been stated above, has this to say in his June 5th, 2017 Monday Report, concerning Washington politics and President Trumps' recent decision to remove the United States from the Paris Climate Change Accords.

Addressing climate change is the great challenge of our time, and the President's decision to remove the United States from the Paris Accords is a momentous setback for the United States and for all humankind. His move last week abdicates our leadership in the world, undermines our economy and our national security, and ignores the clear will of the American people, our best scientific minds and scores of U.S. business leaders. And it jeopardizes the livability of our planet for generations yet to come.

Under President Obama, the United States led 195 nations into the purely voluntary Paris Accords of 2015 because the facts and science of climate change are irrefutable. The Earth is getting warmer, and the damage from CO2 carbon emissions is intensifying. Unless the world comes together with a plan of action, heat waves, failing crops, terrible storms, and mass migrations of people will continue to cost lives, destabilize governments and call into question the very survival of humankind.

President Trump has failed to realize that inaction on climate change cannot be an option. As polar ice caps continue to melt, billions if not trillions of dollars will be required to mitigate the threat rising ocean waters pose to our U.S. military installations up and down the East Coast. Warming throughout the Great Lakes has already begun to affect every aspect of shipping, fishing and recreation and the millions of good paying jobs those industries create. Rural America is struggling as lengthy droughts and terrible storms make it increasingly difficult for thousands of small family farms to stay in business. And consequences like these are just the tip of the spear.

To be clear, U.S. exit from the Paris Accords won't spell an end to the agreement. The good and bad news is that China, India, and the European Union have vowed to assume America's worldwide leadership role.

Meanwhile, Minnesota and many other states have vowed to push back, and keep leading the way with groundbreaking efforts to reduce carbon emissions. U.S. companies will continue to create millions of good paying jobs with revolutionary breakthroughs in clean and sustainable wind, solar and hydro-energy. And hopefully, sooner rather than later, America will resume its leadership in the global campaign to save our planet and all who call it home.

Conclusion

The additional highly harmful, environmental and economic impacts of the cumulative greenhouse gases released by the entire life-cycle use of tar sand oil, which will only be exacerbated by the rebuilding of Line 3 outlined on the previous pages and more fully detailed in articles referenced herein, need to be included in this

2 MR. JOHN MUNTER: I'm John Munter
3 from Warba, a retired guy, and I'm working with 4 Allen here on the pipeline cleanup. We've been 5 really concerned about the abandonment issue as 6 one huge major issue for us in the Line 3
7 corridor.

8 And we did some data here,
9 throughout -- the DEIS is plastered -- the 10 pipes are generally 10, 15 feet apart, you
11 know.

12 So we did some data here and 13 found that from Wawina to Grand Rapids we had 14 pipelines. On the average, on the average one 15 in three are about 18 feet apart, and on the 16 average, three in four are about 30.6 feet
17 apart.

18 So it makes the point that the 19 pipeline should be able to be pulled up by 20 Enbridge and we're advocating one size does not 21 fit all. There should be more choices here.

22 There may be some people with 23 pipelines that want to leave them there, that 24 they may be seven feet apart, and they're 25 worried about damaging the next pipe over if

1 they replace it or take it out. But we think
2 that it's ample opportunity for a lot of these
3 pipelines to be pulled out, and it should be
4 the opportunity for the tribe to make their own
5 choice or the city or the state or the county
6 or a landowner to make their own choice about 7 whether they want the pipeline out or not based
8 on maybe the best scientific data from the PCA
9 and DNR and whoever they want to consult with 10 that.

11 So this is one example of really
12 the huge holes in the DEIS that we found.
13 There's no spill data probably ever we're going
14 to get, because everybody thinks it's private 15 information; which will hurt our risk
16 assessments or damages.

17 There's the economic data. A
18 huge amount of it won't come until after the 19 public hearings, and so it will be difficult to 20 make our arguments that way.

21 But just looking at some of the 22 basic facts in there like this one -- and then
23 I found on this one -- typical right of way
24 configuration of Enbridge main line system, and 25 they have Line 13 next to Line 3. On the other

1 side is Line 4.

2 Well, Line 3 and 4 are together
3 here between Wawina and Grand Rapids, but 13 is 4 not. It's in the same corridor, but it's 5 actually Line 4.

6 So there's lots of these things
7 that need to be fixed, and Department of 8 Commerce has come up to me personally and said
9 they're really interested in working on some of 10 these issues and verifying my data that we 11 collected here. I really appreciate that, and 12 kudos to them to be proactive about looking 13 into some of the things that we found.

14 And I have a lot of things to 15 say, but I'm going to focus today really on the 16 issue of exposed pipe.

17 There's no discussion of how fast
18 an exposed piped will degrade in the DEIS.

19 Enbridge only has the worst
20 case -- now, in terms of finding this 21 information, the official DEIS chapter on 22 abandonment is Chapter 8. It's only about 13
23 pages or so.

24 If you want to read a lot more of 25 it, go to appendix B, that's like 86 pages, on

1 abandonment, so I congratulate Enbridge
2 actually for at least putting the pages
3 together for the abandonment issue, even though
4 I disagree with them on things.

5 So in terms of the exposed pipe,
6 the worst-case scenario of degraded
7 polyethylene tape and no cathodic protection on 8 presumably buried pipe where penetration of the 9 pipe may happen in 25, 50 years. That's kind
10 of the worst case, in 25 to 50 years, you'll 11 get a break through there.

12 This is a study from 2011. So
13 therefore, in 19 years from now, then, the 14 worst-case scenario is you could get exposure.

15 Enbridge, in appendix B, ignores
16 the question of exposure, citing a 2008 study
17 showing less than 1 percent of the pipe was 18 exposed in 2008.

19 That was like nine years ago, and 20 that's like one-fifth of the age of the entire 21 pipeline. And so we know that there's a lot
22 of -- go on Google Earth, they could do it or 23 we could do it, shows many exposed area of 24 pipes in Fond du Lac, or go to Grand Rapids,
25 Cass Lake, and further north.

0872-1

1 So what's the up-to-date thing,
2 percentage now of exposed pipe, is really a
3 question we have.

4 In addition, while it's
5 acknowledged that pipes will rise in the ground
6 without the heavy oil in them, there is no
7 effort made to graft per year or estimate what 8 percentage of the pipes will become exposed.

9 Will they experience an initial 10 bump up in the soil when the pipe leaves and 11 then gradually continue rising forever? Is 12 there an expected date when most of the pipe
13 will be exposed that isn't under, say, a 14 depressed road or railway or with aggregate or 15 something on it? So that could be studied.

16 As the pipe becomes gradually
17 exposed and the polyethylene tape degrades,
18 wrinkles can form in allowing water seepage,
19 which tends to disbond the tape. This then can 20 render to no effect the electric current 21 cathodic protection that helps preserve the 22 pipe.

23 In 1996, Enbridge found 15
24 disbonded coatings of polyethylene tape on 25 pipe, though, that was presumably buried in

1 this period or before Enbridge experienced a
2 handful of leaks. Two of these were from 3 external wear from "external, general, and
4 pitting corrosion," and also, "narrow axial
5 external corrosion."

6 However, these were explained
7 away with the excuse that there were pipe
8 defects involved.

9 The level of pipe defects
10 possibly present to aggravate external
11 corrosion was never explained. Actually, Line
12 3, when it came from the factory, it had 13 defects, you know, and so that's why they 14 reduced the pressure from 760,000 barrels a day
15 to 390,000 barrels a day, fearing a giant break
16 in the pipe at some point.

17 So we know there are defects in 18 this, and it could well be asked, what's the 19 worst case expected penetration of a pipe or 20 exposure for exposed pipe versus half exposed
21 pipe versus the 25, 50-year possibility for a
22 buried pipe?

23 And these are very real issues to 24 landowners here, I think.

25 The issue of exposed pipe is a

1 big one since it not only affects degradation
2 rates. So the pipe -- the landowner issues.
3 Exposed pipe can hinder water flow like a
4 beaver dam, which might kill trees.

5 It could be a constant source of 6 maintenance if Enbridge has to keep arriving on 7 landowner's property to replace polyethylene
8 tape, which would also maintain cathodic
9 protection even -- if they cared to, and we'll
10 have to see about that. It may be an eyesore.
11 It may hinder property resale. An exposed pipe
12 will hinder lake traffic across it.

13 I can quit there for now.

14 Thanks.

MR. JOHN MUNTER: My name is John
Munter from Warba again. I'm retired.

And perhaps the talk of property values would be in order here as well.

Appreciate some of the comments that were made regarding pipes and swamps.

1 Yeah, there will be more buoyancy
2 there and more danger for exposed pipes and the 3 heavy oil on them. And offering as a water
4 conduit from here to there, we're real
5 concerned about that.

6 And also the toxicity of the 7 coatings on these pipes. That's got to be a
8 question for Department of Commerce, maybe ask
9 Enbridge, is, before 1980, how much of the 10 pipes were coated with asbestos, for example,
11 and maybe something else, PCBs or whatever.

12 In terms of the property values,
13 in Chapter 8, we have a quote, "In the near 14 term, impacts on socioeconomics are anticipated
15 to be minimal."

16 Well, what about the landowner,
17 though? There's no talk of landowner property
18 values. Why would anybody in their right mind
19 want to buy a piece of property, all things
20 being equal, with a rusting oil pipeline going
21 through it?

22 Even if it's buried, you know,
23 and if you have to honestly admit that you have 24 a buried pipe that's down there and it's not 25 being used and it's going to be rusting out and

1 there could be legacy contamination under it
2 when the oil goes through it, potentially 3 dangerous to children, and fire equipment if
4 it's above ground, can serve as a water
5 conduit, as we said, rusts out, brings water
6 from pond to pond.

7 Already there are many, many
8 areas of exposed pipe from Fond Du Lac to Warba
9 to Grand Rapids to Cass Lake and beyond, that 10 can be easily seen from Google Earth. How much
11 more exposure will there be without the heavy 12 tar sands keeping it down and no company to 13 rebury the pipe?

14 Reburying pipe for Enbridge is a
15 risk assessment. It's not a given deal or 16 anything. It's easy to find plenty of excuses
17 about disrupting the ecology to avoid reburying
18 pipes.

19 Now, Enbridge quotes in appendix
20 B, "The Canadian Energy Pipeline Association,
21 CEPA, Pipeline Abandonment Matrix," which it
22 takes as the standard for industry practice of 23 abandonment. "The CEPA land use guidelines
24 recommend abandonment in all cases except if 25 agriculture can be disrupted or if a future

1 development is projected."

2 Enbridge argues that since Line 3
3 is in the middle of a suite of other pipelines,
4 that developments in agriculture won't be
5 issues. So therefore, abandonment is the 6 logical option. Enbridge ignores a number of 7 key points, however.

8 Number one would be that the 9 other pipelines, 1, 2, and 4, most closely
10 aligned with Line 3, would be mostly probably 11 be deactivated in the next few years and moved
12 to maybe the lake country preferred corridor,
13 if that's what's chosen by the PUC, if the 14 company gets its way, since they were built in 15 the '50s and '60s as well.

16 A study should be done regarding 17 the proximity of Line 3 to Line 67, that was 18 just activated in 2010. There could be 19 considerable distance between them at some 20 points and a waste of land between them.

21 Once again, one size does not fit
22 all situations.

23 Line 67 could even be deactivated
24 in decades to come as the world demand for oil
25 falls and as the tar sands production becomes

1 uneconomic.

2 So we're seeing in the 2020s, a
3 lot of very important commentators are thinking
4 that the world oil demand is going to start
5 declining, and so at that point, the Saudi oil
6 will be all that will be needed to suffice for 7 the world supply of oil. It won't be the 8 21 percent dirtier oil from Canada at that 9 point, either, so we won't be seeing a lot of 10 new projects going into Alberta.

11 Right now all of the major oil
12 companies are getting out of Alberta and 13 they're selling off to local Canadian 14 companies.

15 Number two, the allowance for
16 agriculture and industry as mitigating factors
17 for removing pipelines opens the door to other
18 important considerations. The wide open spaces
19 of Canada are another one size does not fit all
20 situation, since Line 3 in the U.S. often 21 passes near residences of small farmers and 22 landowners who are denied use of their property
23 by prohibitions of crossing pipes with heavy
24 machinery.

25 They also have the worry of pipes

1 rising above grade without the oil in them to
2 divert water flow and impede light travel and
3 depress property values as well, if you have it
4 in your front or backyard.

5 Thirdly, legacy oil contamination
6 will not be found if the pipe is not dug up.
7 That may potentially slowly seep into the 8 groundwater or a nearby well. If you try to 9 sell your property, it's like, "Well, there
10 might be legacy contamination in there, but we 11 don't know, because," you know, so --

12 And then fourth, well, the 13 overall structural integrity of the pipe may 14 last for quite a long time. Spot corrosion
15 could wear through it here and there making it
16 a conduit for water flow and diversion anyway,
17 especially with the rising of the pipe in the 18 soil.

19 So I could quit there for now.

20 Thanks.

16 MR. JOHN MUNTER: My name is John
17 Munter, J-O-H-N, M-U-N-T-E-R.

18 I want to say first, the major
19 oil companies are all getting out of Canada.
20 They don't see a future for (indiscernible)
21 barrel of oil anymore and they're rushing into
22 the (indiscernible).

23 The Saudis are cranking out all
24 the oil we need for the next few years. That's 25 why we're still so backlogged with oil from

1 these sources, up until about the 2020s, and
2 the world oil demand will start to be tanking.

3 If you look around, you'll see
4 India and China and Europe are all going to
5 electric vehicles and that's going to tank the
6 oil. So we'll have all we need rather than
7 depending on oil from Canada, which is
8 21 percent more carbon intensive and polluting.

9 I'd like to talk about the
10 abandonment issue that was brought up earlier
11 because I live near Line 3, and that's a huge
12 issue for property owners, for property values,
13 for one, for possible contamination.

14 What's under the pipe if they
15 don't pull it out? That needs to be
16 discovered. What happens to the pipe once the 17 heavy oil is not there; it starts rising in the 18 ground and becomes a hazard and could change
19 the water flow, become a water conduit.

20 So that needs to be pulled out.
21 It can be done. In the DEIS, it said that the
22 pipes are 10, 15 feet apart. And that's the
23 argument for not pulling the pipes out.

24 That's actually the Department of
25 Commerce's version of what Enbridge actually

1 said. Enbridge actually said there's 17,
2 18 feet, if you look in appendix B. Even
3 that's kind of deceptive.

4 We did a study from Wawina to
5 Grand Rapids on 15 named public roads, can
6 verify, and we found that the space between
7 Line 1 and Line 3 is 18 feet on the average,
8 and the space between 3 and 4 is 30 feet on the 9 average, 30.6 feet. There's no argument should
10 be a landowners' choice to pull it out.

11 Other land is on tribal land,
12 county land, state land. That should be
13 county, state, and tribal choices. You may 14 find pipes that are close together. Fine, if
15 they want to keep their pipes in, fine.

16 But for the most part, landowners
17 want them out, and this is what we do with gas
18 stations that are no longer operating. They're
19 forced to take them out. This is what we do
20 with mines in Minnesota. They're forced to
21 remediate them.

22 The same thing should be true for
23 pipelines.

24 And so this will create a
25 $1.28 billion cleanup job or deconstruction

0875-2

1 project. A lot of jobs for people in northern
2 Minnesota, cutting up the pipe, throwing it on
3 a truck, driving it out, and this is what we
4 should be focusing on for jobs in northern
5 Minnesota.

6 So thanks.

16 MR. JOHN MUNTER: I'm John Munter
17 from Warba; J-O-H-N, M-U-N-T-E-R. W-A-R-B-A, 18 by the way.

19 And I'm -- several of us
20 developed a group here called Minnesotans for 21 Pipeline Cleanup, because we're really
22 concerned about the abandonment issue.
23 Personally, I don't think Enbridge wants to 24 have a redo of Line 3 down the old tracks,
25 because of the possible legacy contamination

1 under it and various other reasons, and the
2 tribes don't want to either.

3 So I think abandonment is really
4 a big issue for this area. And I found a lot
5 of discrepancies in DEIS that tells me that the 6 PCA and the DNR and the DOC and -- never really
7 came up here and looked at the pipes that
8 they're talking about. They have no idea.

9 I found this one -- one diagram,
10 this is in Chapter 4. It's called, "Typical 11 Right of Way Configuration of Enbridge Main
12 Line System." It's got Line 2, and then Line
13 13, and then Line 3, and then Line 4.

14 So Line 3 and Line 4 up here are 15 next to each other, if you examine your pipes,
16 but Line 13 is not next to Line 3. It's Line
17 1.

18 And we did a study on this,
19 Wawina up to Grand Rapids, 14, 15 named roads
20 that we checked the pipelines on, so there is 21 obvious errors like this.

22 And plastered throughout the DEIS
23 is the assertion that, oh, they're only 10, 15
24 feet apart. Well, if you check your pipes in 25 this area, they're way more than that, way

0876-1

1 more.

2 In fact, our study here says
3 between Lines 1 and 3, the average is 18 feet
4 apart. And the average between, distance
5 between Pipes 3 and 4 is actually 30.6 feet
6 apart.

7 If you just check your pipelines
8 in your area and maybe come to the next
9 hearings in Cass Lake or Floodwood and support
10 me on this, we'd appreciate that.

11 But, you know, I mean the DEIS
12 didn't even get right the information from 13 Enbridge, actually.

14 They only cover about 13 pages in 15 Chapter 8, which is kind of a bastardization of 16 Enbridge's material, which is 86 pages in 17 appendix B.

18 If you look there, they say that 19 the pipes are actually -- a majority are 20 between 7 and 18 feet, okay.

21 And so how do you collapse the 22 discrepancy between those numbers?

23 Well, chances are you'll find a
24 lot of close numbers, close distances between 25 Lines 1 and 3, and that's where you get the

1 51 percent plus some close distances on Lines 3
2 and 4.

3 And so there should be plenty of
4 opportunity for Enbridge equipment to go down
5 in between the Lines 3 and 4 and remove pipe.

6 And so that's what we're asking
7 for is landowner choice on this.

8 There is a false choice between,
9 oh, it's all this or all that. It's all take 10 it out or leave it in.

11 No, there's landowner's choice.
12 There are some landowners who may want to leave
13 it there, because the pipes are close together
14 and they're scared about what might happen,
15 whatever, so fine.

16 But in the majority of cases
17 where there's plenty of space, then the pipes
18 should be removed, because we're looking 19 towards the future. Once you don't have that 20 heavy oil there, you've got the pipes rising in 21 the field like a rock in a field there, and how 22 much more exposed pipe we're having.

23 They also don't even talk about
24 exposed pipe much.

25 They quote their study from eight

1 years, nine years ago, I think it was, which is
2 like one-fifth the timeline of Line 3. And
3 what they should do is look at Google maps.
4 You'll find a lot more exposed pipe there.

5 With all of that heavy oil there,
6 though, of course it's going to rise in the 7 future, and there's no study of how much is it
8 going to rise year-by-year. We have no idea
9 what the impacts of not having that oil in 10 there is.

11 And so pipeline -- oil pipeline
12 owners, I mean, have -- I'd like to know what 13 the property value discrepancy is between 14 having a rusty oil pipeline that's rising in 15 your field, it's not being used, compared to 16 not having it there.

17 I mean, let's calculate that for 18 the landowners, the landowner value.

19 So that's all I have to say at 20 the moment.

22
23
24
25

3 MR. JOHN MUNTER: Thank you. My name
4 is John Munter. J-O-H-N. M-U-N-T-E-R. I'm from 5 Warba. As you see, we have tremendous holes in this 6 DEIS, tremendous discrepancies and deceptions.

7 And one thing we found here -- I'm
8 with the Minnesota for Pipeline Cleanup. And south
9 of you here and throughout the DEIS, we find the 10 phrase, the pipes are generally 10 or 15 feet apart,
11 generally 10 or 15 feet apart here and there and 12 everywhere. And that's really a huge deception
13 here. We found a study that on the 14, 15 named,
14 the roads between Rowena and Grand Rapids, the 15 average distance between Line 1 and 3 is 18 feet;
16 the average distance between 3 and 4 is 30.6 feet.
17 And so this makes the point that for pipeline
18 cleanup and pull up, we're making the argument that 19 it should be land over choice and also tribal choice
20 and city choice and county choice. Whoever owns the 21 land, they should be involved. It's not one size
22 fits all.

23 These pipelines go in and out and
24 everywhere, and there's all kinds of crazy things
25 going on with them. Some are maybe real close

1 together, fine. But it should be choice.

2 Beyond that I wanted to talk about the
3 criteria addressing the certificate of need.
4 There's basically four sections that they talk about
5 here. Number one talks about the future adequacy,
6 reliability, efficiency of energy supply of the 7 Applicant, da, da, da, and talks about that.

8 B talks about more reasonable and 9 prudent alternatives. The proposed facility has not 10 been demonstrated by parties other than the 11 Applicant. And so these have been discussed.

12 But C and D have not really -- the 13 first two that are proposed in them, there's a lot
14 of economic data that's being withheld until later.
15 There's no spill data that we're happy with at all.
16 And in terms of alternatives, they are very poor.

17 Number C, the consequences of society
18 granting the certificate are more favorable than the 19 consequences of denying the certificate. Well,
20 that's not discussed at all on this whole document,
21 that I can find anyway, and it should be addressed
22 there.

23 And, D, it has not been demonstrated
24 that the design, construction, or operation of the 25 proposed facility would fail to comply with relevant

0878-1

1 policies, rules, or regulations of other federal,
2 state, or local agencies. And this is the one I
3 want to address that has not been addressed by 4 anyone anywhere. So let's be first here in Cass
5 Lake.

6 When we ask somebody for a job
7 interview and the Applicant is there with the 8 interviewer, the interviewer would ask about their 9 past history, they would go online to see if they
10 made any nasty comments about their past employer,
11 they might look for any DWIs they might have, they 12 look at a whole wide range of aspects. And 13 Minnesota as the employer, so to speak, of Enbridge
14 here, the response of Enbridge, should be doing a
15 wide ranging search of issues with Enbridge.

16 This has relevance, because of our
17 First Amendment rights. In the First Amendment
18 there is the ability to petition for redress of 19 grievances. And so we should be dealing with the 20 past grievances, because this PUC process is really 21 the only opportunity that we have to say, you know,
22 you got to clean this up, Enbridge, before we're 23 going to permit this pipeline. And this -- there's 24 a range of different grievances that we can talk
25 about here.

1 Now, petition for redress of
2 grievances is not only a federal thing that you all
3 march in front of Washington, D.C. and ask them to 4 do something; it applies to state and regulatory 5 agencies of state governments. So we should be able 6 to come to the PUC and ask for a petition for 7 redress of past grievances as well.

8 And on the local level, you have many 9 landowners, for example, who own land that's been 10 damaged by Enbridge over -- maybe disputes between,
11 you know, they lost trees or there's water flow
12 differences, and maybe weeds have been planted
13 instead of alfalfa planted, which hurt the cattle,
14 and different issues, disputes between, you know,
15 pro and con of these -- of these agencies. And so
16 this should be mediated somehow. There should be a
17 process in the EIS to -- DEIS to call for mediation
18 of these processes, before the PUC advocates or 19 approves a pipeline. And there should be mandatory
20 adjudication of this so that, you know, if the 21 approval goes through, then the landowner and 22 Enbridge are locked into a process where an
23 independent adjudicator can say, yes, you're right
24 or you're right or we'll go halfway in between or 25 something like that so there's some justice done for

1 all these various issues that come up with people
2 and pipelines.

3 And then there's the larger issues.
4 Like the Bad River Band of Wisconsin, for example,
5 it has not had a permit since 2013. And, you know,
6 what's the situation there? Is Enbridge going
7 around Bad River or negotiating with them? And this
8 is a legal situation where are they going to treat
9 it just like Red Lake and negotiate for 65 years and 10 maybe finally come up someday with a permit? I
11 mean, that's just not acceptable, and there should 12 be some answers here for some of these larger 13 issues.

14 Then there's the issue of damaging
15 pipes as well -- or defective pipes. There were a 16 lot of defective pipes that were imported by 17 Enbridge about a decade ago, according to the 18 Canadians, and they want to know where the sales
19 receipts are and where those pipes go. And as far
20 as I know, they have not found out where those pipes
21 went. So this is another issue where Enbridge
22 should come up and make clean with what's going on 23 with those defective pipes.

24 And then as actually -- many people
25 are starting to complain now about the damage it's

1 having to the First Nation's north of the tar sands.
2 Winona a couple of times the last couple of days and
3 other people here. So the tribe -- the First
4 Nations north of tar sands can't hunt, fish, or 5 gather anymore safely. And it's a really genocidal
6 situation. And we're all basically complicit in 7 that situation by importing oil.

8 And this really goes back to the 9 Nuremberg trials, where they even put industrialists
10 on trial, for example, a couple dozen of them even,
11 for making the gas that went into the gas chamber
12 and that type of thing, you know. And half of them
13 were acquitted; half of them spent some time in 14 jail. But this is a society problem, complicity
15 with this genocidal situation.

16 And even though it's up in Canada,
17 it's not in Minnesota, I don't think that will pass
18 muster. I mean, there's a lot of excuses that a lot
19 of people made in Germany after World War II, ex
20 post facto law that was made after we committed 21 crimes. No, sorry, that doesn't work. Or we're 22 just following orders, you know, that type of thing.
23 So this should be addressed by the DEIS.

24 And that's all I really have to say at 25 the moment. Thank you.

There is no effective supervision of Enbridge in the DEIS which would require some power of sanction, otherwise supervision is meaningless. There is no independent discussion in the DEIS regarding various possible degrees of third party monitoring involving on-site work, sanctioning authority, numbers of monitors, and cost. The one paragraph in 2.7.1.1 on third party monitoring seems to have just been entirely cut and pasted for the Enbridge agenda which states: "They do not have stop work authority" and goes on to prescribe how they would be micro-managed by Enbridge: "Enbridge would coordinate with the participating agencies to identify the appropriate qualifications of third party monitors and DETERMINE THEIR SPECIFIC ROLE DURING CONSTRUCTION"! This is not supervision but regulatory capture in a cage.

1410-1

1. Enbridge has made a lot of promises to a lot of land owners which have not been fulfilled even though they are out waving signs many have complained to Enbridge and to state agencies about exposed pipes, water flow, plantings toxic to cattle, replacing culverts, tree damage, leaving construction refuse, and soil compaction.

One very important aspect of site work is collecting the top soil and putting it back on top where it was. This is true not only for agricultural land but for forest land as well. This requires stop-work authority by state inspectors to make sure workers are not cutting corners on site remediation.

The DEIS has no chapter on Invasive species but this is another possible corner-cutting area that should be monitored with someone with stop-work authority so that equipment used in wet areas is cleaned off and made to dry for 24 hours where invasive species are present and where minor work delays may be necessary.

Enbridge has a long history of running old and damaged pipelines into the ground, of poor clean-up practices in the Kalamazoo spill, operating pipelines with no leases, long spill history, and even corporate deception of the tar sands in the Kalamazoo pipe at the time of the spill. They cannot be trusted without monitors with stop-work authority. The Department of Commerce is completely remiss in simply regurgitating the Enbridge agenda in the DEIS without even a discussion of this issue.

Another fatal flaw to the adequacy of the DEIS is not a complete set of alternative are analyzed since the project purpose is to get oil to market, not just to 'replace' in place an aging pipeline. What are the consequences if Old Line 3 is shut down with no substitute? What about the adequacy of the other North American pipeline projects in play to deliver product? What about KXL? No mention has been made of the Spectra pipeline from Alberta to Illinois that Enbridge recently purchased which can easily be expanded since it has the cross-border permit and a corridor and runs currently only a couple of hundred thousand barrels per day. As DC notes on p 16 of the Final MPCA interagency comments of 2017: "KXL—Status no longer 'denied' per presidential executive order. Given that, is this now a feasible alternative, at least in part? The last paragraph in this section may need to be amended. Overall, now that KXL and Dakota Access pipelines are a "go", how does that impact the need to replace L3?"

There is no evaluation of invasive species risk (endangered species, yes). We have huge issues with aquatic invasive species like zebra mussels. Are there any contaminated bodies of water routes traverse? Will opening up a pipeline route speed the spread? How will Enbridge manage not facilitating the spread of species? Will they do what boat owners now do and hose off their equipment and let it dry for a day? Even if this slows the work schedule? Are there permanent risks with a new corridor? Which routes are more susceptible? These questions need to be answered before any new corridor is approved through the lake country routes since we have had enough Minnesota lakes destroyed already by invasive species. This is a key question. What monitoring with what authority to compel compliance?

The following study was done proving that in many cases there is plenty of room around Line 3 to remove it in contrast to the miss-information in Chapter 8 and Appendix B so that it should be land owners choice whether to have it removed or not. Removal of Line 3 also corresponds to State regulations requiring the remediation of mining sites or gas stations when their active life is ended. The third option beyond just 'leave it in' or 'take it out' not analyzed by the DEIS should be 'land-owners choice' which should be made a requirement by the PUC if a route is chosen:

Line 3 Pipeline Distance Apart Study

The distance between pipes of Enbridge pipelines 1, 3, and 4 was measured today, May 17, 2017 by John Munter on only public, named thoroughfares between Wawina and Grand Rapids Minnesota that can easily be verified without going on private property. While the DEIS of Line 3 claims many times that there are "generally" only 10-15 ft (which is a mis-characterization of the Enbridge data in Appendix B which claims that a "majority" are within 7-18 ft) of separation between all these pipes everywhere, the reality is starkly different and begs the question about offering land owners, tribal landowners, cities, counties, and even the state the option of whether to have the pipe removed or not. (some property owners may, indeed, have pipes so close together they preferred them not pulled up.)

Fifteen samplings were taken and the average distance between Line 1 and Line 3 was found to be 18 ½ ft. Fourteen samplings were averaged for the distance between Line 3 and Line 4 (One adjacent pipeline was not even in view for Hwy 65 and not counted in). These distances averaged 30 ½ ft. The total of numbers falling within the Enbridge "10-15%" was five out of thirty (17%--rounding up to be charitable)

If the DOC, PCA, DNR, and Enbridge can't be trusted to measure pipe distances of what value is the rest of the 5,000 page DEIS. The obvious truth is that Enbridge provided the misleading figures and the agencies gullibly believed everything they said:

Here is the raw data: Feet Apart between Lines 1, 3, and 4

Paul Stolen's argument about the 3% berms changing water flow should be combined with the defective analysis of new corridor co-location of pipelines. The DEIS foresees a possibility of one extra pipeline. No. There could be Lines 1, 2, and 4 and a new Sandpiper. Lines 1, 2, and 4 are especially foreseeable since they were made in the 50's and 60's! These will require a larger corridor. This requires an expanded EIS study. Many, many exceptions have been made already to go around sensitive areas in the preferred corridor. How many more will need to be made or considered? How much greater an impact will this 3% bermed and cleared water fence and conduit have along with a wide enough corridor to accommodate four more pipelines? As PE notes on page 11 of the Final MPCA interagency comments of 2017: "I question these "permanent berms" as they could disrupt existing drainage/surface flows to waterbodies, could impact groundwater recharge and infiltration, and could create incidental wetlands along the pipeline corridor."

Not Including Superior to IL in the routing and operation analysis is a fatal flaw. It is not done because all routes going through Superior would lose out to SA-04. While SA-04 would be a brand new pipeline, Line 61 going south is 10 years older (2009) and could be expected to have 10 years more wear and tear. Its 42 inches with volume up to 1.2 billion bpd with Line 3 added oil could push it to the max or require expansion. They have already been doing surveying: "While the possibility of expansion along Enbridge's existing pipeline corridor between Superior, Wis. and Pontiac, Ill. was first introduced in February 2014, we have consistently communicated to our landowners, stakeholders and the media since then that the company does not have a project." (Enbridge site) Line 5 going east could be expected to take more tar sands as well which is an older pipeline. It is outrageous the DEIS can claim twice as many spills on the SA-04 route and boldly admit because it is 'longer'. As KTS on page 15 of the Final MPCA Interagency notes of 2017 says: "If APR crude is moved from Superior down to Illinois (where SA-04) crude would be sent then the Wisconsin pipeline mileage (e.g. line 61) needs to be included in this analysis. Otherwise this is not a fair comparison of APR and SA-04 because the crude would be traveling for approximately the same distance for both routes to Illinois. WS notes on p 19 of the Final MPCA interagency comments of 2017 in a fuller discussion:

"The Apples-Oranges issue is a potential fatal flaw. As raised earlier we need to compare impacts equally. I won't repeat at length since this isn't a new issue. In scoping we include SA4 as a reasonable alternative after Sandpiper was tabled. SA4 impacts are analyzed for the entire project length. There is no dispute that at 760K some quantity of project oil will also travel on the APR (current Preferred Corridor) from Superior to the same end point as APR. The PDEIS analyzes construction and operation impacts for the full length of SA4 to termination at the refinery. For APR, impact analysis terminates at Superior. There is no analysis of operational impacts during the life of the project for oil traveling down Enbridge mainline to the SA4 termination point. There is a very brief mention. There is a very brief mention that Enbridge is significantly upgrading its Wisconsin mainline capacity, but no mention that APR oil will travel that mainline or analysis of potential impacts during the operation life of the project. The comparison of APR and SA4 is largely dependent on the large difference in length; while this is largely valid for construction, the operational phase for APR oil going down the Wisconsin mainline is missing."

The shut-down of Old Line 3 is a reasonably foreseeable action and should be part of the No Action analysis since it would only take one big spill to cause such an uproar to close it down—or discovery of a long-present pin-hole leak. The DEIS is flawed in assuming Old line 3 will go on forever and that running it until it totally fails is socially optimal. This approach makes the pipeline opponents points that it is not a question of “if” a spill occurs but “when”. As DB comments on p 7 in the Final MPCA interagency notes of 2017: “I have not seen in the EIS any analysis or discussion that indicates this crude oil transfer capacity is needed by the larger society or economy and is socially optimal.” Additionally, WS on page 21 of the Final MPCA interagency comments: “: I continue to be troubled that we have no analysis of the cost to repair and maintain and accept Enbridge’s conclusion that it is “cost-prohibitive and not feasible” at face value. We are comparing this to a minimum 2.1 billion project. If this is a key assumption in the No Action alternative how do we support it?”

A fatal flaw in the DEIS is comparing wells on farmland in SA-04 to the water-rich un-fragmented forest of the Preferred Corridor. This is ridiculous. Wells are surrounded by topsoil and there may be an aquifer but you have to get to the aquifer. A leak on a buried pipe on farmland would normally migrate upward to surrounding soil rather than to surrounding water on the Preferred Corridor. As KSM notes on page 10 of the Final MPCA interagency comments: “.” I don’t consider a water supply well to be a groundwater discharge point. It is a groundwater extraction point.” But, this is the only way the DEIS can get around the MPCA and DNR comments in the old docket of Jan 23, 2015 which preferred a southern route over the lake country route—because of the water issues. A related issue is how the karst geography is presented very prejudicially in the ES—which is only 11 miles and could be circumnavigated just like many, many exceptions have been made for the Preferred Corridor. The difference is that you cannot avoid all the flowing water resources in the glacial moraine topography of the Preferred Corridor. In contrast to the large, colored ‘wells versus wilderness’ graph of ES-2 padded with stats worried about wells the very small graph on the following page of “High Quality Surface Waters” showing SA-04 having almost none is almost illegible. Additionally, it could be pointed out as KTS did on page 15 in the Final MPCA interagency comments of 2017 regarding that: “From this table it should be pointed out in the text, where this table is discussed in the text (including conclusion sections), that APR makes 6 crossings of MN Nationwide River Inventory rivers, while SA-04 makes 2 crossings of such rivers in MN.” In addition RL notes on p 19 of the Final MPCA interagency comments of 2017: “...there seems to be no thought given to the relative ease of gaining access to the areas that are downstream of waterbody crossings. While Cardno may argue that the easement itself provides a means of access to the waterbody crossings, the bigger concern is how to gain access to remote areas downstream of waterbody crossings. In the case of stream crossings, the opportunity for transport of spilled oil by the stream greatly complicates the process of access for cleanup. Flowing water crossings then represent a much greater concern and should be part of the calculation of risk (hopefully that was done but not sure)” The MPCA and DNR letters of Jan 23, 2015 emphasize how difficult access is into wild rice areas in the Preferred Corridor as well.

A fatal flaw in the DEIS is not analyzing the worst case scenario for emergency response to a spill along the various routes including SA-04. The reason that this is not done is that it would show SA-04 to be much more accessible since it is along established roads. Secondly, spills would be much more visible to the local populace for a quicker response time. This should be a very important criteria for route choice and it isn't analyzed. As LK says on page 14 of the Final MPCA interagency comments of 2017: "A comparative analysis should be made that looks at the feasibility of addressing a catastrophic failure for each of the route alternatives. And SA-04. How easy would it be to access a pipeline break along each of these potential alignments? In each case, how long would it take to get appropriate oil spill equipment to the most remote areas of these proposed corridors? How easy or difficult would it be to address a large spill given their proximity to roads, etc." WS is also very concerned about this issue on page 25 of the Final MPCA interagency comments of 2017: "How does the recent spill discovered in ND that was leaking for weeks square with the last paragraph 'pinhole releases...become visible in several hours to a few days.' This may be stated in Enbr 2016a, but we should address the 176,000 gallon spill reported in dec 2016 about 150 miles from the Dakota Access camp." WS expands upon this concern on p 26 of the Final MPCA interagency comments of 2017: 'First responders generally arrive within minutes...' The concern with APR, as PCA and DNR comments in the past have mentioned, is the large areas of limited access in the event of a spill. My concern is how this hasn't really been factored into the analysis or mentioned much at all. A pipeline in a roadless area has both leak detection and leak response challenges." Exactly.

16 MR. JOHN MUNTER: My name is John
17 Munter, J-O-H-N, M-U-N-T-E-R.

18 I want to say first, the major
19 oil companies are all getting out of Canada.
20 They don't see a future for (indiscernible)
21 barrel of oil anymore and they're rushing into
22 the (indiscernible).

23 The Saudis are cranking out all
24 the oil we need for the next few years. That's 25 why we're still so backlogged with oil from

1 these sources, up until about the 2020s, and
2 the world oil demand will start to be tanking.

3 If you look around, you'll see
4 India and China and Europe are all going to
5 electric vehicles and that's going to tank the
6 oil. So we'll have all we need rather than
7 depending on oil from Canada, which is
8 21 percent more carbon intensive and polluting.

9 I'd like to talk about the
10 abandonment issue that was brought up earlier
11 because I live near Line 3, and that's a huge
12 issue for property owners, for property values,
13 for one, for possible contamination.

14 What's under the pipe if they
15 don't pull it out? That needs to be
16 discovered. What happens to the pipe once the 17 heavy oil is not there; it starts rising in the 18 ground and becomes a hazard and could change
19 the water flow, become a water conduit.

20 So that needs to be pulled out.
21 It can be done. In the DEIS, it said that the
22 pipes are 10, 15 feet apart. And that's the
23 argument for not pulling the pipes out.

24 That's actually the Department of
25 Commerce's version of what Enbridge actually

1 said. Enbridge actually said there's 17,
2 18 feet, if you look in appendix B. Even
3 that's kind of deceptive.

4 We did a study from Wawina to
5 Grand Rapids on 15 named public roads, can
6 verify, and we found that the space between
7 Line 1 and Line 3 is 18 feet on the average,
8 and the space between 3 and 4 is 30 feet on the 9 average, 30.6 feet. There's no argument should
10 be a landowners' choice to pull it out.

11 Other land is on tribal land,
12 county land, state land. That should be
13 county, state, and tribal choices. You may
14 find pipes that are close together. Fine, if
15 they want to keep their pipes in, fine.

16 But for the most part, landowners
17 want them out, and this is what we do with gas
18 stations that are no longer operating. They're
19 forced to take them out. This is what we do
20 with mines in Minnesota. They're forced to
21 remediate them.

22 The same thing should be true for
23 pipelines.

24 And so this will create a
25 $1.28 billion cleanup job or deconstruction

1829-1

1 project. A lot of jobs for people in northern
2 Minnesota, cutting up the pipe, throwing it on
3 a truck, driving it out, and this is what we
4 should be focusing on for jobs in northern
5 Minnesota.

6 So thanks.

5 MR. JOHN MUNTER: My name is 6 John Munter, J-O-H-N, M-U-N-T-E-R.

7 I'm a retired guy from Warba,
8 and the Public Utilities Commission needs to 9 render a judgment of no build on this project
10 because the PCA and the DNR both submitted
11 letters January 23rd, 2015, into these past
12 dockets saying if the pipeline is to be built,
13 it should be built (indiscernible) of I-94,
14 should be what they called SA-03, now it's 15 SA-04, which currently goes down the North
16 Dakota border and then cuts through southern 17 Minnesota and goes to Joliet, Illinois.

18 The current project has to be 19 rejected before they can resubmit for that 20 one, but they have done some analysis. By 21 comparison, this is the DEIS here, part of it,
22 the executive summary, is very deceptive by 23 comparison.

24 You see here, this graph, red
25 means bad and green means good, and so

1833-1

1 Enbridge's project is here on this green side.
2 SA-04 is two over. It's got some red in it,
3 some orange in it.

4 If you look at it more in a
5 detailed manner, it's drinking water areas of 6 interest, which is bad, SA-04. And drinking
7 water sources, well, yes, they have a lot more
8 wells in SA-04 because they have a lot more
9 people, two and a half times more people, and 10 they have a lot more farmland, so of course.

11 But if you look farther down to 12 biological areas of interest under preferred
13 route of Enbridge, through the lake country,
14 you see 102,000 biological areas of interest as 15 opposed to 369 system alternative SA-04.

16 So that means there's one-third
17 of one percent, so the biological areas of 18 interest in the system alternative, SA-04, and 19 that should be weighted a whole lot more.

20 In fact, there's a whole lot of 21 commodity production areas of interest or 22 37,000, and in the -- which is, I would assume,
23 wild rice there, but only 191 acres in the 24 system alternative. So It's a very deceptive
25 section.

1 Two pages over, under, "Ground
2 waters," the second paragraph, SA-04 is the
3 only Certificate of Need alternative that 4 crosses vulnerable karst topography, which they
5 call fractures, joints, sinkholes, cavities,
6 caves.

7 Well, they neglect to mention
8 it's a limited area that can't be gone around
9 very easily with exceptions as they are 10 planning to do in the lake country corridor.

11 And by comparison, there's no
12 discussion of a glacial marine in SA-04, which 13 PCA makes a big deal about, that you can't tell 14 where the water is going, the oil is going to 15 flow.

16 There's more topographical
17 distances. So you see a lot more fast water
18 flow, and so you have pollution of bigger
19 bodies of water like lakes and aquifers instead 20 of a well.

21 So thank you.

MR. JOHN MUNTER: John Munter from Warba, again. And I feel like a 21st archeologist reading this DEIS document, looking at the 20th Century, because there's so many defects in there, we can't figure out if there's any good water studies in there that aren't paid for by Enbridge, for example. And we don't see good peer review data in there, and comments from professionals of the past have been ignored. And it goes even down to my research. I live up in Warba. We did a study from Rowena to Grand Rapids that we found the pipes from

2005-1

1 Line 3 to 4 were actually 30 feet apart and not 10,
2 15 feet apart, as the DEIS said. There's a vast 3 discrepancy there, for example. So the more you
4 dig, the more you'll find.

5 And so this makes the argument -- and
6 to the Department of Commerce's credit, they are 7 looking into that and want to verify my numbers.
8 But this was in 15 named road between Rowena and 9 Grand Rapids. That pipeline can be pulled up. And 10 so that's where people can being employed, is cut up

MR. JOHN MUNTER: My name is John Munter. J-O-H-N. M-U-N-T-E-R. Retired guy from Warba. And as Allen was saying, there's huge discrepancies in the DEIS we found when we were doing our pipeline study.

23

25

In the DEIS, for example, they're saying generally the pipes are 10, 15 feet apart, just plastered all over the document. And we found in our study that, on the average, from Rowena to Grand Rapids and 14, 15 named roads, that they're

2006-1

1 actually 30 feet apart from Line 3 to Line 4 and
2 Line 1 to 3 is 18 feet apart. And to their credit,
3 though, the Department of Commerce has come up to me
4 and said, we want to look into that data and verify
5 it and maybe ask Enbridge some questions. And so
6 I'm gratified that they're responsive to that.

7 And we need all of your responses, all
8 of your eyes on the document, because the more you
9 look at it, the more holes you'll see and the better
10 this document will be.

11 There's four criteria they use for 12 assessing the certificate of need. The first is 13 basically the need. And the problem with this is 14 we're not being given all the economic data. And it
15 won't be available. They're in the process of 16 hiring an economist right now, and all this stuff
17 won't be available till after all of the public
18 comments are made. And it's not a fair process to 19 not have complete disclosure here, because this 20 meeting involves both the route and the need itself.
21 They're combined.

22 Secondly, in terms of the routing,
23 it's been amply talked about earlier that there's 24 real active water studies and a big problem with 25 Enbridge not wanting to disclose how much oil is

1 flowing at certain point. So we can't do proper
2 risk assessments, which is just ridiculous. They're
3 using the idea that, oh, there might be terrorism,
4 so we can't, you know, disclose where the most oil
5 is flowing through. Well, just call up the 6 pipeline, and you'll probably find it. But all you
7 have to do is -- for a terrorist is to go up
8 Highway 2 and find Line Number 3 there on the road
9 or you can go into a substation or you can find all
10 the exposed pipe, you know, in all these places
11 along Highway 2 and everywhere.

12 So it's not -- it's just a ridic-- and 13 you wouldn't, you know, stop voting because a
14 terrorist might blow up your voting booth someplace.
15 You know, this destroys democ-- really destroys the 16 democratic process.

17 So the third criteria is -- most of 18 the third and fourth, which has not been dealt with 19 at all by the DEIS anywhere: The consequences to 20 society of granting a certificate of need are more 21 favorable than the consequences of denying the 22 certificate of need.

23 So we've heard a lot about the 24 negative stuff, but they're not putting this in a
25 chapter heading, like, well, here's the positive

1 stuff; here's the negative stuff; let's compare, you
2 know. You can't have a real debate, unless you're 3 going to provide both sides to it.

4 I mean, for example, could it be
5 cheaper if we don't have oil coming down from 6 Canada? Possibly. You know, what happens if we
7 import all the oil from farther south or farther
8 east or refineries outside of our area? Is it 3
9 cents cheaper? 10 cents cheaper? Is that a
10 benefit? Well, that should be discussed here pro
11 and con. Right?

12 Reliable supply. That's been in past
13 documents we've read that Enbridge has put out
14 rationales, you know, about reliable supplies from 15 Canada, all this stuff. We don't really see it in 16 there, as far as I don't see it anyway.

17 But, you know, there's -- this goes
18 back to the oil embargo days. Now we have an 19 oversupply, so we're in a whole different
20 environment of oil. But oil is a global commodity.
21 And so even if we stopped buying Saudi oil and just 22 relied on tar sands, it wouldn't change anything.
23 The price might skyrocket.

24 Well, the world is really going to EB
25 vehicles. And, actually, a lot of important

1 commentators are saying that there's going to be a
2 decline in the world oil demand in the 2020s and --
3 which is only going to be a few years away. Because 4 even India has a goal by 2030 to be 100 percent
5 electric vehicles, for example.

6 So then the fourth criteria talks
7 about it has not been demonstrated the design,
8 construction, or operation of the proposed facility
9 would fail to comply with relevant policies, rules,
10 or regulations of federal, state, and local 11 agencies.

12 So we ask -- when people come for a
13 job interview, you know, they check out their job
14 history, they go online and see if they said
15 anything nasty about their prior employers, they 16 look at their DWIs. And are we doing this with 17 Enbridge? Are we really looking at all the various 18 issues of genocide up in Canada?

19 And Bad River Band up in Wisconsin
20 doesn't have a permit since 2013. What is Enbridge
21 going to do with Line Number 5? Are they going 22 around Bad River? Is it going to -- and what about 23 all the landowners up here who just have issues with 24 Enbridge?

25 So these should be mediated before the

1 PUC grants anything. And it could be a forced
2 mediation, where it doesn't have to happen before
3 the PUC makes the decision. But there should be 4 some process so all of these issues are dealt with 5 before the final judgment of the PUC because,
6 otherwise, there won't be anything happening
7 afterwards, we know.

MR. JOHN MUNTER: My name is John Munter, M-U-N-T-E-R. Department of Com-- I'm from Warba, by the way. I'm a retired guy.

The Department of Commerce has been given an impossible job here. I don't think the DEIS can be fixed. There are four criteria for the PUC to judge adequacy. The Department of Commerce has just now gotten agreement from the Public Utilities Commission to hire an economist. That means that the economic data will be coming someday in the future, after all your public hearings are done. And so if you want to get the full story, you have to go online and go to these other hearings, and then comment on that. I'm not sure that's been

1 clear to people.

2 So that's a problem for the MEPA
3 process where route, rote, and need here should be
4 combined in this public engagement process. As it
5 is, the Department of Commerce relies on the Energy
6 Information Administration, the EIA, of the United 7 States, which has been very wrong by factors of 8 seven and ten on projections of renewable energy,
9 Jeff St. John at Greentech Media says, for four 10 reasons: One, the EIS doesn't track falling cost of 11 renewables; two, they underestimate the performance
12 of current facilities, renewable facilities'
13 improvements; and, third, there are future low costs
14 of renewables; and, fourth, the rise of solar is 15 missed as well. Consequently, the EIA projects
16 world oil demand rising 5 percent through roughly
17 2040. This conflicts with present reality,
18 unfortunately. All major oil companies are fleeing 19 Canada with Saudi oil and Permian oil flooding the 20 market. The big boom in the Permian is why we still 21 have a glut of oil, and it's going to go on for a 22 while.

23 This is why many economists and astute
24 observers are saying that we're going to be hitting 25 peak oil demand very soon. Carbon tracker says in 2007-1

1 2020. Michael Liebreich at Bloomberg Energy Finance
2 says between the 2023 and 2028. Michael Seeley of 3 Deutsche Bank, 2024. Simon Henry, who was a shell
4 chief financial officer, actually, 2022 to 2032.
5 The World Energy Council, 2030. The ratings agency
6 Fitch suggests pumping electric vehicle batteries
7 could be the death spiral for the oil industry,
8 actually.

9 This is why the second criteria --
10 alternative is problematic, because it doesn't
11 consider the Saudi and Permian oils as alternatives.
12 Instead, it talks about trucks and trains coming
13 from Canada. And if that was reasonable, we would 14 have seen that happen after the KXL was defeated,
15 and that didn't happen. I mean, why not have wagon
16 trains and horseback and mule trains coming down
17 with oil, I mean, the U.S. carbon emissions and you
18 have to subtract the burps and that type of thing.

19 But -- so this is why the second
20 criteria is problematic. You're not dealing with 21 reality here, but options that are really not going
22 to happen with trucks and trains.

23 Thirdly, there's no discussion of 24 consequences to society are more favorable to 25 granting the certificate of need than denying it.

1 We've heard a lot about all of the dreadful
2 consequences about what is the benefit. Is there
3 going to be a drop in gasoline prices? Is there any 4 benefit, actually, to putting this project through,
5 really? I don't see that discussion in the DEIS.

6 Fourthly, would the proposed facility
7 comply with relevant policies, rules or regulations
8 of other federal, state, or local agencies? And I
9 don't believe that it complies with Minnesota
10 greenhouse gas goals. There's the Alberta First
11 Nation genocide issue of the First Nations north 12 downstream from the tar sands. There's the 13 environmental justice issues around Detroit refinery
14 and the Port Arthur refinery, and little bit
15 connected action of the Bad River Band in Wisconsin
16 of Line Number 5. It doesn't have a lease since
17 2013. I consider that an environmental justice
18 issue as well.

19 So I'll quit there. Thank you.

Executive Summary

In contrast to the DNR and PCA letters of Jan 23, 2015 in the Sandpiper docket which both preferred a southern route on farm land compared to the lake route through un-fragmented forest, wild rice, and much fast-flowing water, the Executive Summary is weighted towards worry over scattered wells on farm land.

The most egregious and prominent display of prejudice against SA-04 and towards Enbridge's Preferred Corridor is colorfully displayed in all its full-page glory on ES-2. Red and orange are colored 'bad' and green and yellow are colored 'good'. The only way that the Preferred Corridor can look pretty compared to SA-04 is to insert not one but two "drinking water" sources (since there are a lot more people around SA-04) and paint them red and orange and ignore the 102,000 "biological areas of interest" compared to only 369 in SA-04.

2447-1

The definition of "Drinking water areas of interest" includes only "Wellhead protection Areas" which is painted red for SA-04. The definition for "HCA drinking water sources". You have to flip to 10.4.1 for that answer! HCA or High Consequence Area drinking water sources happen to include "those supplied by surface water or wells and where a secondary source of water is not available"—wells again! It might be considered doubtful if too many farmers are slurping up water in nitrate-laden drainage ditches. Next comes: "The land area in which spilled hazardous liquid could affect the water supply is also treated as an HCA". Yet, there is no problem in the Preferred Corridor with plenty of fast-flowing surface water and easy access to ground water? But, finally, we come to the truth in the last sentence: "This HCA was derived from state Wellhead Protection Area or Source Water Area"—Wells, again, but this time it is just areas with fewer good wells since most of them have probably been already poisoned with nitrates, pesticides, and herbicides.

2447-2

The trouble with this analysis is that ignores the low likelihood that these wells will be affected by a spill—BECAUSE THEY ARE ON MILES OF LEVEL FARMLAND, compared to hilly and wet terrain of the preferred corridor conducive to spills that cannot be cleaned up unlike on farm land.

While there are 16 times more wells on SA-04 than the Preferred Corridor and 12 times more lonely wells marked dramatically by color differences we find in the “biological areas of interest” only 1/3 of one percent of them on SA-04—but no dramatic red or orange color to alarm the reader of the Preferred Corridor. How is that fair?

When come to the graph on the following page “high quality water resources” we find a tiny little graph 2 ½ inches by 2 ½ inches where the Preferred Corridor has ample amounts of Tullibee lakes, outstanding lakes, wild rice lakes, and trout streams while SA-04 has only a few nice lakes and trout streams—if you have your magnifying glass with you to see them. What makes the Preferred Corridor look GREAT though is the “Transport by Rail” and “Transport by Truck” in between the other two showing them to be vicious killers of trout streams especially.

The next area of appalling bias comes in the second and last paragraph under ‘Groundwater’ on the next page. “karst topography” is the bogeyman full of scary “fractures, joints, sinkholes, cavities, caves and void spaces”. What this isn’t saying is they only comprise about 11 miles in a few counties WHICH CAN BE AVOIDED by reroutes just like a tremendous number of reroutes have been approved already for the Preferred Corridor—especially can reroutes be done on all the wide-open farmland of SA-04. What is especially discriminating is that there exists no balance in this small section discussing the crazy glacial moraines of the Preferred Corridor where water can run any which way and faster with more sloping topography. Faster flow can mean wider spill area along with difficulty of access and slowness of finding them—especially pinhole leaks—in comparison to pipes along roadsides in SA-04 where spills can be spotted more easily.

Page ES-16 presents another egregious misrepresentation by claiming at the top: “SA-04 would affect the most acres because it travels the greatest distance” without explaining that the Preferred route analysis stops in Superior! This warped analysis pervades the DEIS (‘There will be twice as many spills on SA-04 because it is twice as long’). This type of analysis is especially appalling for operational impacts since Line 61 going South from Superior is not analyzed but for construction impacts, the potential for Enbridge to put in a twin of 61 called 66 is not explored as a possible connecting project. After all, surveying has already been done on a potential Line 66!

On the same page in the third paragraph the DEIS tries to equate “high quality agricultural soils” with “high quality forested and aquatic habitats” without explaining that spill on topsoil can be cleaned up and remediated but spills in water are forever—at least to a certain extent.

Next on the same page the DEIS raise the bogeyman of trucks and trains clogging commerce without analyzing if that is a realistic possibility. The DEIS also brings up the “risk of incidents involving fatalities” without discussing the vastly increased safety standards mandated by the US and Canada or that pipeline spills are 10 times larger. In fact it has been a few years since we had a lot of train congestion.

Table ES 3 makes a big point that greenhouse gases are worse for SA-04 than the Preferred Corridor since they don’t count the Superior to IL segment again or possibility of engineering a new Line 66.

ES-22 promotes the fiction that Line 3 is “Generally 10-15 feet apart” from the others which is a bastardization of what Enbridge actually said in Appendix B where the “majority of the pipes are 7-18 feet apart” We have beat this into a dead horse and I expect it to be fixed but “the majority” of short distances are between Lines 1 and 3 while there is still 20-30-40 ft of space between Lines 3 and 4 allowing plenty of work space.

ES-26 might have more luck finding a less impactful route for Native Americans if they included SA-04, although I believe there are some there too.

Environmental Justice

The EJ section of the DEIS--Chapter 11—is deficient in quality and quantity. It needs to explain the worst case scenario for oil spills and leaks along the various EJ routes—including SA-04—so that a person can evaluate operationally which would be the best route. Would a spill on the Preferred Corridor possibly be worse in impacting a large wild rice lake than the same large spill on Fond du Lac or Leech Lake which would not? Certainly the economic consequences could be quantified for large spills not able to be well remediated. Any EIS without this analysis is not acceptable. 2449-1

Chapter 11 does not mention the evolving law of The United Nations Declaration of the Rights of Indigenous Peoples' which talks about 'free and informed consent' which is different from the 'consultation' by the DOC and requires a higher level of engagement than is present in the DEIS which acknowledges a "large pattern of structural racism" but seems OK with going ahead with more impositions of the pipeline project anyway.

Chapter 11 doesn't do any real analysis of benefits to society versus deficits like using the Equator Principle but merely throws up its hands saying all routes are problematic but that doesn't negate making a choice. How is a decision-maker supposed to learn anything from this chapter?

Section 11.4.3 mentions how wild parsnip was introduced to Fond du Lac during pipeline construction which is a noxious weed with health effects and suggests the same could be done in the Preferred Corridor but gives no remedial suggestions like saving top soil or planting grass. And, it does not bring up all the other possible invasive species like zebra mussels and prevention protocols. 2449-2

The DEIS as a whole does not notice wild rice watersheds which is a problem since they are so prevalent along the Preferred Corridor. It doesn't discuss protecting them or how to restore them. This is a big problem and needs to be fixed before the document is found to be acceptable.

The end of Chapter 11 suggests some mitigation ideas such as the last bullet point: "Identifying clear consequences and penalties for failure to implement effective mitigation measures." This sounds great but who is going to do what and when? The answer is "These measures can be evaluated in the final Certificate of Need or route permit decision" But will they be? And, after the public has no more chance to weigh in and require it before the PUC final decision? Why can't we have a clear, upfront statement of what the State and Enbridge are going to do in the DEIS and FEIS programmatically now if this just isn't pie-in-sky window dressing for an ideal world? The state needs to have on-the-ground monitoring capability and stop-work authority to implement protocols to reduce the likelihood of invasive weeds and other species which may become long-term problems.

The DEIS does not cover EJ in connected projects to Line 3 such as the lack of a lease on Line 5 from Superior since 2013 of the Bad River Band in Wisconsin which has rejected further negotiation in January of 2017 and requested Enbridge to vacate its territory which Enbridge so far has refused to do. This is reminiscent of Red Lake in Minnesota where Enbridge had no lease from pipe placement in 1949 and stubbornly refused to leave until recently when Red Lake finally accepted a deal. Will Enbridge keep arm-twisting Bad River while maintaining an illegal presence on their land?

The entire tars sands project in Alberta is the beneficiary of First Nations downstream who bear the costs of the huge, earthen tailings ponds comprising fifty square kilometers or as long as twelve miles and as high as three hundred feet which leak so much a day that Cree and Dene First Nations downstream are afraid to hunt, fish, gather, and drink the water for fear of getting cancer. This has been called 'cultural genocide' and has been proscribed by international conventions. Dr. John O'Connor of Fort Chipewyan was well-known for his findings of high cancer rates and rare cancers in his area. Very little remediation is being done with only a few silt ponds being dried out and trees planted. These ponds are a loaded gun pointed at the people downstream when the tar sands industry is bankrupt and no longer tends these earthworks. They should be drained using centrifuges or reverse osmosis to defuse their danger. Other states and companies should not be complicit in this on-going abuse which could be likened to slavery in the South before the Civil War.

The 'Truth and Reconciliation Commission of Canada' has recognized this cultural genocide in its "Calls to Action":

"92. We call upon the corporate sector in Canada to adopt the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples as a reconciliation framework and to apply its principles, norms, and standards to corporate policy and core operational activities involving Indigenous peoples and their lands and resources. This would include, but not be limited to the following:

- i. Commit to meaningful consultation, building respectful relationships, and obtaining the free, prior, and informed consent of Indigenous peoples before proceeding with economic development projects.

How does complicity in the tar sands square with not violating Minnesota Rule 7853 D regarding complying with federal “relevant policies, rules or regulations” in regard to genocide and cultural genocide and compliance with international protocols and standards of conduct?

Public Comment on behalf of Brent Murcia
Docket Numbers CN-14-916 and PPL-15-137

Hello,

My name is Brent Murcia. I am 22 years old and a resident of Minneapolis. I have lived in Minnesota for 5 years, and recently graduated from Carleton College with a degree in Environmental Studies. My specific focus area within the Environmental Studies program was environmental justice, and I am familiar with standard environmental justice methodology as well as the use of GIS as a result of those studies. As a young person concerned with environmental justice and climate change, I have been involved with movements to stop oil pipelines for four years. I have attended four of the public meetings on the Line 3 Draft EIS, worked to educate the public on the issue, and participated in a number of public actions to raise awareness about it. I am also one of 13 individuals intervening as a Party in these proceedings under the label “Youth Climate Intervenor;” however, I wish to note that my comments here on the Draft EIS are my own and are not being made behalf of that group.

I have reviewed a significant portion of the Line 3 Draft EIS, though I regret that as simply an average citizen (and someone currently working at 3 jobs), I have been unable to study this 5,000 document as thoroughly as I would have liked. Still, in my review of the document, I have noticed significant flaws that should be fixable within the scope of a proper review process. I raise them here in the hopes that the people with the privilege and responsibility of being paid to work on this document will take note and do their best to address them. In addition to my personal comments here, I also plan to work diligently as one of the Youth Climate Intervenor to continue gathering evidence on the impacts of Line 3, with the goal of creating a more complete public record to advise the PUC on this project.

In these comments, I will focus on two areas of concern: the overall scope of the Draft EIS, and the specific methodology of the Environmental Justice section. These areas do not represent the entirety of my concerns with this document, but rather are the subjects I feel most qualified to comment on given my lived experience and knowledge of these issues. Given constraints on my time and resources, I have chosen to limit my comments to these two points.

I. Overall Scope of the Draft EIS.

Page 3 of Chapter 3 (“Regulatory Framework”) states the purpose of this Environmental Impact Statement as follows:

“An EIS is intended to facilitate informed decision-making by entities with regulatory authority over a project. It also assists citizens in providing guidance to decision-makers regarding the project. An EIS describes and analyzes the potential environmental and socioeconomic impacts of a project and possible mitigation measures, including alternatives to the project. It does not advocate or state a preference for a specific alternative. Instead, it analyzes and compares alternatives so that citizens, agencies, and governments can work from a common set of facts.”

The purpose of this EIS is thus established as being a complete and useful document to inform decision-makers on the impacts of this project and its alternatives. Of course, as the EIS notes, an important step is to determine what comprises a complete and thorough review.

As Page 7 of Chapter 3 describes:

The first step in preparing an EIS is scoping. The purpose of scoping is “to reduce the scope and bulk of the EIS, identify only those potentially significant issues relevant to the proposed project, define the form, level of detail, content, alternatives, time table for preparation, and preparers of the EIS, and to determine the permits for which information will be developed concurrently with the EIS.”

The section titled “Scoping” (3.3.1) describes the process by which alternative technologies and system alternatives, route alternatives, and route segment alternatives were selected for inclusion in this document. However, a notable omission in this section is any justification for a time-scale over which this environmental analysis is to take place.

The temporal scope of this Draft EIS appears to vary from chapter to chapter, and indeed from section to section. For example, consider Chapter 5 (“Existing Conditions, Impacts and Mitigation- Certificate of Need”). In Section 5.3 (“Socioeconomic Environment”), some permanent but minor or negligible impacts on resources - timber, mining, etc - are considered “into perpetuity,” and income from property taxes is considered to be “permanent” or “for the life of the Project.” However, in section 5.2.7 (“Air Quality”), the comparably massive impacts of climate change (as measured by social cost of carbon) are only considered over a span of 30 years.

A 30-year analysis for climate change impacts is unacceptable. Consider that page 6 of Chapter 2 (“Project Description”) of the Draft EIS states:

“The Applicant anticipates that the physical life of the Line 3 Replacement pipeline (i.e., the number of years that the pipeline would be capable of transporting crude oil) would be indefinite given appropriate construction, maintenance, and integrity systems. The economic life of the Project (i.e., the number of years that continued operation of the Project would be feasible) is anticipated to be no less than 30 years.”

If the Line 3 Replacement is expected to operate for “no less than” 30 years, then limiting analysis of a major impact to 30 years constitutes inadequate environmental review. In 30 years, the impacts of climate change resulting from today’s emissions are expected to be greater, not lesser. And fossil fuels burned in 31 years will have equal or greater impacts on the environment compared with fossil fuels burned today. The continued operation of the Line 3 Replacement in 30 years seems highly realistic, given that the existing Line 3 is currently over 50 years old, along with much of the rest of Enbridge’s mainline corridor. The Air Quality section should thus account for this, and consider the social cost of carbon at least 60 years out.

Or, if the writers of the Draft EIS have reason to believe that the pipeline will not be in operation after 30 years, this expectation should be noted in Section 5.3 (“Socioeconomic Environment”). Rather than identifying positive economic impacts as “permanent,” the Draft EIS should cap them, as they do for climate impacts. At the very least, a consistent analysis is needed in order to properly compare costs.

Also concerning is that in Chapter 10 (“Accidental Crude Oil Releases”), the danger of a spill is calculated on a per-year basis, but is never identified over the potential lifespan of the pipeline. This is a problem; analysis of the cumulative risk presented by this pipeline over its entire lifespan is required for decision-makers to have an adequate idea of what is at risk.

As a young person who very much hopes to be around in 30 years (and who hopes to someday have children), attention to the cumulative impacts of this pipeline over time, and to its impacts beyond 30 years, is absolutely essential. Please consider the interests of future generations in the next draft of this document.

II. Environmental Justice Section

As stated on Chapter 11 Page 1, an environmental justice review “allows analysts and decision-makers to identify and understand what portion of the total impacts may be borne by minority or low-income communities, to assess whether they are disproportionately high and adverse, and to develop alternatives and mitigation measures if necessary.” Unfortunately, I believe that this section does not meet that goal.

2450-3

To begin with, Page 11-2 states that “the census tracts intersected by the right-of-way for the Applicant’s preferred route and route alternatives constitute the geographic area within which potential disproportionate adverse impacts from the proposed Project are likely to occur.” This lays the groundwork for an environmental justice analysis in which GIS is used to compare minority populations within and outside of these census tracts. This is relatively standard methodology for environmental justice research, and has been used effectively to identify injustice in the siting of toxic waste facilities, landfills, and other environmental harms.

However, as clearly established throughout the rest of this Draft EIS, the impacts of this pipeline are not immediately limited to the area adjacent to this pipeline. When the pipeline crosses lakes, streams, and rivers, the potential exists for a spill to pollute an area well beyond the bounds of a particular census tract; as laid out in Chapter 5, oil may travel many miles downriver following a spill. Watersheds do not neatly follow the boundaries of census tracts, and no apparent effort has been made to analyze minority populations in an area that more accurately reflects the pipeline's impacts. Closer attention to census tract selection is needed to make this an effective environmental justice analysis.

Chapter 11 does in fact acknowledge this reality. As Page 7 notes, "In addition to the individual land use categories that would be affected by the routes, various waterbodies and streams would be crossed." However, absent any attempt to include this observation in the quantitative analysis of this section, the statement is, sadly, relatively meaningless.

Page 11 also notes that "From an Ojibwe perspective, waterbodies at risk from the proposed pipeline include any water directly downstream from a pipeline crossing. Pollution of these waters from a petroleum spill would create a significant hardship to traditional lifeways and spiritual and religious needs of the people." It is correct that this statement is true "from an Ojibwe perspective." Of course, it is also true from any other fact-based perspective, including that of earlier chapters of this EIS. This "significant hardship" is deserving of greater mention.

Beyond all of this, the biggest omission in Chapter 11 is not quantitative, but qualitative. Even if only 5% of a population is minority/low-income, if that population is particularly dependent on a resource compared with the rest of the population, then it is still an environmental justice issue if that resource is affected, because the impacts disproportionately fall on that population. Considering equity in the siting of a project is important; considering equity in its impacts is equally so. A community's share of the population being low does not mean that the impacts they face are not disproportionate. In order to be an effective analysis, this section must consider qualitatively (and if possible, quantitatively) how project impacts vary on different segments of a population within the same geographic location as well as between them.

III. Miscellaneous Concerns

A couple of other things that seem to require serious reconsideration::

- As I've previously cited, Chapter 3 states that an EIS "does not advocate or state a preference for a specific alternative. Instead, it analyzes and compares alternatives so that citizens, agencies, and governments can work from a common set of facts." However, Chapter 11 Page 13 states that "a finding of 'disproportionate and adverse impacts' does not preclude selection of any given alternative."

Given the scope of this document as stated previously, such a statement is entirely out of place. What does and does not "preclude selection of any given alternative" would seem to fall to decision-makers to determine, not the writers of an EIS. The purpose of this EIS is solely to advise decision-makers on what potential impacts may be. There is, for example, no sentence in the "Socioeconomic Environment" section advising that the presence of lower tax revenue does not preclude selection of a given alternative. To avoid bias in presentation, this sentence should be removed.

- Page 11-7 states, regarding treaty rights, that "these treaty rights and tribal resources are important to the Indian tribes as both natural and cultural resources and reinforce their cultural identity. Additionally, the mental well-being of Indian tribal members is linked to their tribal resources and access to their treaty rights." It is also worth noting here that treaties constitute binding legal documents as well. "Access to treaty rights" does indeed impact mental well-being; it also impacts legal rights. This crucial fact deserves acknowledgement in this section.
- The length of the chapters on Existing Line 3 Abandonment and Removal (13 pages), Environmental Justice (15 pages), and Tribal Resources (31 pages) are entirely insufficient in the context of a 1,894 page document (not including appendices). The Abandonment section is particularly lacking. These sections require additional substance.
- Notably, there is no analysis anywhere in this Draft EIS of the eventual abandonment or removal of a new Line 3 pipeline. This is an obvious and substantial impact of the Line 3 Replacement, especially as the abandonment and removal of the existing Line 3 warrants an entire chapter here. Some analysis of the costs and dangers of the eventual removal of this new pipeline must be included in order to ensure a complete review for the record.

CONCLUSION

Thank you for the work you have done on this Draft Environmental Impact Statement. Some pieces of this review are quite strong. Unfortunately, other pieces are sorely lacking and in need of attention. It is my opinion at this time that the latter outnumber the former. I regret that at this time my critiques are still a work in progress; I will do what I can to develop them through continued engagement in this process. Thank you in advance for your continued work in improving and refining this environmental review for the good of all Minnesotans, present and future.
